Very cool Dave. got 2 of the shack versions. one new in the box in the collection. the other sits on my coffee table. just in case i need to check something local on the MW band. i did manage to crack the plastic where the antenna exits on the back. little dab of super glue. batteries last almost forever. this one came used, in the box at a hamfest. $25.00, couldn't pass that up.

Mine gets to be a pain sometimes as it gets very hissy depending on where in my house I use it. It doesn't like areas of my backyard either.
I put up with it however as I have workarounds.

I don't think my model is available any more, even as spare parts. I bought it when the digital phones were becoming all the rage. Didn't need the fancy features that digital offered, just wanted something I could talk into. I think, from memory, that all that was available that was non-digital was the this one, a Uniden XS916, and a couple of other brands. They were becoming thin on the ground even then.

Here are its specs;

* 900MHz SCR Technology (Sound Clarity and Range)
* Includes Additional Handset and Charge Cradle
* Alpha Display Caller ID
* POP ID
* Caller Name Identification
* 30 Caller ID Memories

* 3 Line Back Lit LCD Dot Matrix Display
* Alpha Memory Dialing
* Super Chat Battery
* 10 Hours Talk Time
* Maxi-Sound
* Extra Loud Handset Volume Control
* Rocket Dial One Touch Speed Dial
* 2 Weeks Standby Time
* Call Transfer Handset to Handset
* 10 Speed Dial Memory Locations on Each Handset
* Page/Find Handset Feature - Flash Button (Call Waiting Compatible)
* 2 Step Ringer Volume Control
* Hearing Aid Compatible
* Belt Clip Included Talk Time: 10 Hours
* Standby Time: 2 Weeks
* Battery Capacity: DC 3.6V, 800mAH
* Wall/Desk Mountable
* Dimensions: 230mm (H) X 130mm (W) X 92mm (D), Additional Handset:
220mm (H) X 90mm (W) X 100mm (D)

I see a couple on EBay. Might just bid on one and get a spare remote handset and cradle. I need one for my study. I'm assuming that the base can accommodate a second remote handset and cradle. I see one on EBay that looks pristine. Everybody wants the new stuff so I probably get it for less than the postage costs.

4733. My Battle Over HD Radio Broadcasting

My Battle Over HD Radio Broadcasting And The Biggest Sale of My Career

A Message from HD Radio Farce, Newsgroup Troll

Note: So you don't read deep into this story and then realize I'm going to ask you to spend $35, I'm telling you up front. Read further.

A Stink Over HD Radio Broadcasting
By now you know that I've made a stink about the HD Radio broadcasting effort from time to time. It all started a few years ago, when I asked the guys at iBiquity to send me an HD Radio unit for evaluation. Frankly, it was not a good experience. Of course, many believe HD Radio technology is the savior of radio and allows radio to compete in a digital world. But I have not been fully convinced. Radio's salvation will be the moment we return to a commitment to entertainment and localism, industrywide.
Plus, the HD Radio Alliance believes that offering more formats on HD2s and HD3s is a way to provide the same diverse choices listeners are getting elsewhere. I haven't fully bought that, either.

So Am I or Am I Not a Fan of HD Radio Broadcasting?
Though I'm not convinced the strategy for the HD Radio broadcasting rollout is the right one, I do believe that better audio fidelity, more choices, and more services for listeners are good things. I have grown accustomed to artist and song information with satellite radio, and I expect it from radio now. And HD does offer song titles and artists.

So is HD a good thing for radio? It can't hurt and might help. And, since radio groups have converted almost 2,000 stations, and since more manufacturers have committed to HD Radio products, it's not going away.

So Why Hasn't HD Taken Off, Eric?
I believe the biggest issues have to do with the need for an argument so powerful that every consumer will want to go out and get one. I also believe expense has been a problem. Most of the HD Radio units I've seen are expensive.

Of course, people don't just go out and change their car radios on a whim. It usually happens when they buy a new car. And I'm not sure consumers have been sufficiently persuaded to invest in an expensive radio just so they can try out HD, especially when they're used to radios being fairly inexpensive. All these issues have created a slow start -- though the people at iBiquity say that there have been over a million HD Radio units sold, and sales are more than doubling every year.

A Wakeup Call
Recently on my blog someone said, "Eric, perhaps you should stop complaining about others and lead this industry by taking action on your own." He was right. Leadership is about taking action if I don't like where things are going. It dawned on me that I need to take action to move the needle on HD. So I started thinking.... What can I do to help HD Radio broadcasting take off? What action can I take? How can I provide the missing leadership?

Thought Leaders
Many companies launch products quietly by identifying thought leaders, giving them the product, and allowing the word to spread virally through that leadership. MINI Cooper did this when it gave cool people in markets across the U.S. MINIs to drive. When the cool people were seen in MINIs, their friends wanted them too. The product spread virally before it was heavily marketed.

So who are the influential thought leaders and cool people? It just so happens that some of the most influential thought leaders in America are ... drumroll, please ... radio people.

A Crack in the Radio Foundation
"This is easy," I thought. Since radio people are such influential thought leaders, we should be able to start an HD movement with radio people, right? But all those spots we ran on all those stations didn't seem to move the needle much. What's up with that?

The more I asked around, the more I understood that there was a crack in the foundation. Most radio people have never even experienced HD Radio broadcasting, including most of the employees at companies that offer it. How will we ever get a movement if the radio industry, at the grass-roots level, can't experience HD? How likely is it that most radio people will go drop a few hundred bucks for a desktop HD Radio receiver? Shouldn't every DJ, every AE, every manager own an HD radio? Of course.

The Little Box That Made FM Boom
OK, I'll admit it. I was born in the dark ages, and I was around when no one had FM radios other than home stereos (of which there were very few). But the only FM stations were elevator music stations. When FM rock stations started coming on the air in the late '60s and early '70s, the unique content drove adoption (something we need to do on HD -- underground content!). But you couldn't find FM radios to buy, and you certainly couldn't find FM car radios. Or if you did, they were expensive. But a little box changed everything. Audiovox came out with a $15 converter unit ($50 in today's money) that received an FM signal and put it through the AM in your car radio. Every kid I knew had one, and that's what drove FM adoption until FM radios became more available and less expensive. That is what is needed for HD Radio broadcasting.

The Biggest Pitch of My Career
For all the grief I give HD Radio broadcasting, I have to admit that the people at iBiquity are really willing to listen. Of course, they want to see HD become a huge success. So I scheduled a call with CEO Bob Struble and some of his top people, and I said, "I want a small, inexpensive HD Radio receiver. My goal is to put it in the hands of every employee at every radio station in America. I want something that is portable, something with mighty HD sound that I can carry in my pocket, that I can listen to at the gym, and that I can plug into my speakers or the audio jack in my car. And I want it for under 50 bucks so every radio person can own one and experience true HD."

(Long pause.)

"Eric, you want us to manufacture a special radio for you?" said one executive. "Are you nuts? Do you know what it would cost to do that?"

"Yes, and I need it before Christmas. If you do this, it will be the foundation for launching HD because radio people will have it, experience it, embrace it, and start spreading the word like never before."

(Another long pause.)

My Biggest Sale Yet
Now, I make my living as a salesman, and I like to present bold, audacious ideas. When I presented this, I was sure these guys would mock me, but I persisted, and I was able to convince them to manufacture a special HD Radio unit just for radio people. Not only that, but I convinced them to let me create my own special design and brand.

Putting My Butt on the Line
Once I convinced iBiquity to manufacture a special radio, I realized my butt is on the line. This strategy had better work, or I'll lose all credibility with them, and they'll be sitting on a few carloads of special HD Radio receivers that they can't sell elsewhere, at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars. Plus, I had to act fast. Here it was September, and I had to get my concept, design, prototype, and shipment in time for Christmas.
They said, "We can do it for Christmas in 2010, but not this year, Eric. Be realistic." But I was especially persuasive on this matter and got my way, and iBiquity has pulled out all the stops because they believe that an HD Radio receiver in every employee's hands is good for HD Radio broadcasting.

The Moment of Truth
I was pacing the floor, knowing FedEx would arrive any moment with the prototype. Would it live up to my expectations? When I opened the package, there in front of me was a box with the logo, branding, and packaging I had designed.

"Mighty Red: Radio Ink's Little HD Radio with Booming Sound, by Eric Rhoads"

I named the radio MIGHTY RED to make a point that this little radio had MIGHTY BIG sound. I designed it to be RED because RED is the Radio Ink color, and because it would be easy to find (I'm always losing little things). Plus, these days RED is a symbol for the best of the best. In HD video, for instance, the best video camera in the world is called RED. So why not make my mighty little radio RED because of its awesome quality?

I carefully opened the box, pulled out the radio, charged it in a USB slot, and took it to the gym. On the treadmill, I hit "scan," and the first HD signal I received was KDFC in San Francisco. BOOM. The audio was amazing. Crisp, clear, and booming. I had plugged in my $100 Sony sound-canceling headphones, which is the standard I use to judge the audio on iPods, the Zune, etc. The audio on this little radio was amazing.

The screen told me what station I was listening to and what song. I clicked up to KDFC-HD2. Classic, deep cut tracks that put a smile on my face and took me back to another day. I then went over to KFOG, which was playing a blues tune. I cranked it up, cranked up the speed on the treadmill, and my mind got lost in the sound. The audio was absolutely blow-me-away perfect. All from this tiny -- and truly mighty -- little red radio. I kid you not. This little radio is absolutely mighty and has the best small radio audio I've ever heard in my life. It's so good I'm actually excited about it and can't wait for you to try it.

Your Role in Radio's Future
HD Radio broadcasting isn't going away, and we can all have a hand in its success. If you're in radio and you don't own an HD Radio unit, you simply need to own one, need to listen to HD, need to experience it so you can fall in love with HD audio like I did with my Mighty Red. Without the foundation of people in the radio industry owning HD Radio receivers, we cannot expect to convert the rest of the U.S. to HD listeners. Yet if every person working in radio buys an HD Radio receiver, we will have the foundation we need to influence others.

Billy Mays Would Be Shouting From His Grave
Though I'm starting to sound like the late Billy Mays pitching Magic Putty, this is a limited production run. (I wonder if he was related to Mark and Lowry Mays.) We will not sell these in stores. The exclusive MIGHTY RED by Eric Rhoads was made just for radio people (and your friends and family for Christmas!) with the intent of selling out rapidly. Plus, I convinced the people at iBiquity to create this radio and offer it at a special price of $35, which makes it affordable for every person in radio. And that's important.

How Do You Want to Feel Right Now?
When you own Mighty Red, you'll fall in love with radio all over again. I did. The audio is that good, and the new HD2s and HD3s were playing songs I hadn't heard on radio in years, if ever. I'm very excited about it. And, for the first time, actually excited about HD Radio broadcasting. Now I have a tiny portable HD unit that I can jog with (it comes with an armband holder and headphones), plug into my car audio jack so I have HD in my car, or plug into my stereo at home or the office for HD audio.

If you want to feel great about radio again, and feel great about HD Radio broadcasting, buy a Mighty Red. My goal is for everyone in radio to own one, to build a foundation for HD. If radio employees embrace HD, we will have the launching pad for HD adoption nationwide. It starts with you.

I hope you'll consider buying my custom-designed Mighty Red HD Radio receiver and consider it for Christmas gifts for your friends, clients, etc. Please do it today. There may not be another chance if we sell out today.

I guess it's the 'Peking Moon'... at any rate, here are the lyrics:

Did you ever think, when you eat Chinese
It ain't pork or chicken but a fat Siamese?
Yet the food tastes great, so you donï¿½t complain.
But thatï¿½s not chicken in your chicken chow mein.
Seems to me I ordered sweet-and-sour pork
But Garfieldï¿½s on my fork.
Heï¿½s purrinï¿½ here on my fork.
CHORUS
Thereï¿½s a cat in the kettle at the Peking Moon
The place that I eat every day at noon.
They can feed you cat and youï¿½ll never know
Once they wrap it up in dough, boy.
They fry it real crisp in dough.

Chou Lin asked if I wanted more
As he was dialinï¿½ up his buddy at the old pet store.
I said "Not today. I lost my appetite.
Thereï¿½s two cats in my belly and they want to fight."
I was suckinï¿½ on a Rolaid and a Tums or two
When I swear I heard it mew, boys.
And that is when I knew.

CHORUS
Thereï¿½s a cat in the kettle at the Peking Moon
I think I gotta stop eatinï¿½ there at noon.
They say that itï¿½s beef or fish or pork
But itï¿½s purrinï¿½ there on my fork.
Thereï¿½s a hair-ball on my fork.

Does anyone have an idea where they're transmitting from? GREAT signal now.

I'm going to tape the rest of this. Pretty good show, I have to throw some wood on the fire - they're saying tonight is going to be the coldest night so far.

I had my oven on cooking up some chicken for dinner. I sure do like using the oven in the winter.

And, I've switched back to 3921 to listen to the Upper Peninsula net which usually runs to 2300 or so.

4752. What is the radical right? (does it even exist?)

Why are there no jobs? Because there is no transparency in the Obama administration, only lip service that tends to appeal to high school drop outs who will buy the party one liner "we don't give tax breaks to rich people"?

How about either resigning or declaring a cease fire on Americans and their way of life? Congress is to "regulate" not "choke" commerce? The only way you can regulate commerce is to set tax limits, such as no more than 30% for all local and federal taxes, and they apply to everyone fairly, not based on what they earn?

Americans know how to make money, but we can't read the minds of "monkeys" in Congress? Congress has to fire all their campaign managers that focus on using worthless pyscho babble that certainly wins elections, but defy common sense and paralyze the economy? You want to depend on theories of washed out college professors that are not living under bridges with shopping carts because of the grace of God and public and then ignore when they fudge numbers and want to make new laws that we should all live by?

You can't say you are going to tax the rich and then wonder why we don't have jobs? Rich people have to know what to pay people, and they can't figure that out when the operating costs are at the whims of monkeys in Congress? What am I supposed to tell my customers when they ask how much my services are? What's in your wallet?

Yes, they act like monkeys? If I don't know how to price my goods or services because we have LSD riddled, pot smoking communists in the Congress, who have fun absorbing the worship of foul mouthed, potty mouth groupies that call their brothers and sisters evil names and stupid, and business leaders, and owners, and managers watch all this happening, just what makes you think I want to give away my business ideas or go straight into bankruptcy?

Sure, Barack Hasan Obama wants to weatherize your house, easy to plant bugs and cameras by hiring insulation "experts" (the porn business is really, really, slow?) so he can get a bump in the stock market and get re-elected? And of course all the jobs will disappear just as fast as they appeared unless they invent more regulations designed to tell you when, where, why, how, and if you can do many of the things we take for granted today? The destruction of your personal liberties will be the job of tommorrow? Great campaign slogan for Sarah Palin, huh? Gee, I wonder what that gig pays......

Speaking of monkeys, I am not going to comment much more about the Glenn Beck show, after all, 33% of their show is shock jock humor designed to get ratings, the other 33% is actual news, and the remaining 33% is about how Glenn is the best Boy Scout in the world and why he thinks good is better than evil? Hey, great idea, except I can't objectively review parts of his show, so I better just shut up, or copy the new formula for success?

Who exactly is Glenn Beck talking about the "radical right"? What's the matter, you afraid all you fat old guys out there that eat cookie dough (and bragg about it) won't be able to watch your porn anymore if somebody "radically right" outlaws it? Don't worry, your wives won't let that happen (wink -- you ain't that sexy anymore when you are fat and bald)? Well, if you define anyone who will leave sex out of politics as radically right, well, maybe you are really a liberal?

Okay, if they leave your porn alone, let you smoke and drink, what's left? War? Did Nixon advocate just strength, or economic freedom, or both, with an emphasis on economic activity? America's plan from the 1970s is simple, stop communist aggression, explain fundamental economics to the world, and then work at advocating spreading those principals and values that create abundance in society from both within, and without, in such a manner that people, especially communist leaders and citizens, choose that way of life?

Nixon was a great writer, he had great vision, but he had sloppy media manners? Calling himself a crook was the PR genius of the entire 1970s decade that allowed the Kennedy family to go rolling in dough? He got pardoned, so he wasn't a crook was he? Well, that's a non-serious look at it (you assume he meant thief, but that is splitting hairs I suppose), but should we throw away every thing the man did because he said that? Well, I won't do that, and you don't have to be radically left or right in the process?

That is conservatism, Democracy is not conservatism? Democracy is practiced by dictators (or a fascimile of it)? You want to run around like James Bond and over throw corrupt governments, hey, a high five to ya if you saved and liberated people! But at the end of the day, you better have a darn good press relations campaign and enough sentiment that people don't think you are the bad guy?

So what do you do when people don't want to change? You wait, because you don't have to wait for change to happen, change is going to occur, and if you think phsycho babble is going to reward looting and laziness, I dare say that the Earth has a different opinion of how lazy we can be? Rich people don't like being told that they should share some of their wealth voluntarily, because they figure they don't have to? And when they don't, the expect society to place limits on them, and then society pays the price because that process can be so disorienting and disturbing that they can make it not worth doing?

Who the darn well wants government installing pressure sensitive water heads in the showers that will digitize your body in real time for cinematronic studios that will produce the next generation of porn (don't worry, it is not technically possible, although it should give the Russians some entertainment thinking that we can - wink?)? Surely not the cookie dough boy? American Democracy is going to have to grow oats and not implement major policy changes that occur in less than 36 months, and I believe a constitutional amendment that allows for the next election cycle to prevent unwanted changes from occuring to happen, and the spread of Democracy?

China is using conservatism and it is not a Democracy? Oh sure, there were riots in the streets when JFK was shot? When you serve in the military, or in government, that's a risk you have to take, and one that you should explain to your supporters in order to prevent chaos from happening if it did happen, or do you just leave it up to the whims of the media? We know more about Tiger Woods pre-nuptial agreement than we do the last will and testament of Barack Obama?

Will Barack Obama record a video (I doubt it, since he is so camera shy) saying goodbyes to the world in case of a failure in a vehicle accident, or a Mother in Law that learns how to play golf?

Talent on loan, and not for free, from God.....

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

And just what do you propose we do with unions when they grow too powerful? Live in poverty?

You can play with the nuances of linguistics, but I have the power of truth?

Resistance is futile, the Democrats, and Liberal biological distinctiveness will be added to our own, and all their technological uniqueness as well, they will comply (wink!)!!

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Yeah, it's fun at times to listen to them, you almost feel like you know them after a while. I thought it was a net about a certain subject matter, we had a group out here seven- eight years ago maybe that would talk about conspiracies and such, they don't do it anymore sadly enough.

Sheesh, you again...lol...you just can't help but type my name. I'll say this ONE MORE TIME to you, I understand you're "older" so you may not have caught it when I said it before to you.<shaking my head>

I have never myself started a post in SCT....I have NO IDEA what the group is even about. The ONLY way a response by me is in there could only be if someone crossposted a thread and I didn't see it or didn't care one way or the other. It had to be from either the knife group (and I know you know this already) or if I responded to someone else and it was crossposted here.

What is it that you don't understand? Again - YOU are the one that followed ME to this group - not the other way around.

> what's your interest in > Kramer?

Haven't we been over this before old timer? I think you just have a man crush on me, and just so you know, no thank you. I have asked you politely to leave me alone - heck I even begged you - bet yet here you are again.

>If Kramer is posting on a cooking group, what skin it it off

I could care less if he's posting in the Fred Flintstone newsgroup - I really don't care.

>He's leaving the newsgroups you frequent well > enough alone so why not reciprocate in kind?

Heh - not really - because you bring up his name in here either just as much as anyone or more. Dude, you aren't going to scare me away from RESPONDING about him here in the group that I have been in for years. YOU are the one following ME around, I hope we are clear in that.

> You do realise that, > psychologically speaking

snicker - imitation is a form of flattery and I will accept it and thanks.<rolling my eyes>

>such obsessions are a real cause for concern

Yeah, remember that every time you utter my name when I respond to a thread about your buttbuddy.

This essay is very fragmented. I thought you were going to tell us that the radical right does not exist. Then I thought you were going to tell me why there are no jobs. You spoke about college professors, pot smoking communists, Glenn Beck and Nixon. I had to stop reading about then. Is this essay some kind of satire or just a bunch of unconnected thoughts that you've put down to amuse yourself with? Did you finally get to making a point further down in the paper?

I'm not sure what the point is. Make a point and write a few paragraphs supporting that point. Give us some examples. Tie it all together in the last paragraph somehow, and leave the reader with something to remember. One last sentence that drives the essay home.
Can be a famous quote by so and so, or just something clever that you have come up with.

There is no radical right. It's just something the liberals made up a hundred years ago to label anyone who doesn't agree with there way of viewing the world - with emotions. It's actually quite harmless.
Just what they do.

The reason we have no jobs is because the NWO wants it that way.
They're trying to level the playing field. They've sent most of the jobs overseas to the third world countries. Their coup will be complete when the borders are open and the crap jobs that can't go overseas are performed by the Mexicans who will stampede the border.

This is where I usually go on and begin ranting and so forth against the government, but who knows, one day I may have to get a government job (I expect if Barry Sotoro and his friends have their way we will all be working for the gov't one day) so I will hold my tongue.

I hope I haven't been to impolite with my critique. I think we probably think a lot alike. Let's get together one day for a cold brew and discuss.

regards,
Bob

Duh, the second sentence answered the first sentence, the rest of the "essay" simply re-hashed the role of Conservatism in America that the mainstream media seems so intent on burying? Does Mr. Putin advance his theocracies of "hope" or does he throw people that are millionaires into prison for fun, or because their mind is not "right"? Want to keep the Russians laughing all night? You only need two ingredients, the word "hope" and "alcohol"?

People don't like to talk about Mr. Nixon, so I've found an outlet for my frustration against liberals that have survived the political storms they have created, YOU might not understand the piece, but they know full well what it says, what is says to them and about them? There is of course a typo, I should have said "they" somewhere (which is why I said "beta" this was not really proof read yet)?

You see the more I talk about Mr. Nixon, the more God will prepare them for the day of judgement before them? Oh, and I tug and pull with other writers and players that made the day's news, just to sort of make the article more than a vanilla post card? People like Glenn Beck don't want to talk about that time, because they can't remember it very well?

How can you read the health care bills or the proposed smoke crack and trade CO2 credit "energy" bills without concluding that someone from the 1960s somehow hid their brain damage but eventually made it into power, and the psychosis is flowing for all to see now that they don't have to pretend who they are or hide what they want to do? Or does my article simply make you wonder, if someone has to ask these questions, is my motive, is my agenda, should I be President of the United States, should I be Liberal, should I be Conservative, or should I just shut up (for either the reader, audience, or "players")?

LOL. So yes, the audacity of hope by Barack Hasan Obama is simply code word for following the Soviet template for brain washing the citizens before they know what hits them?

Ask not what your country can do for you, ask how liberals can ask endless questions?

With all seriousness, this is a peace making article, it is a prosperity article, and it is even more if you want to be?

Being that the question is the most powerful object in the English Language, and will keep citizens of Communist China out of jail, while promoting Democracy, and Conservatism without being a Rhino Republican, you've got to ask your self a question? ....

Do you feel lucky?

To loot or not to loot, that is the question of a Shakespeare play?

That's OK, if you don't understand, just call me stupid, and then insult some people with potty mouth words, we know where you come from, and where you are going? NWO? Oh, thanks for reminding me, UNION college professors that probably freak out when they get explained to them that they set fire to the children of the marijuana trees, and burned them alive, while listening to the song "Free Bird"?

The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible

as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Ok, you summarized your "essay" with "Kill them all and let God sort it out!"? Dang, sounds like you work for that AlJezeer TV network? I prefer the "WWF NO WAY OUT metaphor to the new World Order"? The old world order was the Crusades?

Alex Jones? Oh sure, it's always fun to start your day talking about the Attorney General of the United States? Silence brings a NWO? Most of did not want to have anything to do with Waco, we want to give the feds the benefit of the doubt? When the ATF comes knocking on your door, you don't give the guys that issue your machine gun permit any lip?

That didn't stop Michael Moore did it? I don't see the things the way coast to coast radio, and those who are too paranoid about what governments are up to with the same zeal, we get curious and leave the heavy hitting for those with the bucks? Prancing around air force bases looking for alien space craft, and it's none of our business, honestly?

I think there is plenty to talk and do without resorting to turning over every rock we encounter, although there are people paid really, really, big bucks to do that? Sounds like Alex will be either on focus, or another Michael Moore in a few years?

You don't think the military and others plant false information in databases and publications just to keep the curious cat occupied chasing its tail so that it stays out of real trouble sometimes? Well, let me say this about Alex, thank you for being zealous about the Constitution?

A semi-colon is what defines looting from Conservatism? For whatever reason, we have to appreciate the legal aspects of the Constitution, both as a linguistic work of art, and as a practical form of government? Additional restrictions are necessary on government actions to avoid confusions?

Oh, almost forgot, my posts will make NO SENSE what ever unless you listen to the Glenn Beck Radio show? Kind of like the story about twist ties and folding the bag of bread, welcome to my world? THANK GOD, my sanity is restored once Rush Limbaugh's voice hits the air waves?

Winks of Mass Instruction.....LOL.....Did I mention I have Attention Definition Disorder? Who knows maybe I'll become a film maker one day, and work for Alex Jones?

Resistance is futile, they will comply with the truth? Watcha gonna do, when all the little CONSERVO MANIACS, with their pythons of truth, their ear to ear smiles, and whitest teeth known to the universe go RUNNING WILD ALL OVER YOU!

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

Didn't care, would be my guess. Maybe you did care and wanted to see what mischief you could stir up. Well done Gregg, (your name again) you succeeded in bringing the trolls here.

Yes, a pointless response similar in intent to this one to which I replied and which attracted said trolls.

Pardon me but I have been subscribed to this group for a very long time, long before I posted here in fact. It has only been since my recent retirement that I have had a renewed interest in radio listening and taken more than a passing interest in posts here. That's when I saw you inflicting yourself on SCT and "supporting" the aims/interests of the trolls there. Having seen the destruction wrought upon SCT by those same trolls, I feared the same would apply here.

Well hello, I was thinking you had the man crush on Kramer. According to you, you have only "looked up" his posts. Why do you do that. If he's nothing to you, just leave him be and omit him from any and all discourse here (and in SCT and rec.knives). He's left these groups behind and, one would suspect, moved on. Why can you not do likewise.
Why do you need to bring his past into the present?

No, between you and the trolls, I don't need to mention Kramer. In fact,
I am getting quite sick of seeing the name repeated ad nauseum. In fact it's becoming quite tedious seeing the trolls "begging" Kramer to come back! He's gone, get used to it, get over it!

> Dude, you aren't going to scare me away

One wonders why you would want to mention Kramer's name in a group in which he has never been a participant and more than likely has no interest.

> years. YOU are the one following ME around, I hope we are clear in

I have been listening to radios since my dad built me a crystal radio some 60 - 65 years ago. That sparked a lifelong interest in radio and I have followed the hobby ever since. I have had in the past many shortwave portable receivers, most being Grundig lookalikes made in Japan. I recall a pretty good Sanyo amongst them. Can't recall what I did with that one. Then there was the venerable FRG7, the FRG7000 and, currently an FRG7700 and an FRG8800 with attendant Yaesu antenna tuner, a pair of Yaesu active antennas and a Yaesu VHF converter. Also included in my current collection are a Sangean ATS505, a Sony ICF-SW7600, and a Realistic 400 Channel Pro2005 Scanner.
So, in answer to your accusation, NO, I am not following YOU around. In fact, I would hazard the suggestion that since I have been into radio longer than you therefore you are following me around.

I wasn't trying to flatter you just because you are trying to imitate the trolls. It's not difficult to imitate morons such as those but it is difficult to see why "you" would bother!

The trolls chased Kramer out of both SCT and Rec.knives. OK, they succeeded in their stated aims. So why are they begging him to come back? So they can chase him out again? Now they appear to be haunting some cooking newsgroups in the hunt for Kramer. Will they destroy those newsgroups in an attempt to chase him out of those? Seems likely! At your behest, they have commenced haunting a poster in this newsgroup that you are at odds with. Will they chase YOUR enemies out of here too? Will they destroy this newsgroup in the process? Those are interesting questions. Try not to duck them this time.

Kramer posted to a newsgroups that I subscribed to. That hardly makes him my "buttbuddy". In fact, the manner of your fascination with Kramer's posts would surely indicate that he is your buttbuddy, or vice versa as the case may be.

Besides, I am used to responding to people by name. It is one of the niceties of a civil discourse. This may however be an alien concept to you. It is certainly an alien concept to your buttbuddies, the trolls.

By responding to a post about him? Thanks for letting me and

You old man are an ass clown - flat out - end of story.

See herein lies the rub. Just because you say someones response is pointless.....does not mean it is just because you say so. Who the hell do you think you are? I can respond to ANYONE I want to about anything I want. Your efforts to stifle my free speech and of others is noted jerk.

Banger himself.>:-D

Blah - blah - blah....you need to change your story to the "real" reason you are here, this I feel is what YOU live for....and alas ( I love that word) or hence....lol....you bring heat down on yourself.
You are a head case.

> Having seen the destruction wrought upon SCT by those same

Your selection of words and use of adjectives is mind boggling....lol...you give people sooo much power - DESTRUCTION???
Really Kramer? They "literally" destructed that newsgroup? If that group has been destructed as you so eloquently just stated ---then those are some real tough guys - shewweee I am sure scared
now.<rolling my eyes>

Your feeble attempt at misdirection is again noted. Your usenet manipulation attempts really need some tightening up because it doesn't work here - - surely you must see it...lol...but yet you just cannot help yourself....I have these powers I never realized I had till you followed me over here - hence this discussion for lack of a better word because there is no discussing with you.....that is why I KNOW you are Kramer and you are freeking cracking me up.:-D

>According to > you, you have only "looked up" his posts. Why do you do that.

Old timer, we can do this same song and dance infinitum. Bottom line is you are not going to dictate who I speak to or what I'm talking about. I have answered your question above before - google it. You ask the same questions....I know you're him because he is the only nutjob
I have ever seen on usenet that creates all these other characters such as yourself and you aren't going to convince me you're not.

Your "writings" as Krypsis....the way you phrase things -- certain words you use and the way you say it is exactly like you are trying soooo hard to hold back the Kramer....lol...so you won't get busted again...but you can't hide that "special" arrogance no matter how hard you try pal - it's just oozing from your posts.

>If he's > nothing to you, just leave him be and omit him from any and all

There you go again. Can't you see what you're doing? Screw you for lack of a better word in dealing with you. Now it's like you're laying down the Kramer gauntlet to me and it doesn't work. I can talk to whoever I want, if anything else or for any other reason just to make you jump. Remember, my new found power that you have showed to me. ;-)

LOL - you keep asking the same thing. I know what you want me to say.....trust me I do because I have already said it before and you want me to say it again to boost your sick Kramer ego. Pound salt.

You sick old man, you are doing it all on your own, you don't need any help in bringing discourse.

No he isn't. Because NO ONE would fight and bicker on usenet sickly "defending the honor" as you do when someone brings his/your name. You really do need help.

You're not fooling me. LOL - I know it's killing you to hold back...lol...come on- come on- you'll feel better if you stop being deceptive but alas your act will continue. But it will continue without me until you come clean. Be a big boy and take a big drink of milkey and just get it off your chest.

Just by addressing you as Krypsis gives you the feeling that you have pulled one on me, so until you come clean like a good little boy I will not speak to you again. I know you are going to turn blue banging those keys trying so hard to get me to respond to you again but it isn't going to happen until you stop your sick usenet games.

I noticed your again weak attempt below at misdirection. You didn't respond to this....my post above.

LOL - you're killing me here. Yes you are poopie britches, if you act like a child and make up people I will speak to you like a child.

What do you want - a lollipop? I can PROMISE YOU that unless you have constantly EVERY day of your life ( unless you're sick in bed or someone in the family has passed) for fourteen years actually "put in the time" behind the dials like I have - - I don't care how many radios you "say" you've had...lol....I have put in the time and you still can't escape from the fact that YOU followed ME here. :-D

> The trolls chased Kramer out of both SCT and Rec.knives.

Because they know how to sniff out the bullshitters such as yourself and it kills you that you can't bully either them or me around.

OK, they > succeeded in their stated aims. So why are they begging him to come

There you go AGAIN....seriously....are you on medication? You really need to reread your entire post before you hit the send button.

So they can chase him out again? Now they appear to be haunting > some cooking newsgroups in the hunt for Kramer. Will they destroy those Destroy? Come on - you really need to look at those "power words" you keep using when speaking about your friends.

Seems likely! At > your behest, they have commenced haunting a poster in this newsgroup > that you are at odds with.

What in the world are you babbling about now? You mean MBryant? He left on his own accord and sure as the sun will rise this morning...he will be back.....and it will be the same thing all over again. Kind of, like with you.

> Will they chase YOUR enemies out of here too?
> Will they destroy this newsgroup in the process?

Nice try. No one has that power to destroy any newsgroup. No one. No one is making somebody read this stupid and useless diatribe/thread unless they want to. Get a grip on yourself.

>Those are interesting questions.

No they're not. Maybe to you they are.

> Try not to duck them this time.

I didn't. Unlike you when you respond to me and you STILL can't escape the fact - that YOU followed ME here - not the other way around. Everyone in here are adults. No one is making anyone read this thread. No one or no group of people are going to "DESTRUCT" this newsgroup. What are they going to do Kramer? Are Fred/Brett/Takin and company going to come over to everyones homes and take their radios and computers away from them? Do you now see how silly you sound? YOU give them their superhuman usenet powers - not the other way around.

> >> such obsessions are a real cause for concern

EXACTLY. I am glad we agreed on that. Now remember that....so when in about a month when we all gather together to laugh at all the bullshit stories you've told (the kicking Charles Bronson's ass was epic I have to say) that YOU again are going to try an get me to engage with you.
But until you get honest, I am not playing your game. If anything else, you provide comic relief to people that won't post in any of these threads but still read them with anticipation because you are here.

Yeah, I remember the Liberty Net - that was a hoot. I remember that one guy who had that one show in Ky. if I remember right, that was anti gubiment. He was begging to be shot and killed and of course that is what happened, his son took over the show. Do you know what I'm talking about? If you do, can you throw me the freq and day he's on - if he's still on? Thanks.

If they're still on I think they operate around 3950 or so. I think the net itself was or is on Saturday nights.

A response about Kramer in a newsgroup he has never frequented is a pointless response, unless of course your actions were intended to attract troll posts. It is my estimation that was your intent.

I respect your right to free speech but expect you to respect the Check my headers if you still think I'm Kramer. I am still a resident in the city in which I was born. I have lived here all my life except for sojourns in other Australian cities and quite a few overseas countries as part of my work. Never lived in Thailand (Kramer did) and never been an American (Kramer is) and never been much of a photographer (Kramer is).

When I was a child, lollipops were a treat. Haven't had one since then.
You, on the other hand, must have a fair sized stock of them by now. Do your parents have to give you one in order for you to be a good little boy?

> constantly EVERY day of your life ( unless you're sick in bed or

The way you describe "your" participation in the hobby of shortwave radio listening, I'd suggest that it is an obsession with you. I've met people like you! Not a pretty sight. Hint, turn off your radio now and then and get outside and "smell the roses". Would do you the world of good.

I wasn't aware that 24/7 dial twiddling was a mandatory requirement before one could be qualified to call oneself a shortwave listener.

Yes, just like when they attacked a person called Kramer on a different in no way related to the Kramer they were haunting. Just like you, real

SCT is a forum which bears little resemblance to the original stated aims of its originators. I consider my use of the term "destroyed" justified in reference to the current state of affairs in SCT.

I'm am not surprised he left. With childish people like you and your trio of trolls, any real discussion with respect to shortwave will soon be subsumed by the trolls rantings.

Almost everyone here is an adult. I'm still not sure what age you are but I'm almost about to let you drop out of adulthood based on your activities in this and other newsgroups.

They, and you, don't have superhuman powers. Only you would believe that! Your "group" activities just make R.R.S a much less pleasant place to be and all the alternatives (and they are many) to seem more preferable. That is how it went in S.C.T. No reason to think that it will be any different here.

You really do believe I am Kramer, don't you. You really don't get it! I had thought I was dealing with a mature, rational adult. Seems you are about as mature and rational as your troll friends, definitely just as childish. Sad really.

I always used the sync detector or SSB ECSS to listen to it, so the fading was much less an issue. Since you have to get both sidebands to cancel out the IBOC, I can't use sync detection, because my SW2, just like a Sony 2010, can only sync to one sideband at a time.

Luckily, KKOH 780 comes in great at night, and they don't have IBOC. Same for KGO 810.

Morning Steve. you know i'm following this closely.
Richard tells me the major trouble, as with any new receiver, etc., coming out now is parts and supplies.
company's come and go. design with supplies today, may dry up next week. and, there are only a few of us who would spend the money on a new receiver in this day and age. most people just don't have the extra income right now for something like this. and with design and manufacture, i wonder how many must be made and sold before they can even brake even.
so, a group of us are keeping fingers crossed.
ya know, a new AOR would look real good sitting next to your Drake's.

That was the problem with the highly touted Sat 900. The chip upon which the set was designed dried up before the prototypes were built. Then Grundig took it's boning from Philips, and...well....

A lot of today's radios are becoming unserviceable because relatively common chips are no longer in production, and substitutes are rare.

But, then, this isn't new. It's been going on in consumer electronics for years. The product cycle of a Sony TV is less than 19 months, because of it.

And you're right...who can afford to drop the kilobucks on a new rig, that will be obsoleted by parts availability issues within a few years.

I've wondered how much this cycle has been an impact on hobbycraft like amateur radio/swl.

I mean, my grandfather had an impressive radio installation in the house. And many receivers over the years. But I inherited his rigs, and comparatively, there just weren't that many of them. I have more high end radios sitting on my desk than he had over his lifetime.

I'm still using his Super Pro. Even though tubes are hard to come by, these days, it's still more serviceable than many of today's modern performance receivers.

They are pretty good, and you can get lots of features. Sometimes they are disabled on the the cheap ones, which IMHO stinks. I bought 4 of them (2 sets of 2 cheaply) after checking out the exact model's English instruction manual which I downloaded from the UK.

It said that you could register a handset with up to 4 base stations and then have them automaticaly roam to the strongest one, like a mini cell network.

When I got them, the Hebrew instructions said the same thing, but the function was disabled in the phones. It's not much of a problem because the one base station covers all the area I need, and you have to force a handset to register, so I use the extra base as a dumb charger.

If you have a cell phone and a computer, you can even buy a DECT phone with Bluetooth, so not only will it share you headsets, but you can download the phone directory from the cell phone and then upload it to the DECT phone.

I've got a nifty little Grundig G6 Aviator radio and I want to build an active antenna to plug into the antenna jack. This radio, like many new portable SW sets, has the 1/8" mono jack for antenna output.

Can anyone tell me which contact is for the antenna? The tip or the shaft? (Heh-heh...tip... shaft). Is the other contact the ground? In the old days the desktop rigs either had a PL259 or a terminal strip for hooking up an antenna.

Thanks,
Good DX/SWL

Peter, you and Dave are both right. Icom has a bunch of trouble. the R75 no longer has a DSP board because of this. at this date i don't believe they have a replacement yet. so, where do we go from here? i think in a few years the newer receivers will mostly be SDR. which, maybe down the road, but as of today, is not a real receiver to me. BTW, yes Dave, i know some of the high buck jobs are mostly computer inside.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply

complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Shhh, be quiet, they'll figure out that blue ray mind meld device in all Black Berries?

Be quiet, Alex Jones will get wind of this and we'll all be discovered!

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions

beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

You have to hold down the locate button on the bottom of the base station (what a wonderful place for it), and after about 10 seconds it goes into registration mode. Then you can register a handset to it.

If I remember correctly, you also have to deregister the base station from the handset first.

Gee, next you will be thinking about the phone the NSA agent switched out while you were sleeping, complete with its blue tooth mind meld device, and they are sending you zombie instructions when you answer the phone.....

If you are that valuable that they are spending millions of dollars stalking you over 15 years, what makes you think they would harm you?

Traffic, well, you should always drive defensively, and a driver has to know his limitations.....

If you think you are being stalked, then simply speak the local FBI office and the local sheriff?

People hanging around your house, move? Just play some Jesus music?

If you really fell for that view, everyone would be stalking you, and all governments are bad, that is a symptom of lack of fish oil supplements -- and Omega 3s (brain nutrient deficiency)?

Or do people simply kill stalkers when they get cornered?

Or do stalkers simply harrass people they don't like, but don't harm them, because they already know the victim has a terminal illness, and it is just a matter of time?

Or do you just watch too much tv?

It must be hell to be a movie producer, they are screwing everything up and get stalked all the time?

Oh wait, stalking is a crime? Gee, I wonder who comes after people that stalk other people?

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible

as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Lets see, if someone stalks you and you are being quiet after that, they will still stalk you because they get their kicks from it?

But if you are not quiet, and you get more people talking like you, they have to stalk all those other people now, according to their own logic, huh?

What makes you think what you are saying is not being said as a collective group, even if you dropped dead tomorrow?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called

a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals

and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

Being a Citadel station, it only uses IBOC during daylight hours, to avoid jamming other Citadel stations after dark (where they rule North America, pretty much.) Ray T. does a good show. We need more live and My Ten-Tec SDR feels very old school analog.

I think I'm going to build me a K2.

There are lots of great receivers. Most have transmitters associated

RWI gave an email address in France, but then what sounded like the announcer from Radio Xray jumped in and gave the hotmail address that they use.

Radio Xray I think might be a French Canuk outfit as I've heard them alternating between French/English.

Yeah, well law enforcement sometimes uses "honey pots" to catch criminal activity such as pretending to be minor girls, that's how they bust a lot of sex thugs that prey on children?

After all, a honey pot does not have to be a computer, does it? It could be a phone call, a piece of mail, an invitation, a bump in a bar, or someone stranger asking you a question in a rest room?

Be careful what you wish for, huh?

There is a difference between syncing, and registration. Registration is need for a handset to use a base station. Unless you unregister the handset from the base and deregister the base from the handset, it will stay registered.

Very early DECT phones (around 3 years ago) would always register automaticaly when inserted in a base station, dropping off the #1 if the limit of 4 was reached.

Yep, definitely got the Xray Radio connection this time! So, RWI is a relay.

That sounds like what I have. I just use 2 of them. They were 30 dollars or so total from Uniden Direct. Otherwise I have to have my V-Tech 2.4 gig base station in the garage to keep from interrupting the WiFi.

Most people around here are dropping their twisted pairs for Time-Warner IP phones. I like my DSL. It's rock steady.

And just at the same time I heard it on the radio I got an email back from Xray Radio indicating that yes, they were relaying RWI !

This will work GREAT in a car. I'd use a 102" whip for receive-only.

Didn't I say that before?

Go to http://www.icom.co.jp/world/products/amateur/hf/ic-703/index.html

BTW, the 706 is the same rig with more coverage and 100 watts out on HF. Since it is more popular, you may be able to find a used one cheaper if you want to to that way. Note there were several models of both, so make sure you buy the one you really want.

Well then, if you include in your communications a way for the opposition to be included to the solution to whatever problem you feel you may be talking about, why would they stalk you? After all, that is what time does to people when you explain all points of view and make the solution so obvious they choose it for themselves, in a way that they think that they solved the problem, and forget all about the messenger?

Regarding other problems, there are numerous check lists in the book "The Gift of Fear" by Gavin De Becker that outline a host of situations and strategies when dealing with violence. The "Occupational Hazard" section is useful to writers if they view their audience as their "employees" since some of the principals can be universally reverse engineered?

For example writing about changing a political policy can be viewed by some as getting "fired" hence you become the sudo role of "employer" even though you have no power over anyone, and you simply have to remind people that if you depend on political power, it may be a gamble if it is not based on tested principals? Writers typically guess at what is already brewing in the pot, they don't always create those focal points of public opinion, which is why targeting the "messenger" does them no good at all (hence mass censorship?)?

So then the failures are hidden even more in a society with mass censorship, because fear chokes discussions of solutions?

Violence does that person no good what so ever, since they will still endure for the rest of their existence the fruits of failure associated with that policy or situation they intentionally created, especially when they plan to blame others for failures? And of course those that stay high on drugs on a daily basis can not see the nuances of their decisions or the big picture, and end up spinning their wheels in the mud of failure?

Hence a good writer always provides over time the way for everyone to participate, with a realism that says change is necessary, and this, what, why, where, when, and how are provided (what journalists should be doing?)?

So this is the reason for the name calling, when others cannot distinguish their policies from fiction, and the alternative viewpoint spells it out for them, and they have to choose to ignore it?
God opens the ears of the oppressed, so why not talk to an audience that is receptive to a message of good cheer?

Merry Christmas.....

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic

links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply

complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

The 706, and many of the other's I recommended have removable and or remotable front panels. You can mount the radio in the trunk and run a cable (or with the newer ones a fiber optic) to the front.

I would think the tip is the antenna, but I wonder if it really makes much of a difference. Especially if your active antenna isn't connected to ground.

Thanks Bob,

The more I think of it, I'm sure I can check both contacts with my ohm meter against the radio's whip antenna when I get ready to wire the plug.

The entire Middle east should be cut off from Foreign Aid. Way too many people have been making a living from sucking the US taxpayer dry.

Another issue is China getting Foreign Aid from Canada and the US. Why are we supporting a Totalitarian state? Hell, their economy is growing faster than anybody else's.

I think the aid equals pure extortion payment to allow corporate access to a slave labour force and no pollution constraints.

Good way to burn out the front end of your radio if it is not protected against such things. (e.g. Sony ICF-2010)

Since no one has not answered it's the tip is the antenna and the ring (outside) is ground. It's best if you use a short jumper of very flexible coax (rg-174) from it as the stress from something hard (rg-58, rg-6), etc will damage the radio.

I am looking for a reliable FM stereo transmitter to attach to my upstairs PC so I can listen to music and web radio in the basement or backyard. Does anyone have any suggestions?

I was looking at

http://dagcoelectronics.com/500mwRangeStar.html

and it looks promising. I don't want to order something from a mail order only to find that it doesn't work as advertised.

I second the motion for CCrane.com.
They have an FM stereo transmitter for $69.95 plus shipping.
The frequency can be set in 50kHz steps across the FM band.
There is a simple mod (just google it) where you open the bottom carefully and turn a pot to max. With that mod and a few feet of wire clipped to the antenna, you can broadcast for at least a couple of hundred feet around your house. CCrane doesn't advertise the mod, but I have read that they said the mod doesn't harm the circuit. I have two of them , one on my PC and one on my home theater receiver.

I've read that the CCrane model is sometimes underpowered. People have opened them up and adjusted the potentiometer to correct the problem, but this of course voids the warranty ;(

I've a couple of these devices, now no longer available here in New Zealand. Mine are branded DSE.
Range is an easy 100m.
Boon is usb-powered. (No battery issues)
Downside is restricted frequency choice.
XP & Vista supported. Can't test W7.

Sure seems to be the topic of the day in Bangkok that some poor old sod expat has taken a header off a 5th floor balcony...The Land of Smiles appears to be a death trap when one ventures outside his apartment/condo to enjoy a belt and a relaxing look out over the skyline off his deck...With so many deaths being reported (and so many Thai wives/gf's left without their soul mates :-) one ponders the possibility that "The Kraven" has also "taken a dive"...Where has he gone; 6 feet under...?...Are there any reports coming out of The Big Mango that some "Professional Snapper" decided to sky dive off his residential building without the aid of a parachute...?...I wonder if Ms Nobuko is collecting "survivor benefits"...?...Sure hope not, Pinkie's got a party on Jan 8th!

I was sort of wondering about that. The web site says 3/4 mile range but doesn't specify if that's with or without the optional antenna kit. Then below is warns that the transmitter may broadcast well beyond the house. I would settle just for a clear stereo signal throughout the house and the back yard immediately next to the house. This product is being sold on eBay with shipping to Canada. I was a little concerned about it being disallowed by customs due to broadcasting restrictions.

TRAGIC DEATH OF GERMAN NATIONAL WHO WAS DECORATING HIS CONDO

A German national has fallen to his death from the 5th floor of a condo in Pattaya. The man was in the process of decorating his apartment for the upcoming festive season when he fell, dying instantly.

Pattaya, the 4th of December 2009 [PDN]: At 11:30pm on the 4th, police
Lieutenant Colonel Sane Yotrungreuang (Pattaya police investigator), received a report from Miss Nantiya Bunpramuan [36] informing him
that her husband Mr. Franz Starmer [59] had fallen from the balcony of their 5th floor apartment at the Ruamchoke Condo View in Pattaya. A team of police along with the Sawang Boriboon Foundation attended the scene of the accident to investigate.

Police arrived at the scene to find Miss Bunpramuan holding her husband's body in a desperate state, crying profusely. A crowd of onlookers had gathered around the scene of the accident. The body of Mr Starmer was lying at the back of the condo complex. He had a broken neck and severe bruising on his legs and arms, with a significant amount of blood on his shirt. The victim had fallen from the 5th floor

apartment, crashing through the awning on the ground floor of the building before striking the ground, dying instantly. Police examined the body of the man to find that he had suffered a broke neck in the fall and he had blood coming from his mouth and nose

Hi Ace
Its a Microsoft PowerPoint Presentation file.
I don't know how you open it if you don't have that.
Perhaps take it on disk to a computer shop and ask them to print it

Ha! I'm on dial-up and it says that it'll take over an hour.

Think I'll just take it to Staples or wherever.

It's apparently not a QSL from Xray Radio but rather Radio Waves Int. that XR has been relaying the past few days.

This is one of the reasons why I am gravitating toward older, tube and hybrid equipment. I have friends who have old Drakes and Kenwoods that are 30 or 40 years old and going strong (and with receivers that are as quiet as all get out, with zero processor noise). Will my relatively new Yaesu or Icom rigs still be functional in 30 years? I really, really don't think so. But those Drakes and Kenwoods probably will be if they're maintained properly.

It's a PowerPoint file. You can view it with the MS viewer, a free dowload, or you can view it with OpenOffice, an Open Source program from Sun. Also free.

Check the kits by Ramsey, too.

The limited dynamic range of a FM device, such as you request, and your music, if you don't process it to reign in dynamic range, will likely not produce desireable results.

Ramsey kits, and a few others, offer built in limiting, and even some spectral and dynamics processing for cleaner sound, and higher average levels. Your music will sound more like a radio station, which isn't always a good thing, but it may be more listenable than simply plugging your audio into your tx device.

Depending on the size of your property, you may need more than the power available from most such commercially available devices.

The Ramsey kits will get you there. Abeit at more cost, but with excellent results and considerable versatility regarding antenna installation.

Email the attachment to a buddy that has power point installed and have them save the qsl portion to jpeg and have them email the jpeg back.

So Dave . . .

You have read the farcical 'comic' book
"Mein Kampf Uber HD Rundfunk"
-by- HD Radio Farce

or were you referring to another book
on 'HD Rundfunk' ? ~ RHF

Eventually you won't be able to maintain them. For example, tubes and capacitors don't last forever, even if stored in relatively safe conditions. Tubes made in the 1960's are starting to show leakage problems, and that's good brands such as RCA.

Many tubes made in the 1940's are still good after 60 years, but in 30 years they will be pushing 100.

The other question is ergonomics and function. Will a radio made in the 1940's or 1950's be able to compete with the noise and other problems encountered with signals.

My first shortwave radio was fished out of the trash. It was a Nordmonde (Nordmende?) AM/FM/SW portable that had been dropped and the IF transformers literally had to be glued back together. But it worked with a short wire in Philly, now would it?

Will any SW radio work without a special outdoor noise canceling antenna system in 30 years?

As for ergonomics, I recently aquired a Drake SPR-4. It is the best in terms of reception SW radio I have ever owned, and in terms of sound equal to the Grundig 650 I lusted after in the 1980's.

Ergonimicly, by today's standards, it sucks. To tune a frequency, you have to turn a knob to select the band (a-h), the crystal (1 of 14) and then tune the preselector. Only then can you spin the frequency dial to tune in a station.

The preselector is narrow enough that you have to tweak it after about 100kHz, which is really annoying scanning the AM broadcast band.

This is fine for me, I like to pick a band and tune around, but can you imagine someone who is used to direct frequency entry and memories using it? It would drive them nuts.

While the chance of either of my younger sons becoming a ham or even SWL is pretty small, I expect that neither of them will ever show any interest in it, except maybe for looks.

Geoff.

4891. psychotronics and the mobile industry

Browsing through YouTube on the subject of psychotronics, I came upon a lot of conspiracy-based theories. But the video below takes the cake.

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UsgAXHx6E2Q

"psychotronics" (thought-control induced via ultra/infra-sound, EMF, lasers and x-rays) seems to be more popular these days. A lot of theories are spun around this covert technology. If there really is such a technology one cannot be sure of. Duh! If it exists it must be top-secret. If it doesn't exists, it might be a product of a lively fantasy and a confused and sick mind.

The above video seriously claims that psychotronics is used by various governments (together with e.g. CIA, KGB) and the cellular industry to turn us all into good and law-abiding consumer-zombies. In other words, a gigantic conspiracy. Welcome to the Matrix! What on earth makes people really believe in such conspiracies?

Those boatanchors drift too much for digital modes. I guess they're OK for the casual listener who just wants to hear million Watt stations

It's got an old chip that doesn't offer continuous tuning. Luckily, it's single conversion and most stations also show up 900 kHz away from their assigned frequencies. I hope you didn't pay a lot of money for it.

Yes, true. You need full DSB desired and undesired information in order to cancel the IBOC junk.

When a sync detector uses phasing to cancel one sideband or the other, it cancels only _interference_ in that sideband. It does _not_ cancel that sideband of the desired signal -- since the Q channel contains essentially no audio from the desired signal.

So you are _always_ listening to _both_ sidebands of the desired AM or DSB signal, even when listening in the synchronous LSB or synchronous USB mode.

But if the IBOC sidebands are transmitted in quadrature (meaning 90 degrees out of phase) with the AM carrier, and I seem to recall that they are, then you're right -- you'd have to listen to the I channel detector _without phasing_ in order to cancel them out. And the Sony 2010 unfortunately won't allow you to do that.

With all good wishes,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

Yes, and the whole structure is in danger of collapsing. There has to be some way that they can pump out the old bunker oil. Even though it is a grave site, when the hulk rusts/deteriorates, what are they going to do?

Thank You Glenn Beck and your supporters

At times I am the hardest critic of Glenn Beck radio show, but lets face it, he is not talking about bowling tips. I don't agree with some of his conclusions, his fears, his humor, or even his agenda at times.

I do agree with his goals of zeroing in on failing policies, exposing the media ignoring or even deceiving people, and a call for fiscal stablility and simplification of our laws so that not only is life predictable, but enjoyable.

That's why I love the Rush Limbaugh show, he can put things in perspective, in a cadence, with humor, with clarity, and with a focus on how to solve problems. You see you "Climate Change War Pigs on Humans, the Earth is not an aquarium that you can fill with CO2 and then shine a light on it, and write a scientific paper on global warming.

The light turns off at night time, and wonder of wonders, guess what happens when the light is turned off (the Earth rotates, simulating the light being turned off)? The Earth begins to cool, and it just so happens the length of time that this occurs also happens to be a few hours before the sun comes up again. Any residual heat in the atmosphere, is further cooled when it is whisked away by moisture, and then the evaporation process(s) result in rapid cooling, almost as if the planet was designed by a master engineer.

Speaking of cooling, let's hope that Mr. Glenn Beck does not elope with his staff and become some kind of trans-gender new age couple or threesome of some kind? Listening to him talk about buying a Christmas tree was interesting, and with all do respect, enjoy the holidays Glenn. Yes, we can think that there are monsters in government waiting to take our civil liberties within days, and we must get out as much information as we can before this could possibly occur? One of his staff cross dresses for fun?

I didn't know getting ratings was that much fun! So exciting, huh? Yes, they were making fun of someone else while cross dressing, so I am taking this out of context, still you begin to wonder? The guy that defeated the German Enigma machine thought he was so clever that he could live his life without his real mate chosen by God too? Didn't end well, did it? We are beginning to look at Congress with more contempt than the German Nazis, the Germans wanted to kill us, but Congress wants to make us their prisoners?

Yes, I could think about how the Constitution was designed to prevent the Executive Branch from "regulating commerce", that was delegated to the Congress to vote on laws? But if I have lived my life as a failure, and don't have the money to fight this kind of thing, we kind of look up to Donald Trump and others to do the heavy lifting? Or is everyone worried about getting trapped in poverty? If we are silent will we be trapped in poverty?

If they are willing to raise your taxes, what makes you think they won't try to charge you "carbon credits" by the word (assuming it is not censored), for each byte that you can become associated with on the internet, each data base? So, Republicans, I don't want these bills amended, I want you people to stand up for what we believe in, not fairy tales?
Does it occur to some people that Sarah Palins policies are pretty darn clear, stay the hell out of the way of people's success? We'll figure that out, just like we will figure out with the Russians and the Chinese how to make a better future without everyone failing?

If the United States is taxed too much for their debt, or allowed to go too deep in debt, will that just finance the military might of other countries that are not interested in wiping out poverty? Destroying just one civil liberty such as buying a piece of candy, is the government job of tommorrow? That's not change I can believe in, and those who are educated in the media, and are using real pysch war tools on their own citizens to cover up failure, should be ashamed of themselves? Satellite orbiting data "missed" 500,000 square kilometers of solid ice?

So yes, Glenn, thank you for what you do, I appreciate it, if Glenn Beck dug his finger nails against a chalk board for 30% of the show, I would still listen to it, I would still watch his tv shows, because a lot of what he says is more useful than silent treatment of other media outlets. Because the media, not just Glenn Beck drives us crazy (Rush Limbaugh is not the media, he is ElRushbo, the all knowing One) with the back to back reporting of disaster after disaster?

It just goes to show how much mercy God gives us every day, and I want to be grateful for every minute of it. I am thankful I have a job today, but I can not afford meddling by Congress because it is paranoid or listening to con artists. Every thirty thousand miles, I have to fork over almost $600 to get the car properly tuned up and get all the fluids changed. A computer, an appliance, a fence, a tree limb, a storm, paint job, minor accidents, any of those failures takes but more of a limited income that forces us to think about getting a second job.

If your Christmas is so painful that all you have to think about, is the argument about buying a Christmas tree, then life must be grand.

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

I took the file to Staples this morning and had the card printed off. It indicates that Radio Waves Int. is indeed being relayed via Canada (X-ray Radio) on 6930 kHz.

And the People of the United States rewarded Richard Nixon with apathy, thanks to Walter Crokite and company?

Speaker Pelosi is not worried about losing elections because the People of the United States have granted members of Congress retirement benefits that will pay them at least $1000 a week for the rest of their lives? (but that's ANOTHER article.....not fact checked yet?)

(beta future article......)

Paraphrase:

Five facts part of a sound strategy in Vietnam?

1. The theatre of conflict included all of Indochina?

2. North Vietnam's external AGGRESSION was the central cause of the war? (Johnson admin White Papers)

3. Failure to stop invading routes from North Vietnam, failure to train against insurgents?

4. Without number 3 accomplished, citizens against communism would not rally without protection?

5. Using Laos as the critical choke point to secure South Vietnam's border? (Eisenhower advise to Kennedy?)

This was important because the "insurgents" or communist aggressors wanted to affect their political power using narco-terror tactics? President Nixon believed 10% of the population was all that was needed to sustain a gorilla war? That must be a comfort to Iran? Gorilla warfare succeeded in South Vietnam because the population was either poor, or restricted from owning the guns needed to defend themselves, which created an atmosphere of fear, which was necessary to motivate the communists with their imaginary "moral" incentive that was only testosterone?

If communism was so successful, why did they have to resort to armed conflict, unless their objective was to loot?
If their social and economic policies were so successful, people would have been volunteering, not resisting? One high school would "recruit" 50 members a year, with one "cell"?

Gee, they should have went to mandatory home schooling? Restricted to only fighting on South Vietnam territory, they attempted to train the South Vietnam to fight conventional forces, and were not trained to keep successful outcomes of battles by American Forces due to poor quality of South Vietnam recruits, and or training?

Success by war of attrition was never reached, even though communists lost as much as 500 men a day in battle if you averaged out the totals? They estimated that over 300 boys a day reached the age to enter the military and the attrition rate was sustainable? The Johnson administration was afraid of China?

In February 1968, Johnson ran out of time? The Tet Offensive not only surprised the Americans, but the communists who then lost their gains because there was no local uprising of support for their policies? And yet, what did the American media do? Wildly distort the battle with grotesquely innaccurate newsmedia reporting that turned it into a political and pyschological victory for the communists in the United States (paraphrase, No More Vietnams, by Richard Nixon)?

CBS produced a news documentary years later that accused General Westmoreland of suppressing troop estimates before the Tet Offensive was a viscious attack that ignored that "Ho" (Ho Chih Minh of China, or North Vietnam?) had gambled everything on one roll of the dice (God always confuses the minds of the enemy?)? So what happened? The shock of how brutal the communists were willing to slaughter their brothers and sisters demonized them into monsters?

Here's another good one:

"Reporters, most of whom knew nothing of military affairs, missed the big picture. Instead, they focused on isolated, dramatic incidents, often getting their stories dramatically wrong." (quote by Richard Nixon) The media totally ignored the battle of Hue (a massacre), which involed the pre-meditated murder over over 200 government and law enforcement people in that town, that was planned over at least 5 months, and spelled the strategy the communists wanted to use for the rest of the war (the communists also assasinated anyone else that fancied their agenda in that battle)?

And the media worshipped Walter Cronkite, who apparently believed in world government? He almost ran for office? OMG!

No political movement should involve narco terror tactics?

4922. 2010 Newest Ugg Meridian Boots

Some friends complain to me that the ugg tall boots are too tall for them. Do you have the same problem? If you think you are not tall enough to wear ugg classic tall boots, please choose ugg classic short or you will look much shorter and stupid. There are mang ugg short boots in the same fashion style as the tall ones.

Take Ugg women's Meridian for example, it looks like that it is the short edition of Capstone. There are many things in commom between them. Both of their uppers are made of waterproof full grain leather and water-resistant nylon which is to keep out the slushiest snow and biting winter wind. And emovable/replaceable sheepskin sockliner helps keeping your feet warm and dry and extends the life of the boot. But there are some special designs in Meridian. Such as: exposed sheepskin cuff and pom-pom ensure a perfect fit. Exclusive Vibram outsole designed specifically for UGG Australia utilizing the TCI wet/snow compound.

Repeating outsole lug pattern maximizes surface contact and provides flexibility at the foots natural flex points. With it, you needn't worry about falling in cold winter any

Fly over to Thailand...Jomtien Beach Garden Condo has great biscuits I hear...Some whore is selling them off her 10th floor balcony at a discount to any old sod alcoholic expat that dares to enter into her lair...just make sure your debit card & pin number isn't in your wallet...If it is you can bet it won't be when you land; expecting biscuits but instead end up "eating pavement"...Welcome to

The Mobile Black Box V6000 FM Transmitter with the single USB Power & Audio Cable input would look like the best and simplest way to connect to a PC. ~$100
http://www.mobileblackbox.com/content/view/40/75/
* Comes with a 17" Telescoping Antenna

NOTE - If you cannot cover the inside of your Home; the V6000 has the 'optional provision' to attach a 33" External Telescoping Antenna with a Magnetic Base and a 10 Foot Coax Cable to allow you to Receive the FM Signal within every Room of your Home. ~$10

-source- Mobile Black Box, Ontario, California (USA)
IMHO these work much better for PC base FM
Transmitter applications then the C.Crane units.

During a Conelrad Alert, all stations would drop their carriers for a moment, except for any stations on 640 and/or 1240.

We got about two inches of rain here yesterday and last night.It is still drizzling outside right now.Maybe we got more than two inches of rain, I will wait and see/hear what the local tv weather people say later on today.There is more rain heading this way too, look at the weather map on the internet.Suppose to get up to about 69 degrees here today,or 69 degrees, depending on which one of those weather reports is accurate. www.wxusa.com/wx1/Jackson-MS.htm

In Astoria, we had two stations, one on 1230 and one on 1370. During a test, the one on 1230 was required to drop carrier for 30 seconds. The one on 1370, in event of an actual alert, was supposed to retune to 1240. Don't know why the FCC did it that way, but they did.

When I started working at WEAM-1390 in Arlington in the 1970s, there was a large (but by then disabled) relay system for switching the Gates BC-5E transmitter to Conelrad operation.

By the way, speaking of December 7th, there is an amateur radio connection to the interception of the Japanese "Winds" message presaging the Pearl Harbor attack:

I didn't want to post this on the Usenet group for fear of being tagged as a perpetual idiot at my age, but after throwing caution to the wind, here we go..

When you hear a station at 6924 AM, is that the regular old AM band, as in pre-FM car radio?

Or, is it part of the SW bands?

I'm using an ancient Hallicrafters S-108, and getting an exact frequency just doesn't happen often.

Part of the SW bands. Say, 6924 kHz or 6.924 MHz.

I have an old Reader's Digest book here, I bought it at a Goodwill store not many years ago.There is a story/article (true or not, I don't know) in that Reader's Digest book that I read.
That story/article is about a few years before the attack on Pearl Harbor December 7,1941, U.S.Navy ''rehearsed'' the attack on Pearl Harbor.There were some Japanese people in Hawaii and other Islands and areas and they paid very close attention to what U.S.Navy did.

You might find that story/article on the internet.Look around for it.

I have a rain gage I bought at the Goodwill store a bunch of years ago, I wont leave it out in my yard though because some SOB would probally steal it.

On second thought, maybe it was at WLBT TV when Alon Bee was the tv weather guy there back in the 1950s.One of his sponsors was Seale Lilly Icecream.Every day on tv, he would eat a spoonfull of that real good Seale Lilly Icecream.He was the very best tv weather man guy.

Screw Woodie Assaf!!!!!! That arab SOB used to make fun of Yazoo City, he used to say, Yazroo City.I Hope that SOB is roasting in HELL! him and that grey suit and that big ass clipboard he always had stuck under his arm, HUMPH!!!

Nowadays, the best tv weather news guy in this area is David Hartman at www.WAPT.com channel 16

Dave,

One wonders whether you are making an :

? Offer to Sell ?
-or-an-
? Offer to Buy ?

given your public 'advocacy'

It is not up to tax payers to offer "choice" to women when they fail to live up to their own personal responsibilities as citizens, this is not negotiable. Those politicians who advocate such policies reflect great dishonor on their positions of public office and the United States of America.

Just like using "Tarp" money for new spending packages to create "jobs" is also dishonorable spending. The problem is not that banks or businesses do not have the money, it is that we don't know how we are going to spend it. If I don't know what the health care and energy policies are going to cost me, and it is all too apparent that US politicians are more interested in election rather than business cycles, I have no incentive to create jobs or a business.

Americans are fed up with "climate data" from corrupt US scientific and British organizations (where are the other countrie's data?), fed up with social security funds vanishing into thin air, and fed up with "stimulous shovel ready projects" when even fuel taxes vanish into thin air, and are not used for their intended purposes?

How can you apply for a business loan when you can not produce a business plan? When politicians are willing to sacrifice business losses for election results, there are no winners. It is dishonorable that there are union bail out packages in the health care bill. If citizens want to volunteer into some kind of basic medical care package offered by the government that is equal to the lowest paying insurance option (and not under cut it), then they could implement that as easy as making a choice on their W4, or qualify for a government backed health care "loan" instead of lottery insurance system that only encourages fraud, inflation, and a mentality that we all have unlimited credit cards.

When the ratio of health care expenses is more than the costs of eating a decent, healthy meal with all the recommended nutrients three times a day, the problem is not the health care system, it is the economic theories, stupid? The way to fix economic problems is not through world government, but through world agreement such as implementing the banning of ozone depleting chemicals through cheap, affordable, and plentiful alternatives.

Choking the financial system with real estate, commodity, and labor "bubbles" only lends to more chaos, and the wary eye on the uneducated who may fall prey to simplified lies that are easily distorted by a media with a wealth of experience doing so? If the world can agree that your currency accurately reflects an hour of wage, you will have met a bench mark?

Freedom isn't free, because you do not experience freedom, unless you understand what you can accomplish for yourself? The less government involves itself with its citizens, the less blame it can take? When science makes claims that the ordinary citizen or local scientist can not prove independently, then the possible economic destruction risks of government interference poses more of a danger than the zealot fears of ego minded scientists who have their financial gains at heart?

The UN was corrupt enough to allow Saddam to siphon billions, and we are supposed to risk getting our lights turned off or loose our jobs if we have a personal financial emergency of only a few hundred dollars?

Temporary Contractor Barack Hasan Obama and the Democrat Party, mmmm, mmmm, mmmm.

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

If you are going to make abortion tax payer funded, then stop collecting Social Security taxes, because obviously the money will not be there? Why stop there, after all, starvation is the natural selection process of evolution, why provide food stamps to the inferior gene pool?

Isn't that the logic of Senator Reed, when he alluded to the Nazis, and his plan for eliminating freedom in the private sector through "competition"? Is that what he was talking about?

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called

a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals

and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Yeah, just ignore India, Russia and China buying up gold reserves? Or is the Glenn Beck audience really 2 billion people?

I hear him disclaim that he is a paid spokesman every day, so I believe you have your viewpoint wrong.

I have a new lens on Squidoo which talks about Shortwave listening. Even though it has been awhile since I touched my Grundig G4000A, I decided since Squidoo is offering me a chance to put up a site selling products from Amazon.com, I thought I'd better try.So I have a good selection of portable Shortwave Radios to sell for Amazon.com. And I also have the WRTH and the last edition of Passport to World Band Radio. So if you are willing to just look and perhaps buy, I would sure appreciate it. I hope I can make a little money on this site.

The site domain is www.squidoo.com/Short_Wave_radio

But according to you it was a moral imperative to randomly invade some country and kill thousands of our troops. It was a moral imperative to spending trillions on new weapons systems that don't work. It was a moral imperative to keep the defense industry humming no matter what.

So you oppose not spending money and getting a working health care system. You supported spending billions in failed wars. Does that make any sense?

But according to you it was a moral imperative to randomly invade some country and kill thousands of our troops. It was a moral imperative to spending trillions on new weapons systems that don't work. It was a moral imperative to keep the defense industry humming no matter what.

So you oppose not spending money and getting a working health care system. You supported spending billions in failed wars. Does that make any sense?

There is a way to calibrate the Bandspread dial. Example: set Bandspread to 100. Tune main dial to WWV on 10 Mc. Get a shortwave guidebook of some kind, and as you tune the Bandspread make a chart of the big stations and their Bandspread number vs their actual frequency.
Use this approach for all SWBC bands.

When I did a www.devilfinder.com last night for the TV Ears, one of those websites said there is a wired version.I might go that route, I know how to run a wire.

I have a bunch of old wired speakers here, small ones and big ones.If I plug one of them into one of the Audio Out jacks on my Sony Wega Trinitron 27 inch flat screen CRT tv set, will that work ok?
I just can't stand to wear headphones or earbuds.

I am working on my front porch, Swing Your Lady movie is on the TCM channel.I HAD to step inside and crank the volume up.

(courtesy copy, pending article...)

Sure, Democrats will have their cake and eat it too next year? Urine Cake? Does the phrase "Swear to do no harm" mean anything? So let me guess Rep. Boxer, with your female "erection" that you get when you think about abortion(?), let's not talk about the character of young Christian men in America who do not walk up to God and instead of saying "thank you for the child", they tell God that he made a mistake?

Since when do tax payers expect to be responsible for the civil responsibilities that are common sense expectations? Do men get a "choice" about what "their" bodies are doing? Hey, my sperm went for a walk and that woman stole it? And you had how many years to prepare for that moment? Don't give me your righteous lectures?

Democrats don't give a damn about life, it is about their $175 a year salary, with 3 staff offices and million dollar budgets, who depend on young men and women experimenting with drugs, getting pregnant, dropping out of high school, and then get fat welfare checks from the government?

Yes we can? Or No You Won't?

That's not Democracy, that's tyranny when you use psychological warfare tools on your own citizens? God opens the ears of the oppressed, and there is nothing that evil can do about it.

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of

terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Passing out little "black books", rubber gloves and lubricants to 14 year old public school children (Rush pronounce school as "screw all") the education "safety czar" has your kid's emotional boundaries in mind to prevent the thoughts of abusing drugs or dropping out of school for emotional issues?

Personally, I don't believe queers are honest about why they are queer, they rehearse as many lies as they can tell themselves to paint a picture in the skulls full of mush that they encounter, which makes them very useful as political operatives - they already know how to rehearse and tell lies?

That's why you see so many Demo Crap queers in politics? And they are full of hate because they committed self inflicted mental injuries to the point where they think about committing suicide on a daily basis?

Keep your damn pedophile agenda away from children, I see no reason to support a public school system that festers drug use, and creates wards of the state that are high school drop outs.

That does not mean that all queers are intolerable, I don't agree, I don't trust, their life style. Yet if it comes down to electing a queer female mayor who is fiscally restrained over a straight male who will spend as much as he can, who would you vote for?

In other words, I don't care what you do in the bedroom but leave me and my kids out of informing me about it?

This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

5002. Rep. Scott Garett, (R) NJ just made a fool out of Barney Franks?

12/9/09 21:55 (aprx on CSPAN) Barney Franks was so outraged, he had to call a "rise" and then minutes later interjected that someone should notify the consumer protection agency that they got ripped off because he did not like the definition of the word "socialism" in the dictionary!

Listening to these Democrats lie makes vomit come up in your throat? The Republicans deserve Purple Hearts?

Americanism is letting businesses fail, so tax payers are not ripped off, Americanism is about not wondering what new taxes and regulations are coming around the corner? Snap out of your spell?

I got it on video too, (wink, wink)!

Homosexuals are angry liars?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

Democrats don't want to explain how they are going to regulate the pay of not a bank CEO, but a bank teller, what credit instruments you can get your hands on, and many more things, and the most instructive object of his discussion was the effect of a "political economy" where you have to contact some queer in Washington to stay in business (paraphrasing, his example about Barney Franks "saving" jobs)?

How does the media expect us to ignore all this? Ignore sweet heart deal with the auto workers union? This guy is slick AND polite? I don't think I could hold my vomit back, thank you Rep. Hensarling!

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

The same thing that they will do when the 47 thousand barrels containing nuclear waste dumped off the coast of California start leaking.

It should be interesting.

Interesting, isn't it, that arguably the worst and most stereotypically nasty, foul-mouthed, and crime-encouraging figure on the "racial right" turns out to have been almost entirely a bought and paid for creature of the regime in Washington.

When I investigated the blowhard rhetoric -- and utterly fictional manufactured "news" items -- that Hal Turner turned out, it became obvious to me that there was something phony about the man. At that point, I encouraged all responsible European-American activists to keep many miles between Turner and themselves and to scrupulously avoid giving him any publicity.

So far as I am concerned, such financing and running of phony leaders and organizations by the Washington regime is utterly illegal and unconstitutional. Such acts poison the free and open political discourse that is supposed to characterize self-government.

With all good wishes,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

5015. LiveJournal: Libel, Lessig, Lies!

LiveJournal is a safe haven for defamation, libel, and pedophilia.

Until nearly a year ago, LiveJournal did nothing about the NUMEROUS pedophile journals hosted there. Many were deleted, along with “fan fiction” blogs to make it appear as though pedophiles were not being targeted.

LiveJournal, now owned by Russian company <SUP> still supports libelous and defamatory content. Why? Because content means traffic, and traffic means revenue. <SUP> is interested in nothing but revenue.

They have “safe harbor” as long as they comply with DMCA notices, so their only worry might be having to disclose a subscriber’s identity.

They allow just about anything defamatory to stand: accusations of child trafficking and abuse, as well as fabricated criminal histories.

LiveJournal also misrepresents the membership of its advisory board. One person who had been defamed by LiveJournal contacted Harvard Law Professor Lawrence Lessig, whose name appeared on LiveJournal’s site as a member of their advisory board. Lessig’s office replied, apologetically, that Lessig was no longer a member.

Tupshin Harper, who managed LiveJournal for several years, has been replaced by Angelika Petrochenko. Even though Harper was more than tolerant of libel and defamation, and he was the one who steered LiveJournal through the pedophilia minefield, his bottom line did not satisfy the new owners.

It is not clear what Petrochenko can, or will, do. Advertisers are disgusted by LiveJournal’s policies, and are canceling complete campaigns, often based on what they see on a single journal.

Welcome back Kevin. I was watching the bru-ha on Turner, i couldn't help but think of the Sons of A. on the FX network. this years story ran a Turner type, that in the end, the guys found out he was in bed with the FBI. so, TV = real life, who'd thunk? and what does that tell ya about Turners buddy Combs? his type always go for the money.

Acehole did the stirring and did so at every opportunity.

How's the bike? I picked up a used '05 883 Sportster. The rubber mounting makes a completely new machine out of the species. The thing is downright civilized compared to the '75 xlh parked next to it.

Actually, that's not exactly the case.

Bike is fast and smooth in the cold weather. Took it out after the snowfall, yesterday. Very brisk riding.

As it should be.

Still haven't moved on the Road King, but that will come next year. Unless PowerMotor Sports makes a deal on that Guzzi California.

Had a friend of a friend take a flyer off a balcony in Bangkok supposedly with no one in the room. Funny that (not really), seeing how he was seen going into the hotel/condo with a few whores, but I guess they ended up with another client on another floor. Easy to figure, slip the punter a mickie and rip him off, then throw him overboard so he can't report the crime. Hey, who's Pinkie and where's the party?

Pinkie, has long since left this group, and I only see nurk's post if someone makes the mistake of replying to him.

I like Guzzi. The shaft drive is great. The local Harley shops charge 1100 dollars to replace the rear belts on some models of the Big Twin. Engineering at it's worst.

The rear wheel has to come out. Then the swing arm. The complete primary cover also comes off, along with the clutch and primary chain.

It's over a half day labour. The belt is approx. 300 dollars.

I'll bet a lot of owners will be considering their options when trade in time happens.

You mean Ru$h Limpballs who got caught taking unprescribed viagra to a country known for she-male child hookers?! The leader of the hypocritical do-nothing party of NO who sides with the Taliban to destroy the country?!

Sofar, Limpballs has said that ...

I grew up in Scottsdale, AZ, in the 1960s. I've known about "fisting" since I was a teenager. Even so, I have never participated.

Which begs the question; "what's your point?"

I deal with the factory shop in Milwaukee. They've been saying since the belt first appeared that they don't even stock it because breakages are so rare.

SB PROP ARL ARLP051
ARLP051 Propagation de K7RA

Finally! A sunspot appeared on Wednesday, December 9, giving us a daily sunspot number of 13. This followed 16 days of no sunspots, and again on December 10 the sunspot number was 13. The new group is number 1034, and it is a solar Cycle 24 spot, as all sunspots have been since number 1016 on April 29-30, 2009.

This weekend is the annual ARRL 10-Meter Contest. Will there be enough sunspot activity to enhance 10-meter propagation? The latest prediction for solar flux shows it rising 75-77 on December 11-12, and staying at 77 through December 17, which probably correlates with the new sunspot moving toward the center of the solar disk.

To significantly raise the MUF to enhance 10 meter signals over most paths takes more sunspot activity than we are seeing this week, although every bit helps. But this contest often depends on sporadic-E skip and the effect of ionized meteor trails during the Geminids meteor shower, which should reach a peak just a few hours after the contest ends on Sunday. Geminids meteor showers have intensified with each passing year as Earth moves deeper into the debris stream from extinct comet 3200 Phaethon.

Back in Propagation Forecast Bulletin ARLP005 earlier this year (see http://www.arrl.org/w1aw/prop/2009-arlp005.html) we reproduced a letter written 34 years ago by Ed Tilton, W1HDQ, the originator of this bulletin. Ed talked about meteor enhanced 10 meter propagation during this contest.

We were watching the current sunspot move toward the horizon a few days ago, via the STEREO spacecraft (http://stereo.gsfc.nasa.gov/) and wished the whole Sun were visible, which should happen in 2010. Currently STEREO sees about 86% of the Sun. It should reach 90% on June 29, 2010 between 0027-0040 UTC, and 95% coverage on October 12, 2010 between 1252-1259 UTC.

A view of real time MUF maps at http://www.spacew.com/www/realtime.php shows that during daylight over low latitudes the MUF is going above 10 meters over the past couple of days.

A couple of 160 meter notes since the recent contest:

Randy Whiting, KC9KHG of Woodstock, Illinois says he upgraded to General class in March 2007, and at the time told locals he was putting up a 160 meter inverted V with a 60 foot apex. They told him he would work only two or three hundred miles.

The week before last he worked KC7YM in Wyoming, a distance of 1,079 miles between their stations. Then December 3 he worked G3JMJ, a distance of 3,971 miles. Both were on CW.

Markus Hansen, VE7CA of North Vancouver, British Columbia writes, "Wow, conditions were amazing during the recent ARRL 160 meter Contest. I was amazed how easy it was to work NH, RI, DE, MD VA, NC and GA from my QTH here on the west coast. I am only running 100 watts and a very weird shaped 160 meters loop strung around my city-sized lot. The KH6s were bending my S meter in the mornings at sunrise and JA3YBK was pounding in at well over S9 at 1434Z Sunday AM. Good fun!"

Hans Goldschmidt, SM5KI says he is 82 years old and has been a ham over six decades. He is in the center of Stockholm, and "really was shocked when I put up in a nearby low tree an end fed half-wave wire, the feedpoint only 1.5 meters above the ground. Right away I was in a 50 minute long QSO with a station in North Carolina. My signals S7-9! There seems to be a daily window around 1300Z to the Eastern US States on 14 MHz and I can work K8SL and others daily with S7-9."

"In the morning on 14 MHz we have the usual winter conditions and the band is completely dead right now until about 0700Z. Still the same, last week I worked daily SU9HP, a Swede on holidays down there, on 14 at 0730Z with Q5 signals every morning, when there was almost no other signal to be heard on the band."

"I say this because despite black-outs and the present sunspot minimum conditions, you may still find a useful path to some DX spot on the globe. Sometimes it is easier to find a rare DX on a dead band. There is also less QRM as the competing stations have given up even to try."

"Years ago I was shocked to hear on 14 MHz two stations, not too strong, on a completely dead band during a blackout, talking, what it seems to be locally. They were in YJ8 and we had an unexpected QSO. Similar QSOs occurred in the past and many were near the equator. Whatever THAT means?"

"Finally a suggestion: Do not give up using the DX-bands just because they seem to be dead. There may be short selective openings to some parts of the globe. Do not rely on those awful DX clusters but LISTEN, LISTEN!"

Thanks, Hans! Good advice.

I think the tallest/highest hill in malarial climate (malarial climate Mississippi, what is that? It is cold weather outside and it is also raining, suppose to get up to about 72 degrees next Monday. www.wxusa.com/wx1/Jackson-MS.htm ) Mississippi is only about 800 something feet tall/high.I haven't been to that hill, but I think that hill is more than tall/high enough to suit me.

I recently read somewhere that the mosquitos in America have built up a defense against mosquito insecticides.
Don't forget, there are a lot of mosquitos in California too, in fact, all over America.

An excellent synopsis of conjecture in the absence of admission by the parties involved. In fact one could view the apathy of Congress as an admission they do not want to do their jobs by allowing the Executive Branch to keep creating new agencies -- hence a new loophole that makes it hard for the average American to put any blame on Congress? Also it is more advantageous to put such agencies under the Executive Branch since they are "safe" for four years instead of only 2 years in their talking media head thinking?

At stake is literally the freedom of all citizens in countries all over the world, the potential loss of any democratic and conservative gains in Russia and China, or Iran?

Here is a preview article (probably being published in January) which has associated relevance to this article -- and the central push that will defeat both the Democrats and Mr. Obama (who for some reason signs his last name in remarkable similarity to the Anti-Christ sign, by intentionally drawing the letter b inside the o?)

Courtesy preview copy (article to be uploaded soon to www.radiotalkingpoints.com, and other web sites):

No More of the Status Quo by Democrats that threatens National Security

GDP growth is 4%, government spending growth has increased to 12% per year, with an expected economic collapse in 10 years at this rate? We will not tolerate any more of this spending "status quo" by the Democrats? Resistance is futile. The technical and biological uniqueness of the Democrats will be assimilated by the Truth, they will comply!

We expect the Republicans to limit increases in government growth to less than one third of GDP percentage increases. For example is the GDP is 15 trillion dollars, then any government spending in excess of $200 billion dollars would be viewed as a threat to national security and a violation of both House and Senate Ethical rules? When the American public ties the GDP to the rate of government spending, only then will Americans defeat the communist media in America?

Limiting taxes and spending equals more GDP, and that generates more revenue for the government? Why would government employees cheer the destruction of their country if they know these things to be true? Ooooops there it is, oooooops there it went, Speaker Pelosi bombing

America with financial gravity bombs in a gulf stream jet? Have a nice day in the Palin War Room -- they were standing in the hole -- waiting for something to develop, and WHAP - she got elected.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

The key to national security in America will be to hammer the public into realizing that government growth in spending can never exceed 30 percent of the GDP growth rate, or no more than 200 billion dollars a year if the GDP is 15 trillion dollars, and that would roughly mean no more than $300 billion dollars in defense spending credit increases if the budget is limited to pay back all creditors within two years?

Have a nice day in the Palin War Room -- they were standing in the hole -- waiting for something to develop, and WHAP - she got elected.

We expect the Republicans to limit increases in government growth to less than one third of GDP percentage increases. For example is the GDP is 15 trillion dollars, then any government spending in excess of $200 billion dollars would be viewed as a threat to national security and a violation of both House and Senate Ethical rules?

Limiting taxes and spending equals more GDP, and that generates more revenue for the government? Why would government employees cheer the destruction of their country if they know these things to be true?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that

believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply

complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

I built a big flower box (painted it green and white with Valspar paint) for my propane tank, for some heat for my storage room/workshop.I also bought a new 20,000 BTU propane heater at Arender Plumbing on Highway 80.I drilled some holes in a piece of plywood (for the top of my flower box) and I stuck some artificial plastic flowers I bought at Walmart into the holes.It looks cute, if I do say so meself.

Not really. I've only seen one belt lose a few teeth and that was on a really neglected bike. The rear belts they are changing are being done on the Harley recommended schedule. HD tried using primary belts a few years back, with predictable, heat related failures. A totally enclose primary will do that.

It isn't Harley alone that makes me wonder. It's all engineering staff. I wandered around a car salvage yard a while back. It's amazing how many cars make it extremely difficult to get at the timing belt.

On a Ford, the stupid belt was blocked by two other layers of belts and pulleys. It was more work to get at the thing than the actual change.

A friend's Chev had to have the spark plugs changed. It is a V6, front wheel drive. You can not get at the three rear plugs without removing the coil pack first. There are two plastic fuse holder boxes, one on either side of the engine compartment. The problems only arise when you actually have to change a fuse.

The two diagonal supporting struts that go to the front of the car block off access to both covers. They have to be loosened and swung out of the way.

Just the thing for a dark night fuse change.

The wind shield wiper fluid container is of a flattish design. It is bolted in tight against the top of the battery and completely covers it. To me, a battery is a maintenance item and should be accessible. GM appears to think it's not necessary.

Access to headlight bulbs is also ridiculous. Too many cars make it extremely difficult to get at the plug in sockets. On my last Toyota, the battery had to be removed in order to get at the thing. Strangely, the Toyota used German H4 halogens and Michelin tires. A friend's new VW tdi has Chinese bulbs.

(I do not know the source of this letter)

A father passing by his son's bedroom was astonished to see that his bed was nicely made and everything was picked up. Then he saw an Envelope, propped up prominently on the pillow that was addressed to 'Dad.'

With the worst premonition he opened the envelope with trembling hands and read the letter.

Dear Dad:

It is with great regret and sorrow that I'm writing you. I had to elope with my new girlfriend because I wanted to avoid a scene with Mom and you.

I have been finding real passion with Stacy and she is so nice.

But I knew you would not approve of her because of all her piercings, tattoos, tight motorcycle clothes and the fact that she is much older than I am. But it' s not only the passion...Dad, she's pregnant.

Stacy said that we will be very happy.

She owns a trailer in the woods and has a stack of firewood for the whole winter. We share a dream of having many more children.

Stacy has opened my eyes to the fact that marijuana doesn't really hurt anyone. We'll be growing it for ourselves and trading it with the other people that live nearby for cocaine and ecstasy.

In the meantime we will pray that science will find a cure for AIDS so Stacy can get better. She deserves it.

Don't worry Dad. I'm 15 and I know how to take care of myself.

Someday I'm sure that we will be back to visit so that you can get to know your grandchildren.

Love, Your Son John

PS. Dad, none of the above is true. I'm over at Tommy's house.

I Just wanted to remind you that there are worse things in life than the lousy Report card that's in my desk drawer.

I love you.

Call me when it's safe to come home.

The UGG Knightsbridge boot is one of UGG's tall boots. The wide toe box and boxy heel is right in line with this year's casual styles. The multi-color side zipper makes them easy to step into,adds a fashion accent to the boot,and the selection of colors includes some of UGG's most popular-black,espresso,chestnut and tan. The UGG Knightsbridge has a slimmer leg than the UGG classic shoes,and this makes the UGG Knightsbridge a great choice for wear with skirts,sundresses and other leg showoffs.

UGG may be one of the most in vogue styles of boot ever. However,there is more to UGG Knightsbridge than style and great looks. The level of comfort provided by UGG Knightsbridge is unparalleled but other stylish boots. This combination of style and comfort is why the UGG Knightsbridge has become so popular.

You should see what it takes to change a belt on a 308. No wonder they pray at the factory.

Not unlike my V-6 Caravans. I wondered how the engineers expected techs to get at the rear bank for things like plugs, and auto valve lash adjusters. Until I watched them at the dealer...they put the vehicle on a lift. From the rear, below, everything was directly accessible.

Unlike the Vega. The back plugs were so recessed, they pulled the engine and tranny to get at the rear two plugs for a tune-up.

My Envoy is like that. But the only thing under the hood are relays and engine fuses. The general electrics are in two fuse boxes within the cab.

Now, changing the serpentine belt couldn't be easier. There's a 1/2" drive hole on the tensioner. Plug a breaker bar into the hole, release the tension, the belt slips off. Put the new belt in place, pull the bar, again, slip the belt back on the tensioner. Done. 3 minutes.

And the rest of that drive train is as easily accessed.

Nice that it took them so long to 'get it,' but apparently, GM engineers finally thought about things like serviceability.

The trouble is that when sales are off, the only things that keeps the retailers alive are the service bays. If they make it too easy for the owner, they put themselves out of business.

> Just the thing for a dark night fuse change.

My Caravans had a light under the hood for night repairs.

Mostly, it's not. With the way those engines are shoehorned in to the bay, space for things like washer reservoirs is tight. Most batteries, today are maintenance free (a misnomer, but let's go with it for now.) The only time you need to touch one is when there's something wrong with it, and it needs to be replaced.

Unlike my Studes, I've not touched a battery in a contemporary car in years. No need. And nothing to be done if there was.

LOL. Now, there's a difference I've noticed right away. The bulbs in my Chryslers were commonly available, and accessible, and replaceable by loosening a retainer ring on the back of the headlight assembly. Not tools required, or possible. Two minutes I could replace both headlights.

My Envoy isn't much more difficult than that.

Even my BMW two wheeler is tool free for the headlamp. But that H4 is a PITA to track down. So, I have to keep them in stock. One at the house, one in the tool kit on the bike.

Plug, adjust and roll.

But Germans are like that. My 450SE was easy to service. I had to change a belt wheel. Took the front of the car off to get at it, but I reassembled it in the dark and didn't have a washer left over. It only went together the correct way. The 190 SL is like that, too. And VW Type One is similarly simple. Dr Porsche was a master of elegant engineering, and if he could have pulled it off, there would have only been one moving part in the whole drive train. Service was simple, with common tools.

I'm wondering what the current crop of hybrids is going to be like to wrench. With fatal voltages floating around, I"m not sure there's going to be much self-service potential.

It did. It just did it when no one cared.

What killed HD radio was the application of digital satellite TV technology to home audio. Someone realized that you could take a "song" and make a computer file out of it that contained the same data as a CD image in one tenth the space.

This lead to CD players that played home burnt CD-ROMs with these files on them, which lead to devices with hard drives that fit in your pocket.

Eventually hard disks became replaced with solid state (semiconductor) memory, resulting in small cheap players.

The result of having small cheap players and availablity of programing material is that people choose what they listen to and when. Except for talk and news radio it does not matter when you listen to a program, which is why they still exist on radio. Neither requires the high fidelity, etc of HD radio.

Note that the MP3 or as the enhanced ones are called "MP4" players sold here mostly have FM radios, but not AM. The rapid adoption of these players here led Israel radio to move their foreign language news (English, Russian, Arabic, Ethiopian, French, etc) to an FM only channel.

5116. Democrat controlled US Government spending up 24% in 2 years?

If the GDP growth rate is 4% per year (the US) and your ideal federal tax growth rate should be 17% of that 4% (we assume state tax will occupy another 13% or so), and no more than 30% (or limited to credit that can be paid back in 2 years) why are Democrats and Republicans growing government programs by 24% in two years when the GDP does not allow for it?

At 15 trillion dollars of GDP, you can't increase spending by more than $200 billion dollars to stay within expected tax ratios, and Mr. Obama has increased spending by 7 times that rate, and with a second major spending package at the end of the year, the United States is spending government money at 14 times the rate ever attempted at any time in history in just one year? If you counted two years it would be much more?

This is the financial equivalent of inflation, only through indirect taxing, and that is why job growth will freeze?

Is the result of alcohol, and we need to turn this big boat around?

If citizens have no where to go, what makes you think we are just going to be silent and not say anything, or not work hard to get these people out of office?
Are they trying to throw us out of our houses by crushing us financially?

Well holy Jeebus, man! If deficit spending was so bad then, for f-ing sake why is it just peachy now? I remember recently the Democrats and other leftist wingnuts nearly exploded with rage and vile hatred every time Bush spent a dime, and now they are willing to drop a trillion in debt every few months or so.

Yeah, well, Bush did not write the Congressional Budget, that's why the title of the post began with the word Democrat?

Things are not peachy, and I don't give a darn if a Republican or a Democrat is in office, I am not going to be silent when government spending is approaching 30 times the tolerable level of expected spending limits, and they are threatening to "create jobs" by destroying your personal freedoms incrementally?

Out of control spending? So why isn't Glenn Beck demanding that spending increases be limited to no more than $200 billion a year, or with a target range of 17 to 30% of the GDP growth rate? You hear about the size of the spending, but he never wants to talk about the RATIO of spending and what it should be?

I wonder why? And he has his eyes on occupying the White House?

So it's OK to spend trillions of dollars that we don't have during the Bush administration, they had the biggest deficit in history but that is good debt. Today's debt, administered by the evil dems, is bad debt even though we are using that debt to create businesses and jobs.

Oh, yeah, and don't look behind the curtain, you might see banks repaying the government for money they got to keep them going. We just got $24 billion from Chase.

That was definitely a factor, but "HD radio" was not only doomed from the start, it was such a serious blunder that it may well lead to the death of thousands of radio stations and the permanent stunting of the industry itself.

There is nothing wrong with the concept of digital radio.

Using modern firmware-upgradeable codecs, orthogonal FDM transmission, and a network of community transmitters in a dedicated digital band, great things could have been done:

1. In every community, all signals would have been full-quieting with no noise or multipath distortion. There would have been no more disparity in signal or noise levels between 50-kW powerhouses and 250-Watt locals or 10-Watt student stations -- all would have had perfect, full-quieting signals within the community's coverage area.

2. There would have been no more need for any licensees to sign off or go to absurdly low power at night as obtains presently among AM stations. And former AM stations would no longer suffer from crippling skywave interference at night.

3. Depending on how much spectrum was allocated and the ratio of talk to music programming (with their different bit rates), at least four to eight times as many stations could have been allocated to each community as now exist, leaving open the possibility of free and independent public access and non-profit "free radio" style programming, greatly expanding listening choices (and points of view in news programming) for everyone.

4. As stations migrated to the new band, _even more_ channels would become open on the existing AM and FM bands, making them more listenable and viable again and allowing even _more_ space for non-profits and those who want to broadcast for the love of it instead of just for monetary gain.

Digital community-transmitter-based radio in a dedicated digital band thus could have been a tremendous success and a revolutionary improvement.

But we didn't get real digital radio.

Instead we got IBOC (In-Band On-Channel, now deceptively labeled "HD radio"), a technical turkey which delivers almost none of the benefits above and increases interference to boot.

Why did this happen?

Because the money-men didn't _want_ the benefits of item (1) above. They already owned the 50-kW powerhouses. They didn't want the 10-Watt student station to suddenly have an equal signal to theirs. They didn't want the mono AM daytimer to suddenly have 20-kHz digital stereo with no audible noise and be on 24 hours a day as in item (2).

And the money-men didn't _want_ dozens of new independent channels to be available to listeners as in item (3) above.

So they chose IBOC, where the digital signal piggybacks on top of the existing analogue signal, right on the same frequency. IBOC gives distinctly inferior results. IBOC causes significant interference. IBOC on AM is unlistenable and very nearly useless.

But IBOC gave the money-men the one thing they wanted most of all: It preserves the inferiority of the smaller broadcasters. In fact, amid a sea of IBOC hash from the big boys, it _accentuates_ their inferiority.

The end result of this shortsightedness will be bankruptcy for many stations, fewer and poorer choices for the listeners as conglomerates gobble up the remains, and a huge migration away from AM and FM broadcasts and to audio delivery via satellite and the Internet.

With all good wishes,

Kevin Alfred Strom.

And, as always, don't let your children attend the Sullivan College of Technology & Design.

They've hired at least one dufus who once claimed to have a PhD and lied about being arrested, and who knows, there may be more dufi there.

Slightly incorrect! In checking my records, what I heard on 25 January was the President's Republic Day Address which apparently airs the day before Republic Day, which is January 26.

Hey, comparing Krypsis with Mr Hankey is an insult to Terds everywhere. I love Mr Hankey, the South Park Christmas Terd with the high pitched voice that comes up out of the sewer every Christmas Eve to wish all of South Park good tidings and good cheer. He also dances around the houses leaving brown spots from Hell to Breakfast all over the walls, floors, and fixtures and singing about the joys of the Holiday season. Krypto is the Grinch that stole every day of the week!... Yeppers, Krypto can not hold a candle to Mr Hankey; here's a better comparison...

Krypto = cold diahrea on a cheap paper plate

Mr Hankey = A golden "tape measure" on a sterling silver platter

No Alter Ego here, sorry!

Translation: He got elected to BECOME a fat cat banker, by taking your money, your kids money, and your grand kids money?

That's the status quo for the Democrats, right?

You actually pay these people to come up with brilliant slogans?

Dang, that must be fun!

Have a great day in the Obama "center for loosing the election" technology center at the White House, suite "Palin War Room"?

Ah, OK. Yeah, I had a feeling it was going to go down the way it did.
The Bengals have got by with smoke and mirrors. They can beat the teams they should (more often than not)....but when I saw the schedule and seen they had to go "to" Minnesota and then to San Diego - - that isn't going to bode well for them.

I didn't know you resided up there. I really enjoy watching the Vikings, I've watched them I think, four times this season. I've always liked Favre so I'm hoping for Minnesota to reak havoc in the playoffs.

Here's a trivia question and answer for you.:-)
Who and when was the team Brett Favre ever played against in the NFL?
Answer. - Against the Bengals. If I remember right, the Green Bay starter got hurt and the Bengals had a pretty good lead going into the 4th quarter and Favre brought them back for a win. I think I'm right in saying that. No one would have ever thought it was the beginning of a HOF career.

HD radio IS a big loser. The problem is it's still here and will

My little doggy can't eat solid meat.If she does, a little while later she will puke it up.

Last Sunday when my sister came over here with some leftover frozen food and also mainly to see if I am alive and kicking, some of that food was frozen ground chuck meat patties.I phoned her a couple of days later,
What kind of meat was that? it sure was Good.
I didn't see any frozen ground chuck meat patties in the Walmart store

Neither. They'll look at the dismal sales curve for the receivers and the

It's already taking place. Clear Channel and Citadel are pulling the plug on HD transmitters in some markets, just to save on electricity.
And nobody is complaining..

5173. Nothing sexy about your torture of the American People Mr. President

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

Torture works

You see when the American People experience the torture of taxes and the invasion of privacy contemplated by the Democrat Party, they will have never wished they had trusted the juvenile, deceptive media to promote this agenda of disaster on the world?

Do you really think it is sexy Mr. President that we will have "government employees" (acorn thugs who can't get a real job) wandering around the neighborhoods, but instead of casing what houses to break into and rob, or where other criminal activities might succeed, you want us to let strangers into our houses so we can save a couple hundred bucks a year on our light bills according to your media, but according to our media, does not make any difference in our light bills (especially if they are based on variable KW rates?)?

When those temporary jobs end, those "employees" have all the information they need to start a new life of crime, especially if they abuse drugs and no longer think about right and wrong? Speaking of right and wrong, does it occur to you Mr. President that housing Gitmo prisoners will open the door to foreign citizens "visiting" and probably establishing a "back door headquarters" in the United States to build new mosques and now Chicago will have thousands of new visitors a year as a result of these decisions you could stop if you put your foot down, and not "aid the enemy"?

Why not hold the trials in Cuba? Is it not cheaper to fly US citizens down there and pay them to be in a trial then it is to bring prisoners and foreign citizens into the United States? This kind of behavior encourages us to call the President Barack Hasan Obama, since he wants to give the enemy every opportunity to do harm to our citizens and soldiers when you can otherwise prevent doing so, such as using a photo op at West Point?

We don't need the media lying to us about our energy "benefits". If my discretionary income is $300 a month, I don't want to loose a day (or week) in pay because some idiot demands that he can patch a hole in my sheet rock, or some other frivolous activity. And what the hell are you going to do for the people that have to board up their windows because the neighborhood has a handful of meth addicts or teen agers that would break into your house if they thought they could get in easily?

I am asking that you stay out of our business Mr. President, this is not the United Kingdom, or any other European country. When we have to pinch pennies with our electric bills, you loose the investments created by people leaving lights on when they are not home to fool burglars, or at night to deter crime. You might think it is politically correct, but it is our tax money that wastes the man hours of police officers that have to investigate these preventable crimes that you seem to have no problem encouraging by your lack of both courtesy and common sense for our dignity.

Because when you say Republican, you say "elected representative" of the People. When you say "George Bush", you say the elected representative of the People, not just a name.

There is nothing sexy about your policies or administration Mr. President, and there is nothing sexy about the media trying to paint your success, such as a recent lame article in Newsweek (which I think should be renamed as News Weak) that said that you have "reshaped world opinion" about the United States? Your kidding, right? You mean try to reverse the bashing done by members of the Democrat Party who simply want political power even if it means harming the reputation of the United States?

You see Mr. President, torture works, the blue torch of truth will make you wake up every morning with the memory of what could have been, especially when you are surrounded by symbols of freedom? I will be shocked if you do not commit suicide if you keep believing this deceptive media that want to make you feel better if only an attempt to save their hides when they are simply incompetent?

If the Democrat Party wants to be the Party of No, as in No Common Sense, we will arise to the occasion. Rush Limbaugh will hit back twice as hard. The United States Army does not hit back twice as hard, it removes corrupt governments, demolishes enemy lies, and establishes freedom and real Democracy for the People, while honoring both God and others.

Have you heard the pleasure of listening to "conservative" Negroes in Houston lamenting that a "queer" had won an election and that it must mean the end of the nation? We all know they are lying aren't they, they understand fully well that the Negro candidate "affirmative action" status is no longer true, and he lost because of his sloppy financial history of mismanagement and poor decisions?

So the people of Houston would rather gamble with the possible dishonesty of a queer rather than the proven incompetence of someone the major newspaper in the town endorsed, knowing full well what they were doing? What gives me the liberty to say that you say? Why every black "conservative" that called a talk radio station just could not stop talking about the commercials by the queer candidate that advertised that they should be elected because they were queer?

Ah, but the "highly trained, ethical, competent" media machine is spinning what picture of Houston now, that queers are now accepted? Based on what advertising by the candidate? Have a nice day, in the White House Center for Election Loss Results, suite Palin War Room. We appreciate your daily contribution to crushing the egg shell minds of your own supporters with the accumulated weight of their own incredibly stupid actions, thank you very much.

5174. Glenn Beck clarifies his gold endorsement and gets a thumbs up!

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

Glenn Beck clarified his advertisements for gold today so that I finally understand what the phrase the "fusion of entertainment and enlightenment" means. The enlightenment part, is I must assume the teaching of history and conservative values with the flavor of conservatism and libertarianism.

Oddly enough Sean Hannity did not clarify the difference between a libertarian and a Reagan Conservative today. He also I believed missed the point about our proposed focus on the GDP, although I am sure his eagle eyes will catch that spin quickly.

How much of your money do you want to go to the government? If it is one third, then in order to get the big picture on government spending you can apply a key ingredient missing from today's politics, simply multiply that percentage against the GDP and demand that current and future politicians spend no more than that share of the GDP (which I estimate to be no more than $200 billion dollars).

I say include some "elbow room" because as a writer, I don't want a bunch of thugs trolling the river bottom for cat fish with me as the bait. What others say is a different matter, and I try to let the politicians in power today correct their mistakes so that I am not accused of denying them the benefit of the doubt that they intend to do well.

If they ignore common sense and depend on the failing media machine, well, they should not expect positive results. Glenn Beck clarified today that if you only have $10,000 you should not be investing today in gold, you should be buying an extra can of soup.

Let me be clear though, after the last year, I don't blindly trust the media anymore, not even Glenn Beck, I can trust, but I verify first. Glenn Beck verified to me that he can promote a product that is useful without harming others.

My personal opinion is that you should not invest more than 10% in any one thing, no matter what the return rate is. If gold were to keep getting really high return rates, then that is money that is a sitting target for any government confiscation program that might enter the minds of politicians in the future?

When money is moving, it is not a target of interest? So no, we didn't have to lock up Glenn Beck for months in North Korea, and do a CAT scan of his liver to verify his identity or keep him in a glass examination cage and then let him "escape" to prove his innocence, although that could have been a fun way to spend thirty minutes of fiction writing.

I must admit that Glenn Beck has been like a meteor that dug a hole in the ground, and we have all been scratching our heads, trying to make sure this "enlightened being" is not all smoke and mirrors?
What a pleasure it will be to support this enlightened person achieve our common goals.

Thanks Dave. Seems to be sort of a mixed bag over there on eham. Looks like the 3rd party software adds a lot to the Ten Tec's. It has DRM capabilty, and probably requires an external antenna due to computer interference (easy enough to build a simple one). Seems sideband is kind of an issue with those at eham though but other than pirates and when I'm bored, weather reports out of New York, sideband no big deal to me.

FN replies...

smokinbilly..."Thailand could be such a facsinating subject..."
What a complete DOPE!...Of course its fascinating with all the Expats getting tossed off 5th floor balconies on a daily basis...

smokinbilly..."This group is full of anger, bitterness, and malice..."
Sounds like one of Kombat Kraven's "Learn to love your brother speeches"...vomit anyone...?

smokinbilly..."as I've said before when I come to live in Thailand I will be busy enjoying myself and doing positive things..."
..."
Hey Dillweed, you said in several threads here that you have no desire to go there...what a BS'er dopehead...Positive things...?...Bwahahaha, lots of young girls though that need to learn how to climb trees...grin

smokinbilly..."how tragic for those guys that live in Thailand or any Asian country to live in a hole..."
Hey smokinbilly, are you related to Mr Hankey of South Park fame...?...you know, the Christmas Terd that sings and dances only to disappear back down into the sewer on Christmas Day...?...Good riddance smokin...FLUSHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHH!

Well, well, it seems Fred Nurk has a sock puppet in Brett Delfs. Maybe it's the other way around? Fred Nurk the sock puppet?
Maybe they are both Gregg's sock puppets. After all, he seems rather anxious to communicate with these morons all the time.

I got a question. How come Fred Nurk and Brett Delfs and also Quistorf are all posting from the same Internet provider? Is it the same guy just posting under different names?
The ISPs are different but they ALL belong to tukw.qwest.net and all located in Belleview, Washington. Is there some idjiot from the PNW who likes to cause trouble?

Krypsis, I got a questions. How come Brett Delfs , Nurk_fred , and quistorf all post through the same Internet provider, and are all located in the same local area of Washington state? The IP numbers are different but all of them are through Host name 70-58-91-190.tukw.qwest.net and all located in or around Belleview, Washington.

Quite a coincidence. Three trolls, posting to the same newsgroups, all using the same ISP, all living in the same general location. Quite a coincidence.

Oh wait... Maybe it isn't. Maybe they are the same guy just talking to himself. Maybe we should be asking some questions about who lives in the Puget Sound region and likes to cause trouble on the Internet. Anyone with a long record of that? Questions. Nothing but questions. It's what I live for.

5191. Condensing the health care argument into one article?

Wonderfully written and speaks what a lot of us are thinking.

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

In my view, health care is not a right and never will be, it is only a luxury afforded by a prosperous economy that is willing to provide charity for the indigent, if not out of guilt of conscience for its lack of decent paying minimum wages, then out of the principals of helping the poor and the old by the younger and the stronger as required by a higher power who delegates such responsibilities to ourselves. Insurance is not the problem when the prevailing wage does not make such coverage as easy to obtain as food, and when such coverage is more expensive than food, I question its usefulness, validity, and demand that the best economists in the land redefine our goals and articulate them to prevent such nonsense.

Otherwise we find that given power and strength, we should not be hurting the weak, but protecting them, and the natural human condition is one of strength, not of weakness, when we consider the design of such matters. For I say health care is not a right, but perhaps the consequences of your choices in life, for which the public may or may not have control over, and not left up to the political hacks of the day that foment and garner the votes of throngs of high school drop outs as standard campaign strategies, and yet if we remove the personal responsibility from the equation, we also remove personal responsibility from government? Hence the following partial argument that mandatory "health care credit" program is far superior to any "health care insurance" program, since credit is based on responsibility and participation, and the other is based on the luck of the draw? Which is more civilized pray tell, would you treat an angel with a credit program or a lottery program (since the public adores stories of alien worlds)?

For the crux of the legal and Constitutional argument is this, by making health care a "right", then who is to stop the community from calling you in the middle of the night to provide free taxi service to a hooker or a pimp down the street as a "right"? Does health care involve paying a doctor or the use of private medical equipment and facilities? Is that not covered under the 5th amendment, the government shall not seize private property without compensation? If your personal car is your property, who are you to demand that a syringe, a bed, or the time of a doctor is yours upon demand?

The 5th Amendment prohibits the Government from providing free taxi service to hookers or pimps, or from buying health care insurance, light bulbs, or white paint, or any other edict by any "title of nobility", or public official, at your individual expense, that is what has made America the greatest country on Earth. Frankly I see the problem as this, local and state taxes already provide enormous funds to provide for expensive health care as a matter of charity, and it is not a free ride. If they do discover that you can pay for the services rendered, they will place liens on your property to get the funds, so the media creating the illusion that there is some sort of crisis is disingenuous and down right deceptive in my opinion.

And the "problems" should be solved by those who administer solutions, not political activists in power who cater to the whims of high school drop outs who are paying scant attention not because they are too busy administrating public opinion, but recreational drugs without abandon, each according to his ability, and to each his need. CPA's, and medical professionals the private market should be providing solutions, and without a blank check mentality, the costs should be well articulated, including the expected inflationary costs and reviewed on a quarterly basis in light of all the unemployed people with accounting and other clerical experience in our country.

Instead of using a health "lottery" insurance financial model, by going to a health "credit" model where you are guaranteed credit to pay for your treatment and recovery (healing) process, there is much more incentive for industry to price services so that you can pay them back without seizing your assets, because you will have an active interest, and the incentive to not only prevent injury through poor personal decisions or negligence, but provide real care that keeps you alive long enough to pay them back is also part of the process, instead of treating you like a number, or a sausage in a food factory where no one will miss you being tossed in the garbage if a careless employee drops you on the floor.

Providing unlimited tax deductions to the wealthy is another avenue that seems to be refused to be considered or allowed by the power hungry political machine and gullible public community, for which we only have ourselves to blame. This is not a comprehensive identification of all problems, but a highlight of those that come to the writers mind, for which I have articulated weeks ago, and yet the media continues to ignore, for which I say "no" means "yes" when I only have to write this another way, like a fisherman casting his line in a different spot in the pond?

Would Senator Baucus even understand this article, and if not, should he be re-elected?

End of article and comment, which includes an introductory legal disclaimer, written by talent, on loan, from God, with thanks giving, with a special thank you to the Rush Limbaugh Advanced Institute for Conservative Studies for helping to articulate this message.

John Gibson published "How the Left Swift Boarded America", a gripping account of how an incompetent media complex has not only endorsed the communist agenda in America, but sealed its own financial doom?

You may never look at American Politics the same after reading this account that should inspire what Americans should aspire to be, the light of the free world, and not the burning ember of a skyscraper burned to the ground?

Crushing the egg shell minds of liberals is not just fun, but a way of life?

Pimping loyal and information censored union members to create union leaders that don't do any work, and turn them into fat cat bankers isn't easy?

Have a great day in the Palin War Room Suite, Office of the White House Command Center for the Destruction of the Democrat Party, funded by high school drop outs?

If health care is not a right, then neither is life. Without health, there is no life. And if everyone had health care as a right, then no one would need to feel to act out of a guilt of conscience in or out of any principles of helping the poor. It's not the economy that feels guilt or has principles, it's people, and this idiot writer is trying to make it sound like the economy is some kind of thinking, breathing, living person that generously bestows health care on those who can't afford it. The economy does what it does, it doesn't care about coming to anyone's rescue; in fact, it just doesn't care about anything, it only does what it does.

And then this idiot writer goes on to talk about a higher power delegating such caring responsibilities to ourselves to do the right thing for the poor. Well, which is it? The economy being responsible in doing the right thing out guilt or principles or "ourselves"? And who is this higher power and has this higher power ever been seen by anyone and when did he do this delegating?

It's funny how some people hate the idea of people in general acquiring a new right. What's the big deal? It's just a right. Like a right to a lawyer, a right to vote, a right to practice your faith.
If any right should be stripped away, it's the one to practice your faith. Which is more important, praying to your own version of an invisible entity that in all likelihood doesn't even exist in any realm, and which quite frankly would have you declared legally insane in a saner world than this one is, or getting a cure for some cancer resulting in continuing to enjoy the right to life without ending up broke and homeless in the process?

The rest that was written by this idiot writer is pure idiocy and has been snipped to prevent irreversible brain damage to unsuspecting people.

What is lurking about a centimeter under all this "free market" crap is the usual conservative message, the same message they have been peddling since the days of the Robber Barons: Fuck The Poor. To say that people who don't have enough money for even basic medical care essentially deserve to die or suffer crosses a moral line that I'm not comfortable seeing crossed. The right and its callous indifference to human suffering has already been well established, from its support of child labor to its love of war and its belief that God somehow chose rich people to be rich and poor people to be screwed, they sit in their gated communities and think tanks and preach the glory of a system that thrives on crushing human beings who don't have enough money in their bank accounts to keep the teeth of the machine at a distance. They can do this because since they do have enough money in their bank accounts it's really easy to talk about an imaginary "free market" that supports insurance industry monopolies, the gouging of sick people and the denial of coverage to people who have (or had) enough to pay the premiums but not enough to hire lawyers when the insurance company abruptly decided not to pay their claim. It's all an abstraction to them, a sort of parlor game because none of it can actually touch them. It's easy for them to talk about the insurance industry and its alleged First Amendment right to buy off Republicans and Blue Dogs until Charles Grassley and Virginia Fox publicly make statements so wrong, asinine and juvenile that they sound like something from a 19th century big city political machine instead of statements from 20th century, elected, presumably sane human beings. What has happened with this entire debate is conservatives have turned a genuinely well intentioned bill to help sick people get care into a national embarrassment. Millions of people who can't afford coverage, who have been denied coverage and who can't afford medical care have been told to go fuck themselves by the healthcare industry, using "conservatives" to sell the message for them. The one lesson I've learned from watching this is that if you jam enough quarters into the jukebox, you can get conservatives to play literally any old tune you want them to play and never mind the facts, never mind the public good, never mind human decency, intellectual consistency or anything else. Conservatives are human icebergs. You have to have icewater running though your heart to tell your constituents to literally drop dead because a check cleared. From now on every time some right winger makes a public statement, I will ask myself, "Okay, who is paying for this?" Whenever a conservative takes the floor on C-Span, there should be a disclaimer that "The following is a paid commercial announcement for a private interest. Neither C-Span or the American government are responsible for any statements or claims made therein."

The sad part of all this is that there really are 47 million americans without health insurance, millions of people really will die or go bankrupt because of illness and conservatives are laughing and slapping each other on the ass because they sided with the insurance industry to make damn sure that nobody will ever do anything about it. These people are not much different than OJ's lawyers. They know exactly what they are doing, they aren't even slightly bothered by it and if there is a hell, here is a special place waiting for them there.

You have to remember that a lot of hams are full of shit. Ten-Tec makes

In my view, police patrols are not a right and never will be either.
But society has agreed to assume that responsibility, and now we take it for granted.

Health Care costs way too much money in the USA, and returns far too little. If we did it differently we'd all save money in the long run.
View it as a totally pragmatic exercise.

Thought it was quite obvious really. As for trouble, he, with a few

Another racist heard from....

You scum lost the last election. Get used to it. Obama is the president. Get used to it. You filth made up about 18% if the population. Get used to it. And with any luck you will drag the repug party down to defeat and irrelevance.

The repugs, with your kind assistance, have backed themselves into an interesting problem. They have been the party of No, they have done a great job of doing that. Now, after health care passes and America accepts it the repugs will have nothing to say. So when they are attacked for not supporting the plan that will already be functional, that will already be helping people what can they say?

How about the cost? Well what can they say, they were the party of Iraq and that sure went well.....

3-D TV is the big news nowadays, according to some articles in my latest snail mail magazines.

Why don't I add an hd radio to my dust collectors, you say?

I say, WHY should I? hd radio is a FLOP!

I own one and it's practically worthless. Fortunately, I didn't pay anywhere near list price for the thing. What a waste.

Thanks, Gregg. No, my amateur station is not on the air at the moment -- one thing I'd have to do is replace at least some of the gear that was stolen from me, some 41 years worth:

http://3950.net/about/

But I am very glad that N2SAG and N2IRJ are putting the Net on the 'Net. I'm also very grateful for the kind folks who put remotely tuned receivers online -- without which I'd be doing very little shortwave listening!

Remember that the Liberty Net isn't necessarily on a fixed frequency
-- I've seen them as much as 10 kHz off of 3950 depending on the interference situation.

With my best,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

In upper Great Lakes area, every night, I am hearing a sweeping transmission while listening to a Brazilian station (Radio Clube do Para) on 4875 kc. It is fairly narrow covering only approximately 4 kc. Will try to DF it tonight and get a rough idea of from where it is originating although that's a hard thing to do on a sweep signal. Its signal strength is comparable to approximately the same relative strength of the Brazilian station on peaks which, last night, was a SINPO of 35533 although on previous nights Radio Clube do Para arrived here with a SINPO of 45544 and the sweep was equally superimposed on them.

Anyone else hearing it?

P.S. Though unfashionable, I prefer using "KC"; my apologies to those who find this unsavory.

Best of luck. I know in my own case, recovering hardware, classic cars, and other properties, took two decades in some cases.

A few recordings were recovered, but most were lost. And all but two of the books were irretrievably dispersed.

Well, you are not telling us too much.....except for whining.

Where do you live? Are you actually in the vicinity of any worthwhile HD2 channels?

What model radio do you have?

(If you have one of the original radios, they have gotten better since the arrival of the first sets.)

There's still the matter of investment. With well into 6 figures for a single station, manglement, investors, and corporate interests will not simply let it die and go away. Like AM stereo, which actually worked, it took nearly 20 years to go away.

In the case of IBOC, there's the huge pressures iBiquity is bringing to stations which have begun to back away from HD radio.

There are contractual issues.

But, UNlike AM stereo, which had a "marketplace based" approach and competing standards all on the air at once....HD Radio standard has been chosen. There is no battle among the formats on the air. Listeners can enjoy it from the get go.

With AM Stereo, one had to decide which system to buy...and then could only listen to certain stations.

HD learned from that fiasco...and is avoinding the pitfalls.

Which pitfalls aren't even on the radar, here. The uptake is slow, the technology is flawed, and the implementation is poor. But the investment has been spectacular.

The point being made that even a system like AM stereo which was a simple and far less costly implementation took 20 years to go awaty.

IBOC, UNlike AM Stereo, with its enormous capital investment per station, contractual obligations, and corporate support, will not simply be allowed to die quickly. There's just too much money involved.

It will be around for quite a while.

From what I have been able to discern, the IBOC sidebands are actually generated by a separate transmitter, then combined with the AM signal (much as the AM video and FM audio were on analog television). Digital transmission is fairly energy intensive.

So? It's not in a race? Apathy is everywhere in radio, satelite, SW, AM, FM, HD. Consumers aren't rushing to do anything with radio.

Debatable.

Implementation is pretty good! Consumers in most places can pick up an HD radio and start enjoying it immediately. (Unlike the AM Stereo "marketplace solution".)

5227. Rant about WBCQ and Allan Weiner

I downloaded a podcast of Allan Weiner worldwide and just had to stop listening to it.

Hint to WBCQ. The best way to improve your finances is to improve your signal. 5110mhz is total crap and 7415 is only good during the afternoon and early evening hours on the east coast. There's no excuse why 5110 comes in so crappy, if at all. You want people to air programs on WBCQ? Improve your reception. How about dropping down to the 90 meter band at night where WWCR and WWRB get a strong signal all the time on?

I'm also tired of Weiner rants about money but yet, he owns 2 roll royces himself, 1,000s of acres of land, and who knows what else. I don't expect Weiner to go broke with WBCQ but I'm also tired of the hypocrisy behind the crying about money.

For people to buy airtime on your programs, they expect to have their signals heard.

Just a rant.

Some energy efficient thangys might turn out to be Good.Furr example, last night I watched a program on the DIY tv channel about Coolerado energy efficient airconditioners.Sounds Good/Looks Good to me!
www.coolerado.com

In fact, at the Goodwill store www.shopgoodwill.com today, I was talking to some wimmins about Coolerado, new fangled airconditioning system which doesn't require any refrigerant,,, a woman customer standing by meself at the checkout counter, she said she is from Colorado (River Red, I calls it, Colorado) and has heard about Coolerado.

Check out that article at www.rense.com about refrigerants.

So let's 'out' him. Once his name and address are publicly know and spread around the internet, that should shut him down. As it happens, I'm in Seattle right now myself (I fly every day for work... I'm a document courier. Just about live in airports with nothing much to do except read books and surf the Internet. I wouldn't mind looking up people if I wind up in the same town/country, etc. I often have to wait around a city for the next pick-up. It would give me something extra to do.) Talk with employers, local cops, local business people. That sort of thing might just quiet him down a bit. He doesn't mind talking about other people. Let's see how he likes people talking about him.

Chilla called him 'Scott.' Does that ring any bells for you? Any and all information, no matter how small or insignificant, once put together and added up should lead us right to his door. We already know that he posts from the Belleview, Washington area. (That's close enough to Seattle for me, and I get back here often.) He's obviously go a bug up his ass for a few selected people. Here are a few more questions. Do we know why? Who does he attack the most? What else do we know about him? You guys fill in the small details and I'll begin putting them together.

Gibson has produced an unintentional pun at best. A poor one.

No properly designed gear has a 'wiping motion'.

The curve on the gear teeth is supposed to assure a ROLLING contact. The function of hypoid gears is two fold. They run quieter than standard gears and because they sit at an angle, more metal is connected to the base, or root, where they meet the shaft. That makes them stronger.

There's probably more that I've missed.

"Gregg" has posted under quite a few different names. He has been 'fvwerhrjjqeh,' 'BCBlazysusan,' 'BenchMadeGregg,' 'BushcraftGregg' and a few more. I guess he's not smart enough to know that changing his name doesn't hide him. You might be correct in thinking that he does this to enlist other people, but most of the time his efforts are calling people names too, same like the people he is trying to attract. He posts from a server outside of Hillsboro, Ohio, which isn't so far from Cincinnati. I fly into Cinci pretty regularly, so why not start a file on him too. Like I said before, enough little bits of information and eventually we can form a pretty accurate dossier on this guy. If we 'out' him too, it can only benefit the newsgroups.

Charles, a few more questions if you don't mind. Do you know anything more about this guy? You say his name is 'Scott.' We already know that he posts from Belleview, Washington so probably lives in that area. Do you know if he posts to any other newsgroups using different names or ISPs? Do you know any reason why (besides being fucking nuts) that he posts the way he does? I'm in Seattle for the next day or two (maybe three) so I think I'm going to go over to the ISP's office and see if maybe they can help with some info. Usually ISPs don't give out information without a court order, but if I have them take a look at what he writes as Nurk_Fred2000, and I'm there in person not just some random e-mail..... hey, who knows what might happen, right?

This guy isn't putting his pants on one leg at a time.

Come to think of it, he's not exactly REMOVING them one pant leg at a

One of the thangys I bought at the Lowe's store today is a Skil (Skil brand name, registered trademark, probally made in China) belt sander, it has a micro dust catcher filter thangy on it, I can also attatch my vacuum cleaner to my belt sander.

About an hour ago, I was using my old small handheld electric Makita right angle grinder.It started slowing down and making that burnt motor smell.Now, I have another real Good excuse to head on back over to the Lowe's store tomorrow.

But, HD Radio at least doubles their power bills, requires on-going troubleshooting, and there are on-going fees to iBiquity. i would think stations, as radio groups declare bankruptcy, will eventually pull the plug.

I heard that Mediageek is going to cease production at the end of the year. They did a lot of reporting on shortwave news and will be very much missed.

Also appears DXing with Cumbra with Marie Lamb is also taking a hiatus. While they may resume, Marie has certainly cut back production of the show and hasn't produced one in a month.

http://www.rfprograms.com/
They do a good job in archiving and posting shortwave related shows. Even the Allan Weiner whine-fest on Friday nights.

Just like there are to ASCAP, BMI, Microsoft, etc., etc.

It's part of the cost of running a business.

(cut and paste).

Here ya go. Universal has a DC-942, Philips, unused on their used list. new, old stock. i know nothing about this unit. shortwave in the car for me has lately been a 7600 with the Sony loop. works good, just a bit of work to set up. in the car has never been a big deal for me. only used to catch the big guns. so, really, if your into Alex Jones, or the religious beggar's, which i'm not, it's a bit too much hassle for me. now, over in Europe, it's different.

The last couple of names are familiar to me. He used them to gain a modicum of credibility in the rec.knives group, "Benchmade" being a brand of knife.

I can usually identify people by their "behavioural attributes", either in person or through their correspondence. Only occasionally do I need to look up IP addresses, usually only to verify my suspicions.

> You might be correct in thinking that he does > this to enlist other people,

I am sure of it. He seems to get a hate campaign going on a particular individual and he's not man enough to let it rest. Rather he tries to enlist others to do his dirty work for him so he can assume the role of an "interested onlooker". Who knows what email traffic passes between him and his troll mate(s).

> but most of the time his efforts are > calling people names too, same like the people he is trying to

Yes, childish, isn't it? He loses his argument and his only recourse is name calling. A real hero!

How much would you seriously want to find out about him? That he has serious social issues is patently obvious. If you were to meet him in person, you would, in all likelihood, find that he is nothing more than a weedy little dweeb! The fact that he appears big and brave on anonymous old usenet, like all trolls, is more an indication that he's the exact opposite in the real world.

My main issue with Gregg (Scott, whoever, whatever..) is that he stirs up the trolls, quite deliberately so in fact. There's no need for it. I am rapidly coming to the conclusion that Gregg is as bad as the Nurk Freds of usenet and will not bother too much with him in future. By starting a "file" on Gregg, I will become no better than the trolls with their fascination with Kramer. They keep a dossier of every post Kramer, and others, have ever made and trot items out with the regularity of a cow overdosing on laxatives.

Ignore the trolls, they get bored, then go away of their own volition. They NEED feedback, thrive on it, and keep coming back for more. Starve them of that and they wither and die. All people need to do is either filter out the trolls entirely or simply ignore them if they don't have access to an effective filtering mechanism. At the very least, snip out troll responses on a reply so the rest of us don't have to put up with their garbage. This concept works well on SCV and trolls aren't an issue there.

The only problem you have is with the "nym shifters", those who change their identities at regular intervals to confound killfilters. In my case, I regularly flush my filter list when it gets too large and restart it again from scratch. Need to do this as an overly large filter file seems to slow things down noticeably. There are always the few regulars that get reinserted automatically and the remainder I add to the filter on an "as required" basis. I also tend to add global filtering to those sites that provide a free host for the trolls. You'll have noted that most trolls tend to use Google Groups as a posting host. It's a pity that some good posters also use Google Groups.

It's a damn OLD movie. I must've been in my teens when I first watched it at the movies. Seen it umpteen times on TV since.

Yes, better to hit the hay! You must've watched it about as often as I have. You might even be able to recite the entire script by now! ;-)

When the list exceeded several hundred entries, it seemed to slow things down. Might only be my perception but I flush it every so often anyway. Why have entries that relate to posters who no longer post? I just flushed it the other day and put a few "regulars" back in since then.

Looking at www.nfilter.org, I see nfilter is an external program. That might be a better way to do my filtering as it will do ALL subscribed newsgroups from the one list. It lists a version for W95/98/NT only. I presume this will work under XP and Vista as well? I may have to experiment with nfilter as I like the fact that it has better capabilities than what I am currently using.

From the website;
Nfilter is capable of filtering on any fields that appear in the header of a news article, not just fields in the overview (normally news clients can only filter on author, subject, etc). For example, it can filter on path (eg. all posts from news.foo.net), newsgroups (eg. all posts cross-posted to alt.foo), nntp-posting-host, etc, etc.

The above features are what I was lamenting were missing from my current newsreaders filters. Also the fact that it works as an external proxy is a definite plus.

Thanks for the info. It might take me some time to understand how it all works, I am an old timer after all. Not all that up with fancy filtering rules but I can see where it will be of value to take the time to get to know nfilter (or even an equivalent) much better.

If you haunt some old cars junkyards in Europe or some other Countries, you might find some old car radios like that.

Here we go! Your repurtation preceeds you maus.

Run along and go find Telemon to play with.

Either that or find a meaninless thread you canextend in perpetuity.

Whatever happened to Telamon? He disappeared a few days after Eduardo vanished.

And I thought I was in a meaningless thread.

I'm flipping through the ham bands and it looks like they are firing up big time tonight. They are forecasting a bunch of snow and that usually always gets them fired up.

It's good enough for me that I know his name, where he lives, stuff like that.

I've gone down the track of Trolling abuse before, the ISP's don't care.

I doubt that things would be different even if he was a sex offender, or a child trafficker.

ISP's care only about money.

Trolling is not against the law in Australia, although there's an attempt to make it an offense (in some cases, where it leads to suicide or harm).

A physical confrontation is not wise as it would lead to violence. No matter what ill feelings we have towards Scott, he deserves to be left alone, and ignored.

Regards Charles

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

We look forward to the ghosts that will haunt Mr. Chavez, you see, we have entered the supernatural awakening of the United States, and the US Congress is trying to fight it?

Capitalism my dear friend (who should have his toys taken away from him by the Russians?) is what we call "raising capital" for companies to hire people. You hire people to make things like food, clothing and merchandise. You can not hire people without raising or spending capital, and communism always fails because these morons no nothing about business, but apparently everything about how to lie and steal?

There is nothing spooky, wrong, or evil about capitalism -- it is actually the ultimate form of decentralized communism if you choose to warp your mind in that direction?

So Chavez and his fans are digging their own graves, their own ruin, by burying all future opportunities because they cannot reason out financial jargon, or simply wish to deceive voters in to blindly following them?

Ooops there she goes, ooops there she went, Fat Cat Pelosi on a Gulf Stream Jet, to spread the loot around at the Cope en Rob Them conference? Ever notice how pale Mr. Axle Rod gets when he tells lies? Gee, I wonder what keeps the whole White House from comitting suicide, when they are surrounded by symbols of personal freedom that they want to destroy?

Congratulations Mr. President, another lost day, another lost opportunity, you could have gave a "shout out" to Chavez about what Capitalism is, but apparently you want all the young Negros out there to drop out of school and be homeless, so you can run the next communist revolution from Chicago after you leave office with all your foreign buddies and hidden money thanks to Hillary?

The Democrats did not advance health care reform, they advanced the destruction of the private sector by ignoring common sense. Remove all the adjectives and adverbs from the language of the Democrats and what do you get? A noun with no action? When was the last time a Democrat suggested exactly what the budget ceiling was?

Oh, by the way, when a member of Congress submits an amendment to the floor for debate, the possession of the bill is no longer that of the author, it is that of the United States People, and their representatives. Revoking the reading of the bill only verifies that the Democrats do not want people to know what they are doing, and I thank the Republicans for demolishing the lies of the Democrats, thumbs up to Michael Steele.

Revoking the amendment is more akin to calling the police when someone is robbing the bank in progress, and when the police show up, they think everyone should just forget about it? Why are there no ethics investigation for not holding a vote to revoke the reading of the bill, which was the possession of the Senate, not the author of the bill?

Crushing the egg shell minds of liberals is easy, when you listen to mmm mmm mmm Rush Hudson Limbaugh mmm mmm mmm (whose portrait should occupy the face of a mountain one day?)

Have a nice day in the Advanced Center for Suicidal Studies of the Democrat Party, suite Palin War Room, 1600 Pennsylvania Ave?

What was the first response, but from an angry queer (the first sign of a queer is the f-bomb, in order to counter the demons in their head demanding they chop off their egg rolls, like the queer that committed suicide after helping defeat the Nazis, and they are already angry at everyone?) who has no interest in explaining that the proposed health care legislation destroys the insurance industry, and will force everyone to share the costs of medical care and eliminate the concept of personal responsibility, which will destroy the ability to provide medical care (which is based on capacity, not imagination) to all but the young who are not sick?

If you mandate coverage, you do not have any risk, you have only costs, at which they are GUESSING since they can not explain how to pay for it? Who cares if you have have health care coverage that is rationed if you don't have a job and must live in a mud hut, ride a bike, and put up with drug addicts who still buy narcotics even though it has blood money all over it?

Don't take my word for it, ask why they can't wait two days to read the bill, that should explain everything?

Resistance is futile, the biological and technical uniqueness of the Democrats will be assimilated by the truth....

They want to keep young Negros in poverty, they don't want them to have a future, and they have been the victim of the longest running pyschological warfare by a willing and compliant press (who only throws the bone of Opera) to the Negros? Abortion keeping you from "spreading the wealth around"? Collapse of the currency by looting the treasury will make sure that young Negros no longer make a dollar in ten minutes, but a yen that is worth 5 times less, in one hour?

What is the spending rate of the Democrat Party, what portion of the GDP growth rate are they consuming? How many schools are trying to turn young black men into suicidal queers that will only create frustrated single mothers who will keep turning to the government for solutions, are are too busy to figure out what their own government is doing TO THEM, instead of for them?

Capitalism is about raising money for young negros to have jobs, and old Negros to invest and retire, and your President is giving empty shout outs?

Freedom isn't free?

I bought the 3G dongle mail order. It caller IDs back to Ohio, even when I'm using it in SoCal, or Tennessee, or Texas. Apparently caller ID is believed more than IP address by the speedtest.net

The Walt Disney Co. and ABC Studios filed plans Wednesday to expand Disney's legendary Golden Oak movie ranch, creating a massive high-tech soundstage and production complex that would bring more than 2,800 new full- and part-time jobs to the booming Santa Clarita Valley.

Plans filed with Los Angeles County call for six soundstages, plus production offices and storage areas for props and costumes, according to a statement from ABC.

"By connecting the sound stage to an array of opportunities at the movie ranch, we're creating a synergy," said Richard Ballering, executive director of production for ABC. "The proposed plan would allow us to have four established productions and six new ones."

While the estimated cost of the project was not released, officials said the expansion could generate an additional $1.3 million in annual revenues for Los Angeles County coffers.

If the project is approved, it would be completed by 2013 at the earliest, officials said.

The 890-acre Golden Oak Ranch at State Route 14 and Placerita Canyon Road has been owned by Walt Disney Productions since 1959. Its sets have been used for movies, television and commercial productions including "Lassie," "Bonanza," "X-Files" and "Sons of Anarchy."

I need to go to the Lowe's store today for a few things, including a few new electric wall outlets to replace some old worn out ones.They sell them from less than one dollar each, up to about five or six dollars each.Why is there so much difference in the prices? They all look the same to me, and I am not talking about the kind with GFI either.I don't want GFI wall outlets, they SUCK!

I have a Plug Grip, www.pluggrip.com I bought at Lowe's a few months ago.I am just iching to try it out.Of course I will flip the circuit breakers before I start messin with those wall outlets.

Your HOA has some very serious issues. I had a similar problem with the HOA, here, which was formed after I moved in. They went after my radio installation with a vengeance.

After some rudimentary research, I found that much of this was coming from the cable company which had funded the forming of the HOA. We, as a community, weren't wired for the most part, so to force the issue, the cable company bought into the HOA and pushed the antenna ban.

It took some time, but vigilance, not letting an HOA meeting go by without a presence, and reading the appropriate FCC Rules into the record, and a couple of face-downs in which the Sheriff's department had units in my driveway, I prevailed.

You have to stand your ground. An HOA is not a governmental entity with the power to overturn Federal Rules and Acts of Congress.

It's a fight, to be sure, but it's a fight that can be won. Both TV Antennae and small dish satellite systems are proteced species.
And you have the clear understanding that it's NOT illegal to obey FCC rules and federal law.

The ones that sell for a buck are the kind that wear out and need frequent replacing. I use the Copper Aluminum grade duplex outlets.

We use the medium expensive ones for power distros; and we use "hospital grade" orange ones for anal retentive clients with lots of cash.

You must use a part of the building over which you have total control, like your porch, patio, or window sill. You have no right to access a common area e.g. a shared rooftop.

Also, the rules do not allow HF antennae, unless they are disguised as TV reception antennas (which is easily doable).

When I started looking for houses I told the Realtor (www.evelyn.com) that I had antennas and a drum set. She said "Canyon Country!"

I am waiting on my snail mail, that snail mail woman always has a Bluetooth cell phone thingy on her ear, always yakkin and talkin while delivering the snail mail.My thumbs hurt from using my cig lighters.When I go to the Lowe's store today, I am going to also buy a riding lawn mower battery and I will make a wood box with a handle and have a little shelf for an old 12 volt auto cig lighter I have here.I will set it on the floor by my end of doggy's couch.I will need to charge up the battery once or twice each week, I reckon.

I will buy the better quality wall outlets at Lowe's today.

The latest edition (18 December) of Top News has been posted:

http://www.wwdxc.de/topnews.htm

dxAce
Michigan
USA

Drake R7, R8, R8A and R8B
70' and 200' wires
GE SR I and II

239 countries heard and 225 QSL'd (veried, for those in Glendale) using the NASWA Country List.

And, as always, don't let your children attend the Sullivan College of Technology & Design.

They've hired at least one dufus who once claimed to have a PhD and lied about being arrested, and who knows, there may be more dufi there.

You appear to have lost relevance some 22 transactions ago. If you'd like to actually address my point, we can return to something that begins to resemble a discussion, again.

Your call.

No, actually you deleted the point. You addressed items that weren't being argued.

So, again, you want to address the point...we can return this to a meaningful discussion.

It was the point of the conversation. You deleted it and took the conversation way from IBOC and made it about AM Stereo. I made a an AM stereo reference as a comparartive. My point was about IBOC. You deleted it. And addressed items that weren't being argued.

Yeah....I"m the problem. You were so attentive to details you failed to miss that I was actually on your side of the issue. Go back and re-read. When you get to my actual point, let me know.

Probably because he's describing an issue that comes up more often each day. And HOA's are becoming more aggressive at harrassing people into surrendering their property use rights, in favor of the association's vision of what life, and media access should be like.

The rights and powers of HOA's are poorly understood. Most often by the HOA's themselves. And the conflicts that arise from HOA covenants and restrictions running square into Federal laws and regulations have left a lot of folks confused, frustrated, and in many cases unnerved.

Which, of course, is not the chosen path in life for most people living in countries with universal coverage, but does seem to be the chosen path in life for a lot of Americans in a country with no universal coverage. Interesting.

Don't worry, we won't take your word for it, or any words you churn

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

Chavez announces with glee today that the problem of Global Climate change has been solved, global warming has been stopped by the satanic appearance of Barack Hasan Obama and the volcanic eruption of sulphur from hell, which has saved God's creation from certain destruction from man? Perhaps we will qualify that remark if Chavez with draw's his objection to capitalism? Barack Hasan Obama did not whip out his 5.56 mm pistol and start shooting all the diplomats, but his support will allow him to create virtual cluster bombing of our children and grand children?

Do you really expect the American People to continue to buy your blatant lies Mr. Obama? Is your head so far up your own colon, is your head so far buried in the sand that you can honestly get on camera in front of the world, renounce the position of America as leader of the free world, and declare that you fully support the radicals advancing the hoax of climate change that will not make our children and grandchildren's lives better, but prevent them from being born?

Is that not the agenda of the radical thieves who deny that raising capital to enable companies to hire people is all about looting those who care about their fellow man enough to work, to reduce the population of the Earth by half, and the only way to do that is to drive a spike into the skulls of babies that are born when you are not allowed to have more than one child, yet the more people that are born, the quicker the problems of the world are solved because more minds are employed in the solutions?

You expect me to applaud you while the proud Russians fight for their survival, and Americans must nurture conservatism and the spirit of competition that solves problems rather than create them? Your support of this global climate hoax will only result in the twitching little feet and fingers of the dying babies who will have spikes in their skulls because they violated your nanny state agenda of the future, if you go along this path of denial and looting?

This is not hard to figure out Mr. Obama, the world does not revolve around you, you must do your part, and stop thinking about the applause that you do or do not get?

Ooooooops There it is, Oooops there it went, Speaker Pelosi on a Gulf Stream Jet? Speaker Pelosi was right, under your administration, women and children have the most to loose? That was a free plug for Rep. Bachman, Speaker Pelosi, who wants to appear as a happy camper, but at times reminds us more of a rat making facial expressions of horror? Rush Limbaugh hits back twice as hard, and the United States Army removes corrupt governments, and demolishes enemy lies?

Have a nice day in the Center for Suicide of the Democrat Party, suite Palin War Room, we regret to inform you have yet again, not represented the American People, and have made wasted another day and opportunity to lead the free world in the right direction? D stands for Dream Killer, next to the names of those in Congress today (except for the few, the ones standing against abortion, and promoting common sense)?

I know AM stations can go to "critical hours" during an emergent event. The question is, is it normal for AM stations to transmit in critical hours power during a huge snow storm event?

I'm figuring there might be some really good AM dxing from the northeast if this is the case tomorrow night.

That seems to be all they do. To newsgroups, that is. What is the effect on the people that they attack? I have a feeling that this isn't as gentle. I've read many different articles about how Internet bullies have caused actual harm to individual, going so far as suicides. The families of those victims might be interested in knowing just who is responsible. Criminal courts require 'beyond reasonable doubt.' Civil courts only need 'a preponderance of evidence.' More and more Internet trolls are going to court every day now. Not criminal but civil courts! It's time to pay the piper.

> By > starting a "file" on Gregg, I will become no better than the trolls with > their fascination with Kramer.

On the other hand, a simple file is a very good way to put together small bits of information until a completed picture comes out. Same way the police do it. Dull, boring legwork. Information gathering until the answer is clear.

You probably don't have the time (or desire) to do such a thing, but because of my job I have nothing BUT time! I spend most of my days and nights either waiting in airport waiting rooms or on planes between cities and countries. My actual 'doing' isn't much more than a few minutes handing over a large manila envelop to a company rep, or picking one up. Then it's back to waiting for the next flight. I have all the time in the world, and now, in most airports have free wireless Internet I think I'd like to see some of these bullies get what they deserve.

>They keep a dossier of every post Kramer, and others, have ever made and trot items out with the regularity of a > cow overdosing on laxatives.connections.

There have been so many posts with the name 'Kramer' it almost appears that he is their number one target. But is he the 'Kramer' from the Cancer Support Group, the 'Kramer' from the Cooking Chat group, the 'Kramer' from the Thai Culture group, the 'Kramer' from the Knife Group, etc., etc., etc.,? They don't seem to know exactly. Go back far enough and you can find lot's more Kramers in other groups. There are a lot of 'Steve Kramers' listed in Google, all over the world.

I'd like to dig far enough to put Nurk_Fred and Kramer together as well as Scott and Kramer, Gregg and Kramer, and a few more. Eventually enough information should come out. Already we know that 'Nurk_Fred' is from Washington state, and western Washington at that!

> Ignore the trolls, they get bored, then go away of their own volition.

I think this is the general theory, but it didn't seem to work with these particular trolls. They were ignored but never left.
These aren't trolls. They are bullies. There is a difference.

I had to fly out to the PI and didn't get enough time to spend with that ISP in Washington, but I get back to that area regularly. A squeaky wheel gets the most grease.

> I doubt that things would be different even if he was a sex offender, or > a child trafficker.

That is from a 'criminal' perspective. Think 'civil law.' In the US, criminal courts require proof 'beyond reasonable doubt' to make a conviction. Civil courts only require 'a preponderance of evidence.'
If any of these trolls have caused 'any' kind of negative results to their victims, they can be brought to civil court. I have a feeling that there might be one or two people in the US who have either been victims or are families of victims and would like to see the tables turned in their favor.

> Trolling is not against the law in Australia, although there's an > attempt to make it an offense (in some cases, where it leads to suicide > or harm).

There have been more and more civil suits brought against Internet bullies in several different countries lately. All that is needed is proof that harm has been done and a 'preponderance of evidence' about who caused that harm. No need for criminal laws to be broken (although that would make things easier to prosecute as the cops would be involved.) Civil law can work just as well to deal with these sorts of people.

> A physical confrontation is not wise as it would lead to violence.

I'm a lover, not a fighter. I'll leave the confrontations to the victims or their families. Doing the legwork or the gruntwork is enough for me. I have the time to ask the questions and collect information .

Critical Hours is a term for the period just after sunrise and just before sunset, when a very few stations reduce power to keep from interfering with other stations.

An example would be a station that is 50 kw day, 25 kw critical hours, and 2.5 kw night.

When there is an emergency, a station can operate on its daytime facility or, if directional, in non-directional mode to provide community service. It is not permitted to run commercials.

A very bad blizzard, like a tornado, flood, hurricane or such event is reason to consider such operations.

I knew about the period before and after sunrise - but I hadn't heard of that term
"Critical Hours" before.

I know WLW hasn't ever done that that I know about, if they ever did that that during a storm for whatever reason it had to have happened before I was around ten yrs. of age.

I would think that WLW or any of the 50,000watt stations wouldn't decrease power during an emergency. {?} Interesting thread though.

Critical Hours operation is required of only a very few stations in the US, mostly ones that wanted high powers and were willing to sacrifice some of that in the post sunrise and pre sunset hours. Critical Hours is a recent development, and I can't remember when it started being allowed but it was likely it was in the 80's,

Emergency operation is automatically authorized when a station feels it is warranted... and means running at the fullest capability, even if not authorized regularly for such operation.... such as a daytimer running at night for a hurricane... or a station using day power and non directional mode at night.

The FCC logic in emergency mode is that a station is engaged in emergency services, not on to make money, and no commercials should be run. >Similarly, when stations test in the so called experimental period, they can't run commercials.

In most cases, HD does not even increase the power bill of a transmitter plant by 10%... often much less. And the licence fee, which is market based, is minimal. Many stations have leased HD3 channels for specialized programming, and are making money on that.

Only one significant group is approaching bankruptcy, and it is unlikely that their FM HDs will be turned off.

Found this on the term "Critical Hours."

Critical Hours Computations, Section 73.187
For AM broadcast stations, the term critical hours refers to the time periods of sunrise to two hours after sunrise, and two hours before sunset to sunset. During these periods, the ionosphere has commenced its transition from daytime to nighttime conditions (or vice versa), resulting in greater coverage than would be expected from a daytime-only analysis. But because the transmitting station operates with its daytime power between sunrise and sunset, the extended skywave signal can be strong enough to interfere with other stations. This daytime skywave phenomenon was the focus of a protracted rulemaking proceeding that commenced in 1947 and finally culminated in 1959 with the adoption of Section 73.187, Limitation on daytime radiation (also called the "critical hours" rule), and Figures 9, 10, and 11 in Section 73.190. See the Report and Order in Docket 8333, adopted September 18, 1959 [ PDF ], petitions for reconsideration denied, adopted December 9, 1959 [ PDF ]. The rule provides for operation at a lower power during critical hours time periods to limit interference from new or changed Class B or D stations (where the changes were made after 1959) operating on frequencies specified in Section 73.25, to Class A AM stations on the same frequency.

I copied WGBB 1240AM at 1:45am

From the info I gathered this station tx just 1,000 watts. :-)

I was using my GE P-780 with a loop made by D.Schmarder {sp} on my lazy susan but I didn't fully copy the signal completely till I sat my Radio Shack loop on the opposite side and tuned a little off the sweet spot and then barely touched my bigger Penta-Loop and there it was with nothing else in there.

I listened for almost ten minutes and then decided to call the radio station and let them know and the guy got a kick out of it and gave me a "shot out" on the radio when he went back on the air.

Pretty exciting and not bad for the old GE P-780, my modded DX394 hooked up to my AD DX Sloper couldn't even copy it. I hear another station trying to get in there so I think I'm going to keep it parked right here and see as the night goes on if another station pops in. Thanks Brenda Ann:-)

Even if ice doesn't cause structural failure, it can fall off in huge hunks that can tear stuff up around the base of the tower. An iced tower is a dangerous beast.

When I was a kid, KYND Tempe, 1580, was 50 KW ND from 10 AM to 3 PM, from Sunrise to 10 A and from 3P to Sunset they were 10 KW. This would have been 1964.

Buck Owens owned the station for a while. Dick Gilbert put it on the air.

We used to do pirate radio on it after midnight, on full power, during the "Experimental Period". (look that up)

SB PROP ARL ARLP052
ARLP052 Propagation de K7RA

Sunspot activity continued this week, with new group 1035 emerging December 14, following 1034, which appeared December 9. Daily sunspot numbers since December 9, through December 17, have been 13, 13, 13, 12, 14, 28, 38, 30 and 24. Solar flux values have been above 80 since December 15, with the values from Tuesday through Thursday of this week at 81.6, 83.2 and 86.9. The 2000z (local noon in Penticton) are the official daily number, and on December 17 at 1800z the flux value was 88.1, higher than any flux value in the past three years.

The last time the 10.7 cm flux was higher was December 15, 2006 at 88.2. Just three days prior to that on December 12, 2006 it was 104.2. It wasn't long ago that flux values were in the sixties, but we haven't seen solar flux below 70 since October 16, 2009 at 69.6.

The latest prediction from NOAA and USAF is for flux values around 88 for December 18-20, then 85, 82, 82 and 80 for December 21-25. Predicted planetary A index for December 18-24 is 5, 6, 15, 6, 5, 5 and 5, indicating a possible disturbance on Sunday. Geophysical Institute Prague predicts quiet conditions December 18-19, unsettled to active December 20, quiet to unsettled December 21-22, unsettled December 23, and quiet December 24.

Currently at the NASA STEREO site (http://stereo.gsfc.nasa.gov/) we can see sunspot group 1035 at a high latitude heading toward the western (right-hand) side of the solar image, and just passed over the eastern horizon a bright patch of activity that could emerge as a sunspot. There is also some activity in the southern hemisphere on the far side just emerging from the less than 13.7 percent of the Sun not visible to STEREO.

At http://www.swpc.noaa.gov/ftpdir/indices/DSD.txt under the column "Sunspot Area 10E-6 Hemis" you can see the area (in millionths of a solar hemisphere) covered by sunspots steadily growing all week.

This increased sunspot activity gives us improved chances of expanded HF propagation. For instance, doing a projection with a popular propagation prediction program, with zero sunspots today from my location in Seattle to Brazil on 12 meters, there is a chance of propagation from 1800-2000z, but for less than 25 percent of the time. But with an average of sunspot number for the past few days at 30.7, the same path has excellent probability of opening with strong signals from 1700-2100z.

Mail after the 10 meter contest last weekend indicated that propagation was disappointing on Saturday and much better on Sunday. You can also see comments on the Contest Soapbox at http://www.arrl.org/contests/soapbox/. Just select "2009 ARRL Ten Meter Contest" from the drop-down menu.

In contrast to the 10 meter reports, there were a great many enthusiastic reports on 160 meters propagation this week. James French, W8ISS of Lincoln Park, Michigan operated from the Red Cross communications center in Ann Arbor. He reports that the 10 meter contest didn't get interesting until late in the event on Sunday. He says, "Listened a few times down on 160 meters and heard non-stop signals across the whole band."

Jan Wise, KA5PRO in Pocahontas, Arkansas was surprised on December 10 at 0407z when he contacted KH7XS in Laupahoehoe, which is on the northeast side of the Big Island of Hawaii. Jan was running 100 watts SSB on 1.845 MHz into a simple inverted L antenna at 50 feet.

Dick Bingham, W7WKR of Stehekin, Washington reports that last Saturday night in the evening local (West Coast) time he was surprised to work an SM4HCM and FM5CD on 160 meter CW with 100 watts into a sloping half-square antenna.

Jeff Hartley, N8II of Shepherdstown, West Virginia also reports great 160 meter conditions last weekend during the 10 meter contest. He noted great signals from Northern Europe, and 160 was "much better than during the 160 meter contest!"

Jon Jones, N0JK of Wichita, Kansas said 10 meters was bad Saturday, but he had great results on Sunday. He reports, "There was widespread Es (E-skip) across the southern part of the country. Had Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida and Alabama stations in all afternoon steady and loud. After 2200 UTC the Es spread west to Arizona, New Mexico and northeast to Ontario, Maryland, Michigan, etc."

"The Es to the Gulf of Mexico allowed an 'Es link' to form TEP (trans-equatorial propagation), and on to South America. So despite a low solar flux, CX, LU, PY stations were very strong around 2300 UTC Dec 13. I was able to work several PYs CXs and LU1HF while running 5 watts and a CB mag-mount whip on the car on 10M CW. They were an honest 599 despite a very simple antenna to Kansas. As strong as during solar Cycle 23 peak."

Randy Shirbroun, ND0C of Worthington, Minnesota reports some great 80 meter conditions last weekend. He wrote, "I was playing around off and on in the 10 meter Contest and there was some great Es and so-so TE on Saturday evening and especially Sunday afternoon. But for me the really exciting thing was around midnight (local) on Friday night on 80 meters."

"I run exclusively QRP so I am definitely a slave to the whims of the propagation gods. There wasn't anything going on 10 when I checked it around 0545 UTC Saturday - not very surprising but I was hoping for maybe a little MS (meteor scatter) or Es. So I went to 80 CW and was very pleasantly surprised. I was able to work 6 central and eastern Europeans (HA, HB, 9A, S5, and DK) in an hour running 5 watts to a dipole at 45 feet here in SW Minnesota. It wasn't easy, but the band was relatively quiet and no big pile-ups and the guys on the other end were patient and obviously had good ears. It was definitely my best hour of 80 meter DXing! I think that was a very special opening, but I definitely need to check 80 more often. (I'll bet it was a great night for the guys on 160 with decent antennas and a little power.) Hopefully it is a sign of things to come this winter on the lower bands, especially with non-existent sunspots. Maybe 5BDXCC with QRP is possible! I have 240 on 10, 270 on 15, 270 on 20, 100 on 40 and now 55 on 80 - we'll see!"

Randy Crews, W7TJ of Spokane, Washington wrote on December 16, "We are still in the low portion of the cycle, and I remember in years past during this time with a quiet Sun and geomagnetic field, low band propagation is exceptionally good. The higher solar activity enhances 40 meters, 30 meters and even 80 meters. Last weekend I worked three new European countries on 160 meters. 80, 40, and 30 meters offer short path European propagation starting an hour before local sunrise, switching to long path at sunrise, and back to short path propagation once again about 45 minutes to an hour past sunrise. Pretty cool!"

Robert Elek, W3HKK of Johnstown, Ohio reported on December 12, "Hark! Sunspots! And a big bump up in 40/80/160 DX was noted on Dec 11 and 12. But prior to that, 40 had been relatively quiet for the past week. However, on 12/6, OX3KQ sounded like a beacon on 7.153, with signals from S7 to S9 +5 dB for a couple of hours (1900-2100z). Mid afternoon! My average noise level was S2. OX3KQ was using a rotary dipole at 70 feet and working pile ups into most of Europe, plus pockets of JA and stateside stations who could penetrate his European wall. HA, IZ4, EC, UW5, DJ2, YO, RK0, A41, Z31, UR5, RZ8 were a sample of what he was plucking off, plus a dozen or so US and a dozen JAs. Non stop DX for him, and it sounded like he was picking them off the top of the pile. Fascinating to see how the skip would move around favoring first to his east, then to his west, then to his north."

"Again, we see that on a quiet or dead band, DX is possible from almost any point on the globe on 40 meters. Also, E51NAA (North Cook Islands) was worked again, on both 12/11 and 12/12 between 0400-0500z, around 7.025 MHz with good signals. I've heard him coming through for over a week now, again, on a quiet band."

"Another Magical Opening on 160: On 12/11 at 0500z I worked TF4M, plus LA, SM, PA: all with 599 signals, with 100w cw/160m inverted L with an average height above ground of 10 feet! It seems 1.815-1.840 is a jam packed DX segment especially on Friday and Saturday nights. And around 1.843, a UM0 (Uzbekistan) was a solid 5x7(3 S-units above my noise) and looking hard for takers. Amazing! You could hear nearly all of Europe calling CQ that night, many signals in the 579 to 599 range. On an antenna you could almost jump up and touch! Amazing. So it doesn't take a lot to join the fun."

Otherwise, what's your explanation for the 1959/1960 sunspot peak when 20, 15 and 10 meters were open almost around the clock?

Just cuz it's dark in your back yard doesn't mean the other side of the

Owens bought it in 1967 and sold it in 1998, so he had it for 31 years, and I believe it had calls includeing KCWW, KNIX, KTUF and was for some time the originating station for the classic country satellite net that Owens had.

Nope, that was not the topic and I was not talking about a snowstorm or ham activity. You were commenting on "sunspots at night" and I responded to that with a classic historical example of how sunspots, if there are any, could affect (your) propagation at night.

"I-Bust or H-Doomed"

"In these trying times, it should be pointed out that in most cases adding IBOC dramatically increases electric bills. I did three build-outs in Indianapolis and it almost doubled the power bills for the transmitter sites. Multiply this across the board and it is untold thousands of dollars a day going up in heat. If IBOC carriers were turned off, a lot of jobs could be saved with that money."

Greg. Did you tell where your receiver was located? I didn't know Schmarder was selling loops. I bought some litz off of him. Does he have a website?

Loops are cool. I've got a big air loop. I've run across a dude named stormwise and he sells some long ferrite rods. That's my next project. If anybody wants more info on rods then ask.

Wall outlets come in 3 grades.
Residential... The lowest quality. These are not really suitable for large appliances, or outlets that will be plugged/unplugged frequently.
Spec-A significantly higher quality (more copper, bigger pieces, better contacts to hold the plug tighter and make better contact) Hospital Grade (essential Spec grade with the extra cost being the product liability insurance).

Then of course there is the matter of Mdade in USA versus Made in

If CSPAN is going to just edit what they think the American People should know about, then we need another cable news channel dedicated only to the cameras and audio of the US Congress, and they should include the date, not just the time in the video feeds?

Why is CSPAN allowed to editorialize content? Should we demand members of the Republican Congress to tackle this?

Should senior citizens who know how to tweak technology to rip the audio from video recordings into .mp3 files that they can listen to be concerned that CSPAN is not covering the live reading of bills and amendments in Congress - and that CSPAN is an active partner by promoting potential corruption in government by covering another corrupt government program, the Census?

Why, Democrats (D for Dream Killer) don't want you to know what are in the bills? Hows that hope and change from an elected liar working for ya?

If you don't fill out your Census form, Acorn thugs will come to your house? When states already hold databases full of eligible voters, why are citizens told to support a program rife for opportunities of corruption instead of relying on the verified (anyone can lie on the Census) government data bases that actually are more accurate and already paid for?

The first area of opportunity for corruption in the Census, determining who to send the forms to. The second opportunity for corruption in the Census, what workers "discover" when they go roaming the neighbourhoods, and the numbers are large enough that relying on databases that are already paid for, is but another signal the Chinese and any other potential foreign investor in the United States that this Congress has no interest in the financial solvency of their nation?

Fulfillment of the "enumeration" requirement could be accomplished with great accuracy by simply counting verified identities of citizens by "enumerating" valid state identification records (which will automatically have performed the sorting out of primary residence identification problems).

Isn't it odd, that the concept of credit, gives power to groups of people to over come the "social justice" problems of greedy men in areas of commerce and neighborhoods? Instead of two year struggles they could have shortened that to weeks by forming their own businesses instead of unions?

If you can organize a union, you can organize your own company, with the tools of credit, since you will have the business talent, the plan, and the ability, all that is missing is the credit?

Democrat = D for Dream Killers? What is happening to the tools of credit under the Demo Crap Empire? The Death Star is almost ready, Master.....LOL.....?

The History Channel is promoting this socialist garbage with out these important viewpoints that counter those views?

Advancing that "patriotism" is about being born on a piece of land that should make it's will imposed on the will of other nations?

I always thought "patriotism" was the collective sense that you personally were threatened, that you were in danger if the will of other nations were left to their own devices?

By quoting the declarations of angry witnesess?

This is in the same vain of "social justice" and the warped opinions that feed the sense of "injustice" where none exists?

They do include the date in the video feeds. It is up in the corner and says "today," "last Wednesday", etc.

C-SPAN is not government funded. It is paid for by the cable providers. And you certainly should know that because they tell you EVERY DAY where the money comes from.

If C-SPAN doesn't show you something, it is because they can't show it to you. They would show every second if they could. They can't.

Maybe...I think you need to watch C-SPAN more because all this info is available either on TV and or online.

Uh, date requires numbers?

No, Congress funds CSPAN by demanding that cable companies pay for it, and if Congress is going to do that, then why should they get funding if they are going to editorialize like CNN or MSNBC?

You're full of crap. Congress didn't demand anything. This is from Wikipedia on how C-SPAN started. It was that guy Brian Lamb:

<C-SPAN (pronounced /si.sp n/, see-span), an abbreviation of Cable-Satellite Public Affairs Network, is an American cable television network owned and operated by the cable industry. It airs non-stop coverage of government proceedings and public affairs programming. C-SPAN does not accept outside advertising; the only commercials aired are for its own programming and products.

C-SPAN operates three television channels, one radio station and several websites that provide streaming media including archives of many C-SPAN programs.

History
Brian Lamb, C-SPAN's chairman and CEO, conceived of C-SPAN while working at Cablevision, a cable industry trade magazine, as their Washington D.C. bureau chief. C-SPAN was created as a cable-industry financed, non-profit network for televising sessions of the U.S. Congress and other public affairs event and policy discussions. Bob Rosencrans, a cable industry pioneer, was alone in providing the initial seed funding of $25,000 to start up C-SPAN.[1] It receives no funding from any government source, has no contract with the government, and does not sell sponsorships or advertising. It strives for neutrality and a lack of bias in its public affairs programming.<

Maybe...so there is no funding to get revoked.

Doesn't affect actual transmission from the tower site, but it sure affects groundwave coverage. During a snowstorm back in about 1995, I could listen, on my pocket transistor radio, to 620 KGW, 1080 KWJJ and 1190 KEX from Portland, OR from my home in Lewiston, ID (about 370 miles). This was in the late morning hours, BTW. No skip. The storm was extant the entire distance.

I've seen Dave's collection of custom-made crystal radios and loops at local hamfests. He's an excellent craftsman. He doesn't have a specific "product line" - he just builds whatever strikes his fancy.

His web site has many project ideas, links to parts suppliers etc.

OK, then it does or can aid into your DXing.

I never really knew if the snow itself did, I always had the belief it did in some ways, if for anything else but to allow a more distant signal to be heard more clearly for lack of any static or hiss. That's the way it was last night when I copied the station in Long Island, it was as clear as hearing something here local, not the signal strength itself but understanding what I was hearing.

No doubt, he did a fantastic job on mine. What first caught me was the look of the loop, I was hoping though that it worked as well as it looked and it got to me without being killed in transit. Here is a pic of it. Scroll down to the "Five Sided Loop" - he named it "Penta-Loop."

I don't know about the skill part Dave but it definitely takes patience. I would find myself at times kind of wrinkling my forehead, know what I mean? Almost like squinting but not, then catch myself and relax.

I know this one guy who has the P780 and he really has his tricked out. One of the mods is he added a earphone jack to his, that would definitely be a nice add on feature to have.

Why do you say it's a very special kind of DX? I know there is more hash and stations fighting to get in there if that's what you mean.

Looks like it was a bust in the US but did well overseas.

http://www.boxofficemojo.com/movies/?id=boatthatrocked.htm

Interesting to see how much more this movie made overseas ($28 mil) versus only $7mil in the US

Did anyone see this movie and two, is it worth seeing when it comes out on DVD?

There was a guy who use to post in here named Ron Hardin if I remember correctly. I was fascinated in reading posts when he spoke of BCB DXing. Apparently he had two antennas outside that he could control.

That's where I got curious as to what would happen if anything if I were to use two loops inside and on my turntable.

Answering your question, I would say both "at times." It seems if I had to pick one it would be the nulling of but sometimes it will enhance the crap out of a station, like last night, I just had more hash than anything to contend with last night till I found that one particular setting and that was it - - if I would have barely turned my table in either direction or touched any of the loops I wouldn't have been able to hear it - - it would have been gone like a fart in the wind.

That's where like David said is the patience part.

Yeah, he isn't anymore sadly. He was ten years ago

Yeah, I know he sells all kinds of "how bout' thats." I definitely appreciated him doing that loop in red litz instead of just enamelled wire. Yes he does have a website, actually its changed I noticed today ..... and changed for the good - - find the link I left in this Yes, they definitely are.:-) I'd love to have one or two more. I have the one from Dave. I have two of the Radio Shack loops and another one that is made from PVC. It's painted with a high gloss satin black and measures 36X39. The feature I really enjoy with that one is that I can tilt the entire loop forward or backward or side to side. I never thought that would make much of a difference but it does at times.

One day ( not too long from now) I'm going to put up two antennas outside and wayyyy up there just for the BCB. I can just imagine if like last night....how much stronger that signal may have been if I were to have had those antennas outside. But that is something I would have to really read up on and ask for help from the group on or go back and read some of Ron's old posts. I have no idea how they should be spaced or anything actually and with something like that which is IMO going to be an investment in both money and time -
I don't want to screw it up.

It's popular overseas because most of the people who are now in their 50's grew up listening to pirate radio. Note that it was not pirate radio as in a guy sitting in a shack with a old ham rig, it was a full scale broadcast operation on a ship, in international waters.

They even had sales offices in major cities, e.g. London, selling advertising.

At the time the BBC was dead set against rock 'n roll and the only way people could hear it without buying records was to listen to these stations.

It's much more nostagila than history and almost nothing about radio itself.

If you enjoy Britsh comedies such as "Shaun of the Dead", "Love Actually", etc you'll find it filled with the minor players. No big names. Emma Thompson is in there in an unrecognizable part.

As for waiting for it to come out on DVD in the US, if it does, it will go directly to the $1 bin. People in the US are "just not into" the subject.

IMHO it's one of those things that you download or stream, watch and delete. YMMV.

Geoff.

This is a contribution to your inquiry about the label: "holocaust-denial". First of all there was NO holocaust, other than those taking place in every country that is at war.

The incarceration of "enemies of the state" is a world-wide practice. The primary question here is; what constitutes a holocaust? Camps, depravation, imprisonment, harsh treatment, executions, hunger etc.?

Those conditions exist in all camps, in all nations, under all regimes. Remember Andersonville, Manzanar, the Gulags, the British camps in Africa, the American death-camps in Germany, they all constitute a "holocaust" if viewed through the lenses of Jewish "holocaust-sufferers".

Read the Red Cross reports. Go to the Red Cross museum, headquarters in your city and pick up the records. Anyway theres a few independent witnesses.
http://www.vho.org/GB/Books/dth/fndstats.html

There are other indications as well that the theory of mass destruction of the Hungarian Jews is incorrect: the witnesses to this destruction unanimously claim that during these alleged mass exterminations the limited capacity of the Birkenau crematoria necessitated the excavation of enormous pits, in which the bodies were burned. Dark clouds of smoke, they claim, darkened the sky over Birkenau during this procedure. Fortunately (or unfortunately, depending on one's perspective) the aerial reconnaissance photographs taken by the Allies during this time prove that in the Birkenau camp, which was not obscured by clouds of smoke when the pictures were taken, there were neither open fires, nor giant pits, nor smoke activity on any scale large or small, nor piles of dead bodies, nor great supplies of firewood, nor anything else of the sort.[45] The Polish Historical Society concludes that in light of this evidence the number of victims in Auschwitz must be reduced by another 400,000 plus 74,000 (Polish Jews from the liquidated ghetto Lodz, who are also claimed to have been gassed around this time), leaving some 500,000 victims for Auschwitz.[46]

Even allegedly probative documents of the Nuremberg Tribunal cannot change this, since such documents are by no means always genuine, or true, and only ever provide evidence for deportations which are not disputed here in the first place - they never document an extermination. The reader is reminded of the example of Dachau, the concentration camp where the IMT alleged that hundreds of thousands were gassed, a claim which in the end turned out to be nothing more substantial than an atrocity propaganda lie.[47] We shall come across another case of dubious IMT documents in the discussion of the Soviet Union.

http://www.ihr.org/books/rassinier/debunking1-0.html

Jews will once again subject Robert Faurisson (aged 78) to a trial for "holocaust denial." The French judicial police served Faurisson a summons demanding that he appear in court this Thursday (24 Jan 08). Faurisson is charged with attending the December 11, 2006 conference in Iran titled, "Review of the Holocaust: Global Vision."

This will be the fifteenth time that Jews have hauled Faurisson into court. Jews have already frozen his bank account, while court officials have repeatedly visited his home, threatening him and his wife with seizure of their furniture to pay for financial "damages" caused by his "heretical" remarks.

Faurisson is arguably the most thorough of all examiners of the holo-hoax. Ernst Z&#65533;ndel, Gemar Rudolph and others are in prison, but Jews consider Faurisson enemy #1, because of the meticulousness of his work. And since the holo-hoax cannot be defended with reason and science, Jews use oppressive laws and prison sentences to protect it from rational criticism. In many cases they use extreme violence, as you will see later in this post. Fortunately the Goyim are too cowardly to resist Jewish terrorism.

At the Iran conference, Faurisson said that for the past 32 years, he has been waiting for someone to show him one of the chambers where Jews where supposedly gassed during the holo-hoax.

In July 2006, a Paris court convicted Faurisson of "holocaust denial" because of remarks made by Faurisson on the Sahar 1 Iranian satellite channel in February 2005. Faurisson was given a three-month suspended prison term, and was also fined 7,500 euros.

The former Prime Minister of France, Dominique de Villepin, said, "We [the French people] are in a democracy. Everyone has the right to express his views freely."

Therefore all defamatory remarks against Muslims or Islam are protected as "free speech."

However, any questioning of the holo-hoax or Jewish atrocities is illegal.

The Gayssot Act of 1990 - initiated by President Jaques Chirac -- prohibits any questioning or examination of the holo-hoax.

Faurisson's specialty is examining documents and manuscripts. In 1991 he was fired from his university post for questioning the holo-hoax. He was charged with violating the Gayssot Act, (Loi Gayssot) passed on 13 July 1990 that makes it illegal in France to question the holo-hoax. The law was proposed by the communist deputy Jean-Claude Gayssot, and is one of several European laws that make it illegal to examine the holo-hoax.

Its first article states that "any discrimination founded on the membership or non-membership to an ethnic group, a nation, a race or a religion is prohibited."

Discrimination against Muslims, of course, is permissible.

When Faurisson was terminated at the university, he appealed to the ICCPRHRC (International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and Human Rights Committee). This is a UN group that polices literature for any questioning of the holo-hoax. (It is not to be confused with the more high-profile Commission on Human Rights, a Charter-based mechanism, or its replacement, the Human Rights Council, which of course is controlled by Jews.)

Frederich Born leader of the ICRC in Hungary and honored by the jews.

Of course that strengthens the credibility of the Yad Vashem and who can say anything about a man being honored and who probably deserved the hnor.

Most of their purchases of relief food were made in Rumania, Hungary and Slovakia.
Not only did large numbers of the three million or so European Jews avoid internment altogether, but the emigration of Jews continued throughout the war, generally by way of Hungary, Rumania and Turkey.

But they were living in the best part of Europe as far as food was concerned. And the terrible reflects the difficulties of keeping people in camps and all the terribles do not describe genocide, or even conditions as bad as Israel today.

And the fact that some leaders might have stretched the truth about what they thought Hitler said or thought about killing of jews, there is no proof of genocide as a policy and no treatment as there is in Israel today. Of attacking people with planes, helicopters, and tanks. As happens in Israel on a daily basis.

The Toben case today:

Among the fooled, at least the partially fooled, was Berenbaum, former director of the United States Holocaust Research Institute at the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington. Berenbaum had been asked to read the manuscript by film producer Harris Salomon, who still plans an adaptation of the book.

Berenbaum's tentative support - "Crazier things have happened," he told The Associated Press last fall - was cited by the publisher as it initially defended the book. Berenbaum now says he saw factual errors, including Rosenblat's description of Theresienstadt, the camp from which he was eventually liberated, but didn't think of challenging the love story.

"There's a limit to what I can verify, because I was not there," he says. "I can verify the general historical narrative, but in my research I rely upon the survivors to present the specifics of their existence with integrity. When they don't, they destroy so much and they ruin so much, and that's terrible."

"I was burned," he added. "And I have to read books more skeptically because I was burned."

Anger, sadness over fabricated Holocaust story

By HILLEL ITALIE, AP National Writer - Sun Dec 28, 1:09 pm ET

NEW YORK - It's the latest story that touched, and betrayed, the world.

"Herman Rosenblat and his wife are the most gentle, loving, beautiful people,"

� JUST VERY GREEDY AND COULD NOT RESIST THE EASY DOLLAR.

� AFTER THEY ARE ALL DOING IT.

� literary agent Andrea Hurst said Sunday, anguishing over why she, and so many others, were taken by Rosenblat's story of love born on opposite sides of a barbed-wire fence at a concentration camp.

"I question why I never questioned it. I believed it; it was an incredible, hope-filled story."

On Saturday, Berkley Books canceled Rosenblat's memoir, "Angel at the Fence." Rosenblat acknowledged that he and his wife did not meet, as they had said for years, at a sub-camp of Buchenwald, where she allegedly sneaked him apples and bread. The book was supposed to come out in February.

Rosenblat, 79, has been married to the former Roma Radzicky for 50 years, since meeting her on a blind date in New York. In a statement issued Saturday through his agent, he described himself as an advocate of love and tolerance who falsified his past to better spread his message.

"I wanted to bring happiness to people," said Rosenblat, who now lives in the Miami area. "I brought hope to a lot of people. My motivation was to make good in this world."

Rosenblat's believers included not only his agent and his publisher, but Oprah Winfrey, film producers, journalists, family members and strangers who ignored, or didn't know about, the warnings from scholars that his story didn't make sense.

Other Holocaust memoirists have devised greater fantasies. Misha Defonseca, author of "Misha: A Memoire of the Holocaust Years," pretended she was a Jewish girl who lived with wolves during the war, when she was actually a non-Jew who lived, without wolves, in Belgium.

 ANOTHER REALLY LOVELY PERSON WHO COULD NOT RESIST OF THE EASY DOLLAR.

Historical records prove Rosenblat was indeed at Buchenwald and other camps.

"How sad that he felt he had to embellish a life of surviving the Holocaust and of being married for half a century," said Holocaust scholar Michael Berenbaum.

The damage is broad. Publishing, the most trusting of industries, has again been burned by a memoir that fact-checking might have prevented. Berkley is an imprint of Penguin Group (USA), which in March pulled Margaret B. Jones'

"Love and Consequences" after the author acknowledged she had invented her story of gang life in Los Angeles. Winfrey fell, as she did with James Frey, for a narrative of suffering and redemption better suited for television than for history.

The damage is deep. Scholars and other skeptics as well as fellow survivors fear that Rosenblat's fabrications will only encourage doubts about the Holocaust.

"I am very worried because many of us speak to thousands of student each year," says Sidney Finkel, a longtime friend of Rosenblat's and a fellow survivor. "We go before audiences. We tell them a story and now some people will question what I experienced."

Next we have the German records where no mention of killing of jews has been found.In fact the documents like this month disprove the huge distortions and exaggerations made by the jewish contingent.

And as in the country today the numbers actually involved considering that millions fought with and served Germany against what was jews against their country of residence.

8A1E5C72C1256B66005B2171A little hard to obtain a report that is not heavilyinfluenced byjewishpressure to includE holocaust AS THEY WOULD LIKE ALL TOSEE IT..So youwill notice that holocaust is not denied just a quiet it wasbadetc.THEJEWS AND THE CONCENTRATION CAMPS:A FACTUAL APPRAISAL BY THE REDCROSS.Thereis one survey of the Jewish question in Europe during WorldWarTwo and theconditions of Germany's concentration camps which isalmostunique in itshonesty and objectivity, the three-volume Reportof theInternationalCommittee of the Red Cross on its Activitiesduring the SecondWorld War,Geneva, 1948.This comprehensive account from an entirelyneutralsourceincorporated and expanded the findings of two previousworks:Documentssur l'activit&#65533; du CICR en faveur des civils d&#65533;tenus danslescamps deconcentration en Allemagne 1939-1945 (Geneva, 1946), andInterArma Caritas:the Work of the ICRC during the Second World War(Geneva, 1947).The team ofauthors, headed by Fr&#65533;d&#65533;ric Siordet,explained in the openingpages of theReport that their object, in thetradition of the Red Cross, hadbeen strictpolitical neutrality, andherein lies its great value.The ICRCsuccessfullyapplied the 1929 Geneva military convention inorder to gainaccess tocivilian internees held in Central and WesternEurope by theGermanyauthorities. By contrast, the ICRC was unable togain any access totheSoviet Union, which had failed to ratify theConvention. The millionsofcivilian and military internees held inthe USSR, whose conditions wereknownto be by far the worst, werecompletely cut off from anyinternationalcontact or supervision.The Red Cross Report is of value in thatit firstclarifies thelegitimate circumstances under which Jews weredetainedinconcentration camps, i.e. as enemy aliens. In describing thetwocategoriesof civilian internees, the Report distinguishes the secondtypeas "Civiliansdeported on administrative grounds (inGerman,"Schutzh&#65533;ftlinge"), who werearrested for political or racialmotivesbecause their presence wasconsidered a danger to the State ortheoccupation forces" (Vol. 111, p. 73).These persons, it continues,"wereplaced on the same footing as personsarrested or imprisonedunder common lawfor security reasons." (P.74).TheReport admits that the Germans were atfirst reluctant to permitsupervisionby the Red Cross of people detained ongrounds relating tosecurity, but bythe latter part of 1942, the ICRCobtained importantconcessions fromGermany. They were permitted to distributefoodparcels to majorconcentration camps in Germany from August 1942,and"from February 1943onwards this concession was extended to all othercampsand prisons" (Vol.111, p. 78). The ICRC soon establishedcontact with campcommandants andlaunched a food relief programmewhich continued to functionuntil the lastmonths of 1945, letters ofthanks for which came pouring infrom Jewishinternees.Red Cross Recipients Were JewsThe Report states that"As many as9,000 parcels were packed daily.From the autumn of 1943 until May1945,about 1,112,000 parcels with atotal weight of 4,500 tons were sent offtothe concentration camps"(Vol. III, p. 80). In addition to food,thesecontained clothing andpharmaceutical supplies. "Parcels were sent toDachau,Buchenwald,Sangerhausen, Sachsenhausen,Oranienburg,Flossenburg,Landsberg-am-Lech, Fl&#65533;ha, Ravensbr&#65533;ck,Hamburg-Neuengamme,Mauthausen,Theresienstadt, Auschwitz, Bergen-Belsen, tocamps near Viennaand inCentral and Southern Germany. The principalrecipients wereBelgians,Dutch, French, Greeks, Italians, Norwegians, Polesand statelessJews"(Vol. III, p. 83).In the course of the war, "The Committeewas in aposition to transferand distribute in the form of relief suppliesovertwenty millionSwiss francs collected by Jewish welfareorganisationsthroughout theworld, in particular by the American JointDistributionCommittee ofNew York" (Vol. I, p. 644). This latter organisationwaspermitted bythe German Government to maintain offices in Berlin untiltheAmericanentry into the war. The ICRC complained that obstruction oftheirvastrelief operation for Jewish internees came not from the Germansbutfromthe tight Allied blockade of Europe. Most of their purchases ofrelieffoodwere made in Rumania, Hungary and Slovakia.The ICRC had special praiseforthe liberal conditions which prevailedat Theresienstadt up to the timeoftheir last visits there in April1945. This camp, "where there wereabout40,000 Jews deported fromvarious countries was a relativelyprivilegedghetto" (Vol. III, p.75). According to the Report, "'TheCommittee'sdelegates were able tovisit the camp at Theresienstadt (Terezin)which wasused exclusivelyfor Jews and was governed by special conditions.Frominformationgathered by the Committee, this camp had been started asanexperimentby certain leaders of the Reich ... These men wished to givetheJewsthe means of setting up a communal life in a town undertheirownadministration and possessing almost complete autonomy. . .twodelegateswere able to visit the camp on April 6th, 1945. Theyconfirmedthe favourableimpression gained on the first visit" (Vol.I, p . 642).TheICRC also hadpraise for the regime of Ion Antonescu of FascistRumania wherethe Committeewas able to extend special relief to183,000 Rumanian Jews untilthe time ofthe Soviet occupation. The aidthen ceased, and the ICRCcomplained bitterlythat it never succeeded"in sending anything whatsoever toRussia" (Vol. II,p. 62). The samesituation applied to many of the Germancamps after their"liberation"by the Russians. The ICRC received a voluminousflow of mailfromAuschwitz until the period of the Soviet occupation, whenmany oftheinternees were evacuated westward. But the efforts of the RedCrosstosend relief to internees remaining at Auschwitz under Sovietcontrolwerefutile. However, food parcels continued to be sent toformerAuschwitzinmates transferred west to such camps as BuchenwaldandOranienburg.NoEvidence Of GenocideOne of the most important aspects ofthe Red CrossReport is that itclarifies the true cause of those deaths thatundoubtedlyoccurred inthe camps toward the end of the war. Says the Report:"In thechaoticcondition of Germany after the invasion during the finalmonths ofthewar, the camps received no food supplies at all and starvationclaimedanincreasing number of victims. Itself alarmed by this situation,theGermanGovernment at last informed the ICRC on February 1st, 1945 ...InMarch 1945,discussions between the President of the ICRC andGeneral of theS.S.Kaltenbrunner gave even more decisive results.Relief could henceforthbedistributed by the ICRC, and one delegatewas authorised to stay in eachcamp..." (Vol. III, p. 83).Clearly, the German authorities were at painstorelieve the diresituation as far as they were able. The Red Cross arequiteexplicitin stating that food supplies ceased at this time due totheAlliedbombing of German transportation, and in the interests ofinternedJewsthey had protested on March 15th, 1944 against "thebarbarousaerial warfareof the Allies" (Inter Arma Caritas, p. 78). ByOctober2nd, 1944, the ICRCwarned the German Foreign Office of theimpendingcollapse of the Germantransportation system, declaringthatstarvation conditions for peoplethroughout Germany werebecominginevitable.In dealing with thiscomprehensive, three-volume Report,it isimportant to stress that thedelegates of the International RedCrossfound no evidence whatever at thecamps in Axis occupied Europe ofadeliberate policy to exterminate the Jews.In all its 1,600 pages theReportdoes not even mention such a thing as a gaschamber. It admitsthat Jews, likemany other wartime nationalities, sufferedrigours andprivations, but itscomplete silence on the subject ofplannedextermination is ample refutationof the Six Million legend. LiketheVatican representatives with whom theyworked, the Red Cross founditselfunable to indulge in the irresponsiblecharges of genocidewhich had becomethe order of the day. So far as thegenuine mortalityrate is concerned, theReport points out that most of theJewishdoctors from the camps were beingused to combat typhus on theeasternfront, so that they were unavailablewhen the typhus epidemics of1945broke out in the camps (Vol. I, p. 204ff) - Incidentally, itisfrequently claimed that mass executions werecarried out in gaschamberscunningly disguised as shower facilities. Againthe Reportmakes nonsense ofthis allegation. "Not only the washing places,butinstallations for baths,showers and laundry were inspected bythedelegates. They had often to takeaction to have fixtures madelessprimitive, and to get them repaired orenlarged" (Vol. III, p. 594).NotAll Were InternedVolume III of the Red CrossReport, Chapter 3 (I. JewishCivilianPopulation) deals with the "aid given tothe Jewish section ofthefree population," and this chapter makes it quiteplain that by nomeansall of the European Jews were placed in internmentcamps, butremained,subject to certain restrictions, as part of thefreecivilian population.This conflicts directly with the "thoroughness"ofthe supposed"extermination programme", and with the claim in theforged H&#65533;ssmemoirs thatEichmann was obsessed with seizing "everysingle Jew he could layhis handson."In Slovakia, for example, where Eichmann's assistant DieterWislicenywasin charge, the Report states that "A large proportion oftheJewish minorityhad permission to stay in the country, and atcertainperiods Slovakia waslooked upon as a comparative haven of refugeforJews, especially for thosecoming from Poland. Those who remainedinSlovakia seem to have been incomparative safety until the end ofAugust1944, when a rising against theGerman forces took place. Whileit is truethat the law of May 15th, 1942 hadbrought about theinternment of severalthousand Jews, these people were heldin campswhere the conditions of foodand lodging were tolerable, and wheretheinternees were allowed to do paidwork on terms almost equal to thoseofthe free labour market" (Vol. I, p.646).Not only did large numbers of thethree million or so European Jewsavoidinternment altogether, but theemigration of Jews continuedthroughout thewar, generally by way of Hungary,Rumania and Turkey.Ironically, post-warJewish emigration fromGerman-occupiedterritories was also facilitated by theReich, as in the caseof thePolish Jews who had escaped to France before itsoccupation. "TheJewsfrom Poland who, whilst in France, had obtained entrancepermits totheUnited States were held to be American citizens by theGermanoccupyingauthorities, who further agreed to recognize the validityofabout threethousand passports issued to Jews by the consulates ofSouthAmericancountries" (Vol. I, p. 645).As future U.S. citizens, these Jews wereheld atthe Vittel camp insouthern France for American aliens. The emigrationofEuropean Jewsfrom Hungary in particular proceeded during the warunhinderedby theGerman authorities. "Until March 1944," says the. RedCrossReport,"Jews who had the privilege of visas for Palestine were freetoleaveHungary" (Vol. I, p. 648). Even after the replacement oftheHorthyGovernment in 1944 (following its attempted armistice withtheSovietUnion) with a government more dependent on Germanauthority,theemigration of Jews continued.The Committee secured the pledgesof bothBritain and the UnitedStates "to give support by every means totheemigration of Jews fromHungary," and from the U.S. Government theICRCreceived a messagestating that "The Government of the United States ...nowspecificallyrepeats its assurance that arrangements will be made by itforthecare of all Jews who in the present circumstances are allowedtoleave"(Vol. I, p . 649).Biedermann agreed that in the nineteen instancesthat "DidSix MillionReally Die?" quoted from the Report of theInternationalCommittee ofthe Red Cross on its Activities during the SecondWorld War andInterArma Caritas (this includes the above material), it did soaccurately.Aquote from Charles Biedermann (a delegate of theInternationalCommittee ofthe Red Cross and Director of the RedCross'International Tracing Service)under oath at the Z�ndel Trial(February9, 10, 11 and12,1988).http://www.thetruthseeker.co.uk/article.asp?ID=2735http://www.worldcat.org/oclc/14645862&referer=brief_results ACTUALLY -- AND CONTRARY TOHISHIGHLY FLATTERING PUBLIC IMAGE -- THE RENOWNED "NAZI HUNTER" HASAWELL-DOCUMENTED BUT LITTLE-KNOWN RECORD OF DECEIT, MENDACITYANDPREVARICATION. The alleged purpose ofthistorture is to extract a truthful confession but its real consequence,ashuman rights organizations have pointed out, is to producewhateverstatements are necessary to end the suffering.For 15 monthsDershowitz hasapplied a variant of this truth-seeking technique -- lessphysicallypainful but no less excruciating -- to prospective publishers ofBeyondChutzpah, which offers a critical examination of Israel's humanrightsrecord and Dershowitz's defense of it. Enlisting one of the mostpowerfullaw firms in the country after his personal initiativesprovedunsuccessful, Dershowitz has repeatedly threatened to bankrupthighlyrespected publishers with litigation if they didn't cancel publicationofmy book. He could then proclaim that the cancellation confirmed the"truth"that Beyond Chutzpah didn't meet scholarly standards. Dershowitzjustifiedthese blackmail tactics on the ground that Beyond Chutzpah libelshim. Yet,when I first began to expose his gross scholarly misconduct,Dershowitzpublicly declared at UCLA (on 21 October 2003) that he wouldn'trespondwith a libel action because he believed "so strongly in theFirstAmendment and full freedom of speech." Ironically, just as hewasthreatening my publishers with expensive and time-consuminglawsuits,Dershowitz denounced Holocaust denier David Irving, who had suedDeborahLipstadt for libel, with these words: "Before Irving lost his case[againstLipstadt], several publishers had refused to issue books criticalofIrving, out of fear of his bringing expensive and time-consuminglawsuits.That was a chilling of free speech" (Afterword to Lipstadt'sHistory onTrial; his emphasis). However, through the skillful mediation ofNationmagazine senior editor Roane Carey (who was the freelance editor ofBeyondChutzpah) and others, a satisfactory compromise was reached thatprotectedthe interests of both publisher and author, and, mostimportantly,preserved the integrity of the book. "Theorthodoxholocaust story can not possibly be defended with rationalargumentsbecause its absurdity is overwhelming. We are asked to believe inthe fatamorgana of a vast slaughter in killing factories which left notraceswhatsoever - no documents, no bones, no teeth, no ashes - nothing!We arefurther asked to believe that the Allies, who had a large networkofinformers all over Europe and a spy in the German leadership(AdmiralCanaris, the head of the German intelligence), did not becomeaware ofthis gigantic genocide until the end of the war, for if they hadknownabout the mass murder, they would have acted to stop it. Finally, weareasked to believe that the Jews in Poland, the epicentre of theholocaust,did not know anything about the Auschwitz gas chambers as lateas inAugust 1944, otherwise the Jews from the Lodz ghetto would not havegoneto Auschwitz voluntarily - which is precisely what they did, asrelated byRaul Hilberg in his standard work about the holocaust (DieVernichtung dereuropaeischen Juden, p. 543/544). As the Zionist-controlledsystem of the"Western democracies" is woefully unable to counter therevisionists witharguments, it resorts to censorship and brute force inorder to silencethe dangerous heretics. And the Jews are graduallytransforming theholocaust into a religion. This is a very clever strategy,for as RobertFaurisson aptly remarks, one cannot refute a religion withscientificarguments. Thus, the holocaust museums and holocaust monumentsspreadinglike mushrooms all over America and Europe are really temples ofthe newreligion, whereas professional "holocaust survivors" such as ElieWieselare the priests of the new religion. To prove this assertion, weonly haveto quote Wiesel himself: "The Holocaust is a holy mystery, thesecret ofwhich is limited to the circle of the priesthood of survivors"(PeterNovick, The Holocaust in American Life, 1999, p. 211, 212,retranslatedfrom the German). Another high priest of the holocaust cult,SimonWiesenthal, goes even further: "When each of us comes before theSixMillion, we will be asked what we did with our lives... I will say: Ididnot forget you" (Simon Wiesenthal in Response, Vol. 20, Nr. 1).Nocritical questions about the holocaust are allowed because they areablasphemy: They cause immense distress to the eternal victimsofpersecution, the Jews, and are an attempt to whitewash National Socialism - the most evil ideology of all times which made theholocaustpossible! In today's Germany, it is even considered inadmissibletocompare the holocaust with the atrocities of communist tyrants suchasStalin or Cambodian dictator Pol Pot because this is regarded asa"relativisation" and "trivialization" of the worst crime inhistory.French Zionist propagandist Claude Lanzmann, the producer of a longandunspeakably dull film about the holocaust (the title of this film isShoa,the Hebrew word for "catastrophe", which is often used by Jews asasynonym for "holocaust") makes no effort to conceal that theholocaustcult is to replace Christianity: "If Auschwitz is something otherthan ahorror of history, then Christianity totters in its foundations.Christ isthe Son of God, who went to the end of the humanely endurable,where heendured the cruellest suffering. (...) If Auschwitz is true, thenthere isa human suffering with which that of Christ simply cannot becompared.(...) In this case, Christ is false, and salvation will not comefrom him.(...) Auschwitz is the refutation of Christ." (Les temps modernes,Paris,December 1993, p. 132, 133.)

Nowadays, a large percentage of theJews donot believe in God any more, but virtually all of them believe inthe SixMillion. The Zionist leadership cunningly exploits the holocaust tounitethe World's Jews by keeping them in a constant state of hysteriaandpersecution mania, insinuating that only if the Jews stick togetherwillthey be able to ban the threat of a new holocaust. It goes withoutsayingthat very few Non-Jews are willing to embrace the murkyholocaustreligion. While the overwhelming majority of people in the Weststillbelieve that the official holocaust version is essentially true (evenifthey suspect that the figures might me somewhat inflated), theyarethoroughly fed up with the eternal lamentation about Jewish victimsandJewish suffering. They simply don't want to hear it any more. InGermany,opinion polls showed that a vast majority of the population wasagainstthe planned holocaust monument in Berlin (which not a single majorparty,not a single leading politician and not a single big newspaper daredtooppose). Privately, the politicians are probably as profoundlydisgustedwith the endless holocaust litany as the rest of the population,but theycannot possibly afford to let the revisionists win because thiswouldshatter the very foundations of the "democratic" system to which theyowntheir careers and their wealth... The ultimate weapon against Zionismandthe state of Israel At the end of the year 2000, Israel is abesiegedcountry, but from the military point of view, it is still vastlysuperiorto its neighbours, and it enjoys the unconditional support of theUnitedStates. Should any of the Islamic states grow strong enough toseriouslythreaten Israel, it would most probably be attacked andmilitarilyannihilated by America. Russia is not likely to risk aconfrontation withthe USA for the sake of the Palestinians. We cancertainly admire thebravery of the Palestinians resistance fighters whoare willing tosacrifice their lives to liberate their homeland from thealien intruders,but realistically, they have no chance to win. ThePalestinians havestones and slings. The Israelis have helicopters andtanks. You can'tdestroy helicopters and tanks with stones and slings.When fightingone's enemy, one should always look for his weakest spot. Theweakest spotof Israel, its Achilles heel, is the holocaust lie to which itowes itsexistence. The revisionists can give the adversaries of Israelandinternational Zionism a terrible weapon. It is quite true thatmanyrevisionists are by no means guided by political considerations. Someofthem - Carlo Mattogno is a good example - are only motivatedbyintellectual curiosity: They want to ascertain what really happened totheJews during the Second World War. But even if revisionism is notapolitical movement, its political implications are tremendous.Therevisionists are endeavouring to find out the truth, and truth isthedeadliest enemy of Israel and international Jewry. Thus, therevisionistsobjectively work against Israel and Zionism, even ifsubjectively theirgoals are often purely scientific and devoid of anypolitical ambition.This is, of course, the reason why they are persecutedand their booksburnt in more and more countries. In view of the totalJewish mediacontrol and the ever-growing anti-revisionist repression inmany Westerncountries, it is very difficult indeed to achieve arevisionistbreakthrough. We revisionists are facing an uphill strugglewhich can onlypartly be explained by our total lack of financialresources. Fortunatelythe internet, which the Jews are unable to censure,has greatly improvedour possibilities to make the results of our researchknown to the World,but all the same, we should not cherish naiveillusions: Not every citizenof the Western world who is informed about therevisionist arguments willautomatically become revisionist andanti-Zionist. The average person inthe West - and particularly in Germany - has been so thoroughlybrainwashed that a sudden exposure tothe truth can provoke a nervousbreakdown or stomach cramps. I haverepeatedly witnessed this myself.Other people would gladly accept thetruth about the holocaust, but asthey know that even the slightestsuspicion of revisionism leads to socialostracism, economic ruin and legalpersecution, they understandably prefernot to get involved. However, if wewant to win the war against those whomone of my Russian friends called"the enemies of God and mankind".. Thelogical consequence of all this isthat those countries which areauthentically anti-Zionist and real friends ofthe oppressed Palestinianpeople should make the breakthrough of holocaustrevisionism theirforemost priority. dishonerable ?

You can't even spell the word, boy.

You need to be deported.

Didn't know that either David. Can you tell me why specifically only stations to the east? :-)

I would think this would be because of gray line skip. Points east will have already begun receiving skip by the time a station considerably to the west will have seen sunset.

That is weird you ask that because a while back I was going to start a thread on that subject but I didn't think anyone would bother to engage so I didn't bother.

First and foremost, you really need to have either a lazy susan or make something that spins 360. If you're using a radio that has a speaker that fires just from the front without any venting on the back of the radio to allow you to hear something clearly.... IMO you may want to rig up an extension speaker or you'll find yourself having to move around as your table turns and it really takes the fun out of it or makes it impossible IMO. Luckily for me the P780 has the venting on the back so I can hear a signal if it's faint without having to add on a speaker or getting up.

When I'm doing a session I will use just the radio barefoot on the table because if you have the loop ( IMO) sitting next to it - you aren't getting a true "hearing" so too speak.....unless you would happen to have your loop tuned 'exactly' to the spot you're on - and that just doesn't happen IMO. You wouldn't get anything accomplished that way.

I'll tune to either a faint spot or a spot that sounds like crap - with two or three stations jumbled together. Then I'll rotate the table to see where I stand signal wise. For about the last year or two (not last night) I just go to an empty spot where there's nothing, that's what is so cool - when you go to what seems is a empty spot and find something there by rotating your radio and then breaking out a loop to enhance it.

But when I see where I stand - then I'll break out Dave's loop and if between using the loop and the table - - and I still don't get what I want - - then I'll sit the Radio Shack loop right next to the radio.

But sometimes that will make it worse, like you said, then you start massaging them. I've found that more often than not - - the second loop has to be pulled somewhat away from the radio itself and tuned off freq. I'm sure you know what I mean. It just a matter of, like Dave said, having patience and remembering basically where you were before you tried to get the signal better and screwed it up...lol.

The real kicker is when you use THREE LOOPS and in that case there is no way I can use the 36X39 and Dave's loop and the rat shack....either Dave's has got to go or the bigger one....it's simply impossible. But I can use the two from rat shacks along with the five sided loop and make it work. Very rarely do I use three, but I will do it if I don't get the desired result from the two.

I wish others would pipe in so I could maybe pickup a different technique.

With the E1 there isn't > much directionality to speak of with the whip, so the loop is generally

Just curious Bob, why did you get a receiver that doesn't have a internal stick? Do you DX the BCB with something else or is that problem solved satisfactorally for you the way it is now.

with its tuning all the way at one end or Exactly. :-)

All that's when I take the portable out to the park or

Oh really? That doesn't surprise me from what I have read. I have never owned a receiver that had synch. I know what it does and all ( I think) ....but how would a radio with synch be able to better what I do with my technique/equipment on the BCB? Some make it sound like if you don't have it you're screwed and the other side doesn't make that big a deal about it. What gives?

That's the part I don't understand, he says both shortwave and the BCB is dead ( if I remember right).....but yet he's in here.<shaking my head>

That's like when you see atheists continually speaking negative about Jesus or God on messageboards or usenet, if he doesn't exist, why are you talking about something that doesn't exist? Boggles the mind. ;-)

Pretty dramatic words you're using there. Maybe I'm missing something.
NOT.

I've known Dave for years. He and another fellow operated an electronic parts supply store in Corning, NY. Their main customer was Corning Inc., but probably anyone who has worked in any electrical/electronics field in the Elmira-Corning-Painted Post area of upstate NY has done business there, and knows Dave.

I believe he started his crystal radio kit business as a personal hobby about 6 years ago.

Ha! It use to annoy me because I would be all engrossed in a thread about a antenna or radio and then read about "the wimmins across the pond." I actually enjoy it in a way now. Ha.

Yeah, my space is quiet fortunately. Sometimes quiet just seems to not be enough - you know? When I have tried the earphones with other radios I would find my cans either getting pulled or entangled. I was thinking of mounting a rat shack external speaker to the back of my table but really it would be a waste because the GE is basically the only radio I use on the table with the loops.

Lucky you. I don't have a tool like that.

Unfortunately I don't have the luxury of the S-meter or I'm sure I'd more than likely do it that way also.

It just all depends, I know that isn't really giving you an answer, but you're right - - about the point of diminished returns. You can tell. Sometimes even though you have all the tools right in front of you, mother nature lets you know she's the boss and it doesn't matter

When you said you had/have a SW77 I checked it out because I mistakingly thought it was a Hallicrafters....mixing up the SW for the SX - follow me?

I read the reviews on that piece on eham and other than one guy....everyone said it's a great receiver.
BUT the MSRP was $699.99!!!!!

I know the MSRP isn't usually what it sells for.
You didn't pay that for it did you? I wonder how that piece would stack up against the fully loaded DX398 on hams and UTES.

I own an old GE P780-E Radio.I bought it at Goodwill about twelve years ago, it doesn't work though, or barely works, whatever.

About eight or nine sumpin years ago, I saw a very good website about how to make your own loop antennas.

Don't start pickin on my wimmins wayyyy over yonder across the big pond.Last night I received another email from that married Irish woman wayyyyy over yonder across the big pond in Bognor Regis,England.She said, Don't blow yourself up with those sockets.

Gregg. The SW77 is a nice port. it was an update/ replacement for the 2010. at the time it was good, but, not as good as the 2010, in mho. myself, i screwed up, and let my 2010 go. at the time i picked up 2 Sw77, at the free shop in Porto Rico. was a good deal. got them at 299.00 each. so, used one, and the other is unopened. nobody paid MSRP. OK, it's a good receiver, but, in a portable, the 2010 is better. the 77 does not have the weak front-end the 2010 has. between the 2, take the 2010. or, get the E1. the Eaton is a super port if you can find one that works. if your looking, go to the yahoo groups first. that's what i do, then make your decision. don't get me wrong, eHam is cool, but all it takes is one post to screw up a good receiver. BTW, the 398 is good, but the front end won't take too much antenna. off the whip it's good. hope this helps.

You do realize that incandescent bulbs cause way more than 5 mg of Hg to get into the atmosphere, due to the extra coal that must be burned to light them.

I say it because there are lots of stations on those channels, and it takes skill to separate them enough to positively ID one. Anybody can hear a clear channel station.

I can explain Anything, when I think about it.
Jet Liners, because of the shape (I can tell by yo shape, that you are an Ape) of (Chord) the Wings, Air flows faster over the top of the Wings, creating partial Lift.
If you suck on a straw, (soda pop, or whatever) you are not creating a vacuum, you are allowing Air pressure to push down on the Liquid, causing Air pressure to push the Liquid up the straw.

Yea, I remember listening to Radio Caroline and others when I was in England in the mid 80s. Amazing how they could rig those large towers and keep the boats from flipping over (or in some cases, I heard they did flip over). I'll wait for it to go into the $1 DVD rental box and watch it that way.

Kind of hard to flip-over with that anchor chain constantly pulling down.

I've never used a SW-77, although I had one of the first '2010 in the US.
A friend of mine at the time was a gray market importer, and air-freighted the first batch from Japan.

It's a great receiver, although I no longer use it, I occasionaly take it down, replace the micropressor memory/clock batteries and stroke it. Along the way, I lost my 240 volt AC adapator for it, and I guess I'll replace it real soon now. I still have the original 100 volt one that came with it.

With the sync detector, it receives AM well. IMHO the tuning is too coarse for SSB or CW, but it's ok for casual listening. I always found that it was lacking sensitivity for UTEs. Adding an AMECO PT-3 (18db preamp with a tuned front end) fixed that deficency.

At this point, I think though if you were going to use it for UTEs, I would go for something more capable in that range, e.g. a Kenwood R5000. If you can get one with no add ons, but a resonably fresh battery and the PLL fix, it would be a good start. You don't really need to add anything at all, although a narrow filter might be nice if you want to dig that CW signal out of the QRM, but I'm not sure there is very much of it left outside the ham bands.

There is lots of QRM from digital sources, but a narrow filter is not going to help with that.

Geoff.

I saw it this weekend with my wife. Yeah, it was fun - if you like rock music and are interested in a fictionalization of Radio Caroline. Fortunately, I love rock music and movies about the 60s - so it was a good date film. Plus it opened a dialog for my wife and me which allowed me to broaden her knowledge about pirate radio - then and now.

Definitely worth it on DVD or PPV, IMHO...

Well a lot happened during the time covered, the film covers quite a span ... from stations on land , on ships off the coast to using the nepolionic forts located in the Thames estuary .( Big L).missing are the associated murders of those involved by the opposite mob , the bombing of the ships and the cray twins ( http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cray_twins ) hiding out at radio London waiting for the heat to die down as they say over the pond, commando raids on the ships by (?) ... big money involved in the air play lists .. still is

MW tx was only the bbc in the uk , and as the film points out did not play very much pop music .. best 'we' had was radio Luxembourg on 208 mtrs ..beamed into the uk .. went over to english round 1900 hrs .. big signal, big qsb , big phase distortion .. a lot of land based local stations playing music as well ..one lot, radio liverpool used to have a wire up a tree and battery tx and tape player in the local park .. dedication ...

Sure the films is a little technically romantic, but the ship is the original and is still fired up for special events

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

Because what goes around, comes around, and his gift to the Chinese this year are his personal tea bags? That sends a more personal message than an I-Pod? The Chinese should return the favor, and reduce exports to the US so that their workers don't have to work so hard and not loose their jobs too?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

They figure Americans will want to avoid the tax (health care penalty proposal) by getting divorced, there by disqualifying them from single or joint social security benefits, or survivor benefits? Don't you just love tea bags for Christmas?

Reduce exports to the United States, because like it or not, Americans are not going to have any spending money, and rather than force your workers out of work, you can save Chinese jobs by reducing their hours until we get these clowns out of office?

I don't know what the link might be....to their balance sheet?

But CBS is doing it in plenty of places. (Do you think they are giving it away for free?)

And someone is doing Russian something or other on one of the NYC HD's.

In a development that could vastly improve HD Radio signal reception and propel the digital radio service forward, iBiquity and NPR have reached an agreement for an HD power increase. It would give all HD FMs a FOUR-FOLD POWER HIKE, but some stations could get an EVEN BIGGER BUMP."

"In these trying times, it should be pointed out that in most cases adding IBOC dramatically increases electric bills. I did three build-outs in Indianapolis and it almost doubled the power bills for the transmitter sites. Multiply this across the board and it is untold thousands of dollars a day going up in heat. If IBOC carriers were turned off, a lot of jobs could be saved with that money."

5470. Angry queers write marriage tax into health care bill?

Angry queers can't stand the thought of married people collecting social security benefits, and want an incentive for married people to get divorced? These are the same angry queers that demand we pay back a climate "CO2" debt, but rape the Chinese economy with endless demands for loans that can never be repaid, while paying back only pennies according to Mr. Axle Rod, your Uncle Tom Bushy Eyebrow expert?

Just look at all the hate by queers, who have to fight every second of the day from committing suicide and the tell tell sign are all the f-bombs in their posts?

Only Batman can discover the answers to these questions?

It was on at 130utc but faded out into the background of Voice of Russia about 30 minutes later. I was able to hear only parts of it due to VOR slopping around. Sounded like the Iranian government targeting Iraq in English. Also had prayers in Arabic. I googled around and confirmed it's Iran and they often will use different frequencies with this. It was not there on 12/21 at 130utc and I'll check tonight.

Well, send as much as you can, say, $20 extra out of your paycheck to the feds for taxes, and then don't claim the refund at the end of the year? If enough people did that, the government would not have to borrow money and your children end up not having to pay the interest?

I heard the other plans today, firing people, not paying taxes, etc. Those are things they want you to do isn't it? Why are your tax rates so low? Well, the obvious thing is to man up and pay more right, if it fits your budget? And when election time comes, you get these clowns out of office and put better policies in place?

If you want to cut the funding of the government, killing the interest rate needed to borrow the money (not paying your taxes gives them the excuse?), the only alternative is to quit your job and not seek government assistance for anything?

I will get drunk when the military finally enacts a coup (and I don't drink)? While just about anyone can exempt themselves from the health care bill, (simply going to jail for having an identification number would qualify as a religious protest exemption, mark of the beast, etc.) the "demarkation line" of putting in the bill that no act of Congress can revoke a certain part of it is illegal and can simply be ignored just as easily as when it was written into law ignoring the legality of the issue?

Hello guys and gals, Ive been trying to update the B09 AOKI zip file into my SWLog database but each time I try I get an import error when I try to open it. The A09 files extract fine. The error references the fact that I dont have East Asin fonts enabled in Windows. Does anyone know a way around this without converting my computer to Asian? Any advice would be greatly appreciated, thanks!

Hurry, this is a limited time offer, and may be revoked at any time before it even starts! After all the Democrats always say, if you can't win the drug war, then join them?

Well, as you can see, it's not hard to revoke laws that don't make sense, so time is running out for the Democrat Party? In fact I would not be surprised to see contests where people in other countries could contribute to a wiki site that would enact the language that would reverse some of this stuff?

Can you imagine conservatives, all around the world, setting up wiki web sites that would write real legislation templates that political activists could just plug into their calendars?

Can you imagine Americans writing legislation for France, or Britain, and Chinese citizens writing legislation for America? Americans and other citizens around the world will do acts of civil disobedience like pay more than fair share of taxes to get out of debt?

God opens the ears of the oppressed, no matter what operating system they use?

Missed it Steve, but on 6915 Family Radio was bleeding all the way over to 6925, even with my filtering.....never heard that much of a bleed over. How strong do they think they need their signal to be?

I'll definitely be monitoring throughout today.

I just caught an interesting piece on "the mark of the beast", I have not heard a sermon like this since I was around 10 years old ( I am 37 now ), it really brought back memories of going to church with my dad (rest in peace).
The signal strength was through the roof, had to use attenuation to -60 db, on 3185 KHz @ 10:20 AM GMT (4:20 AM local in Pensacola, FL).

*Oh dear, Khun Brians manners have taken a tumble. In previous times KB would never resort to common insults when replying to his superiors.
Perhaps the frustration of marrying Ning the Naughty Nymphette from Nana Plaza has taken its toll on what remained of his sanity.

Oh well we'll wish him a Merry Christmas anyway and hope he doesn't forget Mary his belovered wife of 40 years.

5531. Liberty Net for Week of December 19-25

Liberty Net for Week of December 19-25
http://3950.net/2009/12/liberty-net-for-week-of-december-19-25/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

ONCE AGAIN the weekly current events discussion Liberty Net on 75 meters was filled with provocative ideas and debate, led by Net Control station W1WCR.

Thereï¿½s literally nothing else like it on the air anywhere.

Here are just a few of the highlights of this weekï¿½s discussions, along with the time when they took place (from the beginning of the recording in hours and minutes):
Listen to or download this week's Liberty Net

ï¿½ Somali gangs are now terrorizing Lewiston, Maine (1 hour 32 minutes)

ï¿½ The United Nations is considering issuing gold coins called ï¿½Orosï¿½ (2 hours 38 minutes)

ï¿½ Tips on investing in gold (2 hours 35 minutes)

ï¿½ Glenn Beck suddenly takes a more sympathetic view of Obama, as the ruling establishment pushes for yet another and much larger war in the Middle East (2 hours 8 minutes)

ï¿½ Chinese power needs to be viewed in the context of the brutal underside of Asian culture (2 hours 18 minutes)

ï¿½ Should sex, religion, or politics ever be discussed on amateur radio? (2 hours 55 minutes)

ï¿½ Korean society does not tolerate interracial marriage (2 hours 59 minutes)

ï¿½ Americaï¿½s depression epidemic and the resulting hopelessness and apathy: Could this be related to Huxleyï¿½s ï¿½pharmacological method of making people love their servitudeï¿½? (3 hours 37 minutes)

ï¿½ Alex Jones: Was the ADL attack on Jones a fake? Does Jones have a blind spot when it comes to Zionism? (3 hours 50 minutes)

ï¿½ Jesse Venturaï¿½s new TV shows on 9-11 and HAARP: worthwhile or not? (3 hours 56 minutes)

ï¿½ Glenn Beck: Is he just a showman for establishment insider/manipulator Rupert Murdoch? (4 hours 31 minutes)

ï¿½ The establishment of a VAT and a national sales tax in the U.S. (4 hours 50 minutes)

ï¿½ Tuning internal combustion engines for less pollution (5 hours 0 minutes)

ï¿½ Why we need an intelligence test for voters (5 hours 53 minutes)

And those arenï¿½t the only subjects ï¿½ thereï¿½s in-depth discussion of the economy, the illegal wars now taking place and planned for the future in the Middle East, the corruption and infiltration of the conservative movement, the latest ï¿½health care reformï¿½ debacle and much, much more.

Thanks to N2IRJ and his low-noise receiving and recording setup, those of us who canï¿½t listen on Saturday nights at 10PM Eastern can listen anytime ï¿½ or even download the file for listening on your personal mp3 player. Just click on the arrow to activate the streaming player, and then click anywhere on the progress bar to jump to any part of the recording. You can also right-click on the ï¿½downloadï¿½ link (which appears when you start the player) to save to your hard drive.

The recording is 6 hours 13 minutes long and about 125 MB in size. It commences some minutes before the Net proper begins, showing that Net participants obtained the frequency when it was not in use. Check-ins begin at about the 20 minute mark, with discussions starting at around 37 minutes.

G'day Bri :-)
Good to see you back on the forum board. I hope you and the lovely Ning (the Naughty Nymphette from Nana Plaza) are keeping well.
How are you getting on with the new shortwave radio hobby? I don't know how you manage to find the time, what with the bird watching activities and a new 'bride' to look after. But it must have come as a bit of a shock on your wedding night when you found out that you weren't the only one packing meat..... :o)
Hope to see you and khun Ning at the Kombat Kramer Bangkok Anniversary Arrest Bash on January 8th.
Kind Regards
Khun Takin

Hey Brain Jr...I wonder if you've forgotten how old "pops" really is...earlier this year (on this very forum) you stated that "my dad is 62 yrs young" but 2 yys ago on a "tearful plea" to the SCT MB you stated that "64 yr old pops has run off by himself to Bangkok"...Looks like "pops" has a 4+yr discrepency in the old birth certificate department...wouldn't you agree...:-)

3185 always booms through the roof here as does 3145, 3215, and 3240.
That band is excellent for nighttime domestic listening although of course, they can't target domestic audiences by law.

Why WBCQ and WYFR doesn't move to that band at night is beyond belief.

Kevin Alfred Strom pleads guilty to possession of child porn

http://news.ronatvan.com/2008/01/18/kevin-alfred-strom-pleads-guilty-to-child-porn/

Shortly before Judge Norman K. Moon entered Charlottesville's U.S. District Court on Monday morning, defendant Kevin Alfred Strom was led in shackles and clothed in the customary grey and black striped prison garb. A year after he was arrested and charged with multiple counts of possession of child pornography, he was set to plead guilty to one count, which—as he was later instructed by Moon—carries a maximum penalty of 10 years and a possible $250,000 fine, plus a life of supervision.

Even though the guilty plea had already been agreed upon in advance, Judge Moon still had to go through th necessary motions of asking the 51-year-old Strom if he understood what he was about to sign. Was he coerced in any way? the judge wondered. Only by the threats on his life he has received in prison, Strom replied, blaming them on press reports that he is a Neo-Nazi and a white supremacist, "which I am not," he told the courtroom. A resident of Earlysville, Strom has collaborated on racist, anti-Semitic "American Dissident Voices" radio broadcasts, has posted nationalist messages on Cvillenews.com and was involved in a 2005 incident in which copies of "The Aryan Alternative" were distributed in Charlottesville. According to an intelligence report from the Southern Poverty Law Center, which tracks hate groups, Strom has been "a major American neo-Nazi leader for almost 20 years."

Regardless, he maintained that the media's portrayal of him was leading to threats on his life from other prisoners. "They're trying to kill me because of the press coverage," he said. "I deeply resent the way I've been characterized. I'm no more a white supremacist than the Dalai Lama is. I love my people just as he does." With that, Strom executed the guilty plea and a sentencing hearing was scheduled for April 21. Judge Moon then called a recess and left the room, leaving Strom to once again be handcuffed and led away.

As a few onlookers milled about in the gallery, two Strom supporters stood, one who identified himself as John Justice, a family friend. Aged with a full beard and long thinning hair, Justice indicated that Strom pleaded guilty because of a fear of a jury conviction had his case gone to trial. If it had proceeded, Strom would have faced conviction on several counts of child pornography. Earlier charges of witness tampering and trying to entice a 10-year-old to engage in sexual activity were dismissed in October. Justice attributed Strom's plea not to any actual guilt but to a wife "who is trying to destroy his life."

A tattoed, sleeveless Elisha Strom—who testified against her husband in earlier court proceedings—stood nearby but then headed for the door and the elevator. Was she satisfied with the plea? “Not exactly,” she said. What had she hoped for? “Death.”

SB PROP ARL ARLP053
ARLP053 Propagation de K7RA

This bulletin is coming out a day ahead of normal schedule because of the Christmas holiday on Friday. ARRL headquarters closes early today for Christmas Eve at 1900 UTC.

Many of us are nearly giddy with joy over the recent steady increase in sunspot activity, which seems long overdue. Average daily sunspot numbers rose over 10 points this week compared to last, from 21.1 to 31.4. The monthly average daily sunspot numbers for September, October and November were 6.6, 7 and 7.7, so this is quite a large jump.

Five new sunspot groups emerged since December 9, three of those over the past week, on December 19 and 20. These were groups 1035 and 1036 on December 19, and 1037 on December 20. Today a new sunspot appears to be forming, and you can see it via the Solar Terrestrial Relations Observatory at http://stereo.gsfc.nasa.gov/. Look for that bright spot in our Sun's southern hemisphere, around -65 to -70 degrees longitude.

If we consider there are twelve of these 30 degree segments on the spinning Sun seen on the STEREO web site, considering a complete solar rotation takes about 27.5 days, each thirty-degree segment passes over the horizon in about 2.3 days, or every 55 hours. We can't tell if every bright spot beyond the horizon is formed into a sunspot, but we can roughly calculate how long it takes for a particular area of interest to rotate into view.

Right now on early Thursday morning, December 24, I can see an active area (number 1035) around +115 degrees longitude or so, about 25 degrees over the horizon. We can roughly assume that it is about 155 degrees longitude away from its reappearance at the -90 degree longitude horizon on the other side. This should be about 11-12 days from now. Of course we do not know if activity in this area will increase or decrease in the next couple of weeks.

At http://www.swpc.noaa.gov/ftpmenu/forecasts/45DF.html we see a prediction for December 24 (in the December 23 forecast) showing predicted solar flux values of 76, 74, and 72 for December 24-26, continuing at 72 until January 4, around the time this region reemerges, when it rises to 75, then 77 for January 5-6, then 80 on January 7-9, and 85 for January 10-18.

We also see steady quiet geomagnetic conditions, with planetary A index rising slightly to 7, just for December 27-28. Or course, this could be wrong. Note that in the December 16-19 forecasts the expected planetary A index for December 20 was 15. Data from the bottom of our bulletin shows that planetary A index for that day was only 1.

The Winter Solstice occurred on Monday, December 21 at 1747 UTC in the Northern Hemisphere, and days are gradually growing longer. Spring Equinox is 179 days from today.

We've had reports from Robert Elek, W3HKK of Johnstown, Ohio in two recent bulletins, and again he comes through with some interesting observations.

Bob reports that John, ON4BW (Jean-Michel Debroux in Braine l'Alleud, Belgium) is running 600 watts to a 4 element 40 meter Yagi at 70 feet, and blasting a strong signal into North America during his mid-day, around 1100 UTC. Braine l'Alleud is about 10 miles south of Brussels. You can see a nice photo of ON4BW and the big antenna at http://www.qrz.com/hampages/w/b/on4bw/on4bw.jpg.

Bob says, "Time and time again, strong signals are heard from Europe 2-3 hours past their sunrise here in Ohio, during the so called dog-days of winter. The combination of a broadcast-station-free segment of 40 meters and growing global wealth have 40 meter Yagis popping up all over the 7.125-7.200 SSB band segment, with corresponding big sigs from around the globe. If you haven't been on 40 SSB for a few years, you WILL be surprised at how much 40 sounds like 20 meters used to sound. And, it only takes ONE Yagi to make the circuit, so give them a call. W3HKK is using 100 watts to a quarter wave ground plane just off the ground, with 6 radials."

"A reminder: This is the time to hear polar stations, north and southern latitudes. Antarctica, KC4AAC was heard just above the noise near 7.170 SSB, around 0100 UTC on December 20. Oleg, UU9JX/MM was worked from the Magellan Straits on 10.110 MHz at about the same time. Strong LU stations are regulars on 40 SSB in the evening. Plus OX, TF have been worked in recent weeks with big signals."

On December 18 Bob reported, "Another interesting Friday night on 40 SSB. At times during the evening, the band sounds pretty quiet. More stateside signals are being heard with the recent rise in sunspots. And a fair number of Central America and Caribbean stations come and go. But if you poke around, the juicy DX is there loud and clear. I2VRN is a beacon, and several EAs also 59+ are heard. Pair of A71 stations (Juma, A71EM and Jamil, A71FJ) were taking turns working DX on 7.130 MHz with signals around 5x9 from 0400-0445 UTC. 4L4TL joined in for a while. Juma noted they were over 2 hours past their sunrise and still the DX kept coming. Juma and Jamil are a couple of very nice guys looking to spread A71 contacts around to any takers. A71 activity on 40m has been almost daily all this week, through December 19."

"Then, tuning up into the 7.135-7.155 MHz range, at least eight ZS stations were heard working stateside, or rag-chewing in a morning ZS roundtable, at 0400-0430 UTC. Again it was at least one hour past their sunrise. ZS3D has been heard in Ohio on a nightly basis with signals between 57 and 59+10 running 500 watts to a 2 element hex beam."

Dick Grubb, W0QM of Boulder, Colorado used to work at the NOAA Space Weather Prediction Center. He sent along an article he scanned from the current issue of Space Weather, the International Journal of Research and Applications from the American Geophysical Union. Titled "Slow Start to Solar Cycle Tied to Sluggish Interior Stream," it explains there is a slow moving river of gas deep inside the sun which may be the reason for the scarcity of sunspots and late start to the current solar cycle. Sonograms show it is currently moving much slower than normal.

The currents typically take 6-8 years to move from the poles to equator as they spiral east to west, and for this cycle it is taking 1-2 years longer.

When the stream reaches 22 degrees latitude, a new crop of sunspots and new solar cycle appears. The jet stream has finally reached critical latitudes for sunspot development, and we should look forward to a quick up-tick in activity. Solar activity is now expected to peak in May 2013.

The same publication announces a Space Weather Forecasting Contest. Unfortunately, they do not allow individual entrants without affiliation to some educational or research institution, but the criteria (high school students, researchers, grad students, alumni, etc) look pretty broad, so perhaps individuals may enter after all. Probably most of us are at least alumni of some high school, correct? You can see details at http://swxcontest.gmu.edu/.

The new issue of WorldRadio Online is out, at http://www.cq-amateur-radio.com/WorldRadio.html. Check pages 22-24 for Carl Luetzelschwab, K9LA's excellent monthly propagation feature, this month titled, "Is There a Most Advantageous Band and Time?"

Sunspot numbers for December 17 through 23 were 24, 20, 43, 42, 42, 26, and 23 with a mean of 31.4. 10.7 cm flux was 86.9, 84.2, 81.7, 83.7, 82.7, 82.2, and 78.4 with a mean of 82.8. Estimated planetary A indices were 1, 2, 1, 1, 1, 2 and 2 with a mean of 1.4. Estimated mid-latitude A indices were 2, 2, 0, 2, 1, 2 and 3 with a mean of 1.7.

Very interesting, thank you for posting this information. I visited your websites and found them to be very compelling. I particularly enjoyed viewing the Morgan Weistling gallery of paintings. What a stunning body of work he has blessed the world with!

All the best to you as you renew your life.

P.S. Is there a way to make your audio files play immediately? As I am on a dial-up conncetion it would take six hours to open them and listen.

Incorrect. He denies the crime but yet plead guilty on a court of law.

He has no remorse, no compassion, nothing toward his victims.

You want to cuddle up to convicted sex offenders, that really shows your character "Priest" now doesn't it?

The fact I can't stand sex offenders who pray upon children shows my character in a positive light.

What happens in a court of law often has more to do with the theatre of the trial than it does with the facts. It has a lot more to do with the pressures of the prosecution than it does with the actual truth of the indictment.

Especially in the case of a politically charged defendent.

An innocent man would have no remorse. Because he would not be guilty. Remorse would not apply. In fact, he would likely be angry. VERY.

The way the law reads, the recipient of illegal materials is sufficient evidence to conclude guilt, even if those materials were received by an unsolicited method. As someone posted, there are viruses that target PC owners with child porn for this reason. The infected are guilty of possession even if they were not anywhere near the PC at the time. And they are subject to the full weight and measure of prosecution and punishment.

Such a law is a highly effective tool in an action against a target with political implications, as Kevin most definitely is. The abuses of this law are highly celebrated. And have been reported in the mainstream media. Do a Google search for cases.

That Kevin is convicted is a fact. Whether he is a sex offender may be something we will never know. A plea bargain is just that...it's a bargain...a leverage used by prosecution to score assured jail time in a case that is difficult to make. The weaker the case, the more irresistable the plea bargain offer. It's a chess game. The presentation is often made in a thug like manner...an offer one cannot refuse. Kevin, unsure of his survivability in an open trial, would have a tough time not taking a deal, especially when a prosecutor presents an alternative outcome that would rob him permanently of his life.

So, the facts are clear. He's convicted. But whether or not he committed the offense may never be known. Consider, that he's back in his home with his children. A judge has little discretion in cases of sex offenses where children are present. He would not be permitted unsupervised within 100 feet of his children or any other children if he had been proven guilty, or if there had been a preponderance of evidence that he was guilty, of a sex offense involving children.

This lends credence to his claim that he was falsely accused.

That there was child porn involved on his computer, would also, if he were demostrated guilty, necessitate that he be barred from internet connectivity. Clearly, his presence here would suggest that, this too, was a specious accusation.

The fact that you can't stand sex offenders who pray upon children shows nothing more than that you can't stand sex offenders who pray upon children.

Your character, however, is another matter.

Thanks for your kindness, Priest. I _am_ rebuilding my life. It was a true blessing to be back with my family and loved ones again for Christmas eve.

Make sure that javascript is enabled for http://3950.net in your browser (in IE, I think you mark the site as 'trusted'). When javascript is enabled, clicking on the arrow next to each audio link will then invoke a small streaming player that should start almost immediately.

Or you could install Quicktime as an audio plugin, which does the same thing -- effectively making all mp3 files streaming, starting to play them as soon as a few kb have been downloaded.

With all good wishes,

Kevin, WB4AIO.

There were no political implications. Remember, Strom was found INNOCENT of most of the charges. He decided to plead guilty to the one remaining charge.

Incorrect. If the case that hard to make, his attorney would have brought the case to trial. The fact he was a white supremacist would not have been allowed to be mentioned as it had no bearing on the case.

That's also incorrect. His ex-wife, Kirsten, before Elisha has full custody of his biological children and lives several states away. She has totally disvowed Strom in every complete way. The book is called "bondage of self". Strom hadn't had contact with his own children in years. But Kirsten sure had a lot to say about Kevin's obsession with underaged girls in that book. I guess she's lying also right?

Incorrect. Although it is possible that him posting could be a violation of the conditions of his probation.

Clearly your character is to defend a convicted pedophile and registered sex offender in the state of Virginia.

Michael:

You are the one who is incorrect.

I am at home with my children now, this very moment. Despite the best efforts of the liars, I am with them. My older son and daughter are on the honor roll at school here. My younger, autistic son is doing well in his special school.

And I am completely innocent of all of the government's foul accusations. See my Address to the Court:

I was referring to his involvement in incendiary movements. Those put a political load on his activities, and his legal troubles. He was taking it from a number of sides long before this issue.

Remember, Strom was found INNOCENT

Which is how plea bargains work.

Again, how plea bargains work. He plead guilty. The facts were not tried.

Naive. The fact that he took a white supremacy position publicly provides the political overlay on all of his activities. It would have a powerful impact on any legal jeopardy.

A prosecutor needing to close the case, but having a weak case to begin with, as evidenced by the number of charges that did not stick, would plead out the case to insure a finding. The chess game is in how the plea bargain would be presented to the defendent. The pressure applied would be proportional to the questionable strength of the case.

Universal Health Care, or the infringement of free speech? With their new "information IT center" and "center for effectiveness whatever" (death boards) will you DARE say anything when the United States Government goes to war, or any other unpopular thing?

I mean after all, your right to personal privacy goes out the window, and who cares if a food company accidental causes food poisoning and thousands have to go to the hospital to get tubes stuck in them, right?

David Axlerod said "they want a "better" MORE POWERFUL government?

Can't we all just get along? Why do they need a more POWERFUL government if they don't plan on using that power?

Merry Christmas Lab Rats!

Merry Christmas Plantation America!

WE need a more powerful government to reign in the special interests that are currently running things. Investment banks, insurance companies, unions, wherever corruption and undue influence may be found it should be sought out, exposed and banished.

Kevin, you're lying now. Your children are in Minnesota and not with you. You live in section 8 housing in Charlottesville and you're not employed but drawing disability for your so-called mental illness. Amazing how much information they put out for registered sex offenders.

But don't worry, there are enough paranoids out there who will believe your lies that the "government" set you up. Or defend your right not to work and draw disability/welfare.

Not sure which one to get. Anyone have any hands on experience with either of these units, especially the Yaesu VR-5000?

Looks like I am going to be able to get one of them soon.

Or should I just save money and get something like a Grundig 750 or Eton E1 ?

It's really hard to beat the R75 for the money. I don't know much about the the Yaesu, but what I have heard isn't good. The Grundig and Eton radios aren't anything close to the Icom at all.

Thanks BDK, I know the ICOM R-75 is pretty much the standard these days for tabletops. One more question, do you use any computer programming software for the R-75? I know I can "google" these questions but I rather hear directly from those in here who use the products or know about them.

I don't personally have an R75, but friends have had them. I don't think they used any software with them when they had them.

I have, at the present time, a JRC NRD-515, an NRD-525, A Kenwood TS-850SAT, an Allied SX-190, and a Hammarlund HQ-100. Those all work, and I have a couple of dead Icom R71A's that will almost surely come back to life soon. It's almost always something simple when they just wont turn on. Last one was a cracked solder joint. It took longer to put it back together than it took to fix it. Sold it for a nice profit afterwards.

Looking back at the Obama administration year-one CV, it was not quite what the world had expected. But as a non-USAnian, I'm just an outsider looking at the mess Obama is trying to clean up after prior administrations. Do we have too high hopes that politicians can fix anything? This article makes interesting reading:

http://www.prospect.org/cs/articles?article=obama_year_one

What can we expect in year 2? The implementation of the health-plan as it was intended, the ban on hand-guns, fewer troops in Afghanistan?

5596. Drake or AOR?

I'm looking for the supreme or next to supreme desktop radio so I can use it in either my car, at home (no computer hookups planned), or maybe on one of my long bicycle trips.
I have found the Drake R-8 and SW-8 and also a mention of the AOR but none found yet.
Anybody got any opinions on this?
Remember, home, car, bicycle, random antennas and that kind of thing.
I have plenty of boatanchors (Vacuum state FETs) and one marine RDF that peaks at just over 4.0 MHz. I have a new Super CB Royce but a CB on a bicycle might get too many laughs.
I'm open to any suggestions as long as they are cheap. I'm $$$ limited.

Thanks,
Bill Baka

R-8(x) is not exactly a portable. Exceptional receiver but you'll need some antenna, and a power supply. Intuitive controls. A bit heavy for bike trips. Superb audio.

SW-8 is portable, and performs very well. Internal batteries, if you'd like. But not terribly sensitive on the internal whip. That can be improved, somewhat, by a trip to Drake. But still requires some antenna. FM and Air band included. Superb audio, as well. Fits well in a car. Easy to read display. Intuitive controls. Also a bit heavy for bike trips.

AOR AR7030+...pricey. Can run you a kilobuck on the used market.
Compact. Stands toe to toe with the R8(x) in performance. Excellent audio. The nested menu o/s not really for driving.

Now, one you've not mentioned, that's VERY portable, smaller and lighter than the AOR, HIGHLY sensitive, works off battery power, and a whip antenna, excellent audio....you can toss it into a backpack for a bicycle trip and not feel it....Lowe HF-150. When you can find one, it will be less expensive and a better general fit than your other options. No lighted dial without modification.

Another small, and very nice performer, though not the best S/N is AOR's AR3030. Sensitivity is good, but headroom is not on par with the others. Small, lightweight, can run on batteries, sensitive enough for a whip antenna. Intuitive controls, nice audio. Looks good.

For desktop operation, any of the 5. In order of performance:
R8(x), AR7030, HF-150, SW-8, AR3030.

In the car, in order of performance: HF-150, SW-8, AR3030.

For bike trips: HF-150, SW-8, AR3030.

For general purpose/all applications: SW-8, HF-150.

One caveat about SW-8. The audio stage is unique. The finals output is not referenced to ground. That is to say it's floating and balanced. If you should accidently take one leg to ground, say in an attempt to run the audio through the car's system, you blow the audio stage. So, auto applications will require some care. Transform the output and you're fine.

Not an issue if you use the receiver's internal speaker exclusively.

Un-ID, 6960, heard here at 1055, rockin' through this early Boxing Day morn'. Hasn't ID'd in well over a half hour of tunes.

I'm suspecting either WHYP or Radio Free Euphoria.

Listening on the R8B and 70' wire.

Also, today marks the 5th Anniversary of the big tsunami down in Indonesia and Thailand.

It is one of 3 finalists. SW-8, AOR AR7030, and one of the Lowes, either an AOR3030 or AOR7030. Beyond that I can go down to the general purpose portables, nice for old people to take on a cruise ship but not for me, the eternal teenager and user/abuser of equipment. The Mountain bike weighs about 48 pounds, I weigh 40 pounds over my athletic peak, and a heavy radio would be the least of my problems.

I don't even try to tune the radio when I am moving. CD's, cassettes and other accident causers are not in my car or in use when I drive. If I can find a good station before I start then I don't have to tune around.
Since I learned to listen for mechanical noise and fix my own car I have been a DIY'er ever since I was 15 on cars, 7 or 8 on radios.

In the car yes. I want to hear sirens and stuff happening around me when I am driving. There are dozens of speaker sets around here from dead receivers made (you know where, China), that gave up the ghost as soon as possible when the warranty (full) expired. I could strap one under the steering wheel since it is mono anyway and be isolated from the car's 12 volt positive system. I have only seen positive ground on a few European brands from the 1950's and very early 60's.
The Lowe, Drake, and AOR each have some unique features that would be killer in one radio. I would like to see a custom comb filter in all of them that could be set to blank the totally repetitive 50 and 60 Hertz noise from lamps and such. If the are two or three SCR's all switching at the same point per sine but different degrees they could be tuned out manually.
Not to go overboard, but maybe someone else coming up, could offer a radio with upgradeable modules until you got to the $30,000 super spy radio that gets everything from literally D.C. to daylight.
Choices are still nice to have and I would still want to have the radio in my hand before I buy it, but those days appear to be just memories now.

The AR7030+ has many memory slots (300 I think) and a wireless IR remote. I think it is too big for mounting in a car. Using the 7030 in bright light may require the rear IR sensor to be covered over. The 7030+MB has a noise blanker, though I never really needed it. The auto tracking notch filer is very good.

Hey, you left out Leo Laporte!

Batchelor is a decent right winger. Well, certainly better than the

This could be a two radio situation, like one for the car, one for home, and maybe one for the bicycle. Depends on $$$ and how much pedaling I

I've been using that since I moved here in 2001. It is transformer matched and the coax is buried, same as the 200' wire.

And, up until 5 or 6 years ago I had access a few times a year to a nice setup that featured 6 pretty much permanent beverages from 300 to 700 feet or so in a very quiet location.

Beginning in late October I've begun experiencing some noise here that pretty much makes the 200' wire useless. The noise did take about a two week break right about Radio St. Helena time but then returned.

I'll have to get out one of these days when the weather improves and see if I can locate the source and let our local BPW know.

Quite agree with you.

As an interesting aside I'm posting here via my ISP's Usenet news server, and a while ago I posted an item re: Lowe HF-150 control software. I got no replies so just assumed the old HF-150 is dead and gone. Then a month or so later while Googling LOWE I saw my post in the Yahoo Group for rec.radio.shortwave

That made me kind of angry. What on earth is any reputable company like Yahoo doing shadowing and feeding a Yahoo group of rec.radio.shortwave AND NOT feeding data back to the original source group on Usenet. And if they are not allowed to do it then they should not be basing a group on rec.radio.shortwave. Undermines the whole community and data integrity for ALL.

Since then I'm wondering how much is being lost on the Usenet group because our input is taken and played with behind closed doors elsewhere. And for any Yahoo group members reading this, how much info are you missing because other 'groups' elsewhere are doing exactly the same thing.

One thing I forgot to mention is that I put up a 25 foot 'flagpole' mast in the fall, but I've yet to install any inverted vee's on it. Maybe come Spring!

It's a flagpole made by the Olympus company, comes in about 4-5 foot sections. Had 21 feet of it donated to me and I purchased another 4 foot section.

The AOR7030 is way too heavy for the bicycle. Besides, your antenna would have to be a vertical whip. They are noisy, plus you are close to automobiles. Then there is the theft issue. Why not a Sony portable for the bicycle.

Just pathetic...

Aren't you a licensed Amateur? You're not supposed to encourage illegal transmissions.

I own at least three hundred, or more, radios.I own one Grundig radio.It is an AM/FM/Shortwave wooden cabinet floor model (I think it is a Majestic model, built in 1957) radio with a built in phonograph in the top of the radio.I bought it for fourteen dollars (plus Mississippi RIP OFF sales taxes, RIP OFF!!!) ) years and years ago at a Goodwill store. http://shopgoodwill.com

So, Yes, if you can find a genuine made in Germany Grundig radio at a decent price and if that Grundig radio is in good shape, go for it.

I also own a big wooden cabinet Telefunken AM/FM/Shortwave model Opus 7 table top radio.(it is a luverly/beautiful looking radio.I also bought that radio at a Goodwill store years and years ago for only four dollars.

The Grundig radios nowadays (made in China, or wherever) are not anywhere nearly as good as the older made in Germany Gundig radios. cuhulin

Check out the Palstar R30A here ... http://www.palstar.com/r30.php Universal has it at a slight discount. It has received some great reviews, and I'm thinking of getting one myself.

Actually, R75 would be more like a Camry.

A Cadillac Escalade would be a Drake R8B.

A Lexus would be a JRC.

A Mercedes would be the Rohde and Schwartz.

And the Eton?

That would be a Renault 18i.

I looked very seriously at buying the R30C. Solid radio. Very nice performance. Few frills, but very potent receiver.

About that time, there was a guy on this newsgroup who was selling them at a substantial discount, AND he was offering a full factory warranty.

Now a factory warranty isn't something that can be offered by just anyone. Most manufacturers only offer warranty service on products sold through authorized dealers. This seller was not on the authorized dealer's list. So, I contacted Palstar, and exchanged e-mails with Paul.

I explained the circumstances, and expressed my interest in buying the radio. My question was simple: Is this an authorized seller, and can I count on a valid factory warranty?

The response was surprising. "I don't know where he's getting his radios and what the hell business is it of YOURS?"

If that's how Palstar answers an inquiry, do I really need to be dropping serious money on one of their radios, regardless of the seller.

So I bought a Ten-Tec, instead.

5656. Global Warming and what you can do to against it

Dear All,
As you know global warming is endangering the future of life on the planet. It will also affect us; rising sea levels, dwindling water supplies, mass deaths due to heat waves, stoppage of the gulfstream, which brings milder climate to north of Europe, super hurricanes, less food due to droughts are some of the effects.
As you also know global warming is produced due to CO2 emissions coming from burning of fossil fuels. So what can every single person do to reduce global warming ?

1) Insulation: Do you know that you can save 50% of heating energy (and money) by insulation ? Especially in the times the financial crisis, you can make the insulation cheaper and save the money when oil, natural gas and coal prices are higher due to higher demand. What needs to be insulated ? Firstly the Roof, since warmer air goes up, then the windows (tripple glass or at least dual glass and shutters for additional insulation at night, and in summer time), then the outer walls. Also small cracks, leaks in weatherstrips etc should be eliminated.
An infrared inspection of your house for heat losses would be the best way to find out what else can be done.
A wintergarden will help heating your house additionally in winter time.

2) Using rechargable batteries instead of alkaline batteries, and charge them during less demand ours like at night will also save a lot of energy and money.

3) Lightning; the use of Compact fluorescent lamps instead of traditioanl light bulbs will save 80% of energy, the use of very new LED lamps will save even more.

4) Buying local. Most of the energy is spent for transportation of imported goods, especially food. By buying local made food you not only save a lot of energy, but also create more jobs at home.

5) Heating; there are several way to save energy and money by changing the heating method; you can use the free heat of the nature by adding a solar thermal equipment to heat the water for taking showers and also to heat your home. Additionally you can use a heating pump, which funtions like a reverse fridge; it takes the heat of the outside and transfers it to your home. You use much much less energy to do this (electricity to pump a liquid).

6) Your car; by buying a hybrid car you save 30% of fuel, by converting your car to CNG (compressed natural gas) you can save a lot of CO2, since CNG has much less carbon but more hydrogen, which will result in water (CH4 instead of C8H18). CNG will also result in much more energy output per mass. The conversion is not very expensive. It is totally save, since the storage has to resist a certain pressure. Of course there are also other smaller things you have to consider:
- Each 60 pounds increases fuel consumption by 10%.
- Aggressive driving (speeding, rapid acceleration, and hard braking) wastes gas. It can lower your highway gas mileage 33% and city mileage 5%.
- Drive at lowest and constant rpms; 2000 rpm are enough; you can save up to 30%. Even a Porsche can be driven at the 4th gear at 20 mph and at the 6th gear at 50 mph with 2.5 times less fuel consumption.
- Avoid high speeds. Driving 75 mph, rather than 65 mph, could cut your fuel economy by 15%.
- Use air conditioning only when necessary
- Keep tires properly inflated and aligned to improve your gasoline mileage by around 3.3%.
- Replace clogged air filters to improve gas mileage by as much as 10% and protect your engine
- Combine errands into one trip. Several short trips, each one taken from a cold start, can use twice as much fuel as one trip covering the same distance when the engine is warm. Do not forget that in the first mile your car uses 8 times more fuel, in the second mile 4 times and only after the fourth mile it becomes normal

7) Buying A++ or A+++ equipments. The extra money you pay for this will be back in 1-2 years. It will save a lot of CO2.

8) Try to save also energy at your job; you can do it by insulation, more efficient processes, heat recovery, more efficient pumps/engines, low temperature processses, material saving, water savings, optimization, automatic turning off of unnecessary energy using processes, control if some processes are really necessary (the change of some processes makes other processes sometimes unnecesarry on which nobody has thought about).

9) Solar cells for your own home; at the moment solar cells are very cheap since there is an overproduction.
These cells can operate a fridge for example.

Regards.

Bill, i gotta go with Jim here. if you want to go mobile/ bike, this would fit the bill nicely. got an older one here, and it's a super receiver. you might check out the yahoo group. we fixed up a guy in a motorized wheelchair a few years ago. and i know 2 guys in my rider group that use the Palstar on their Harleys. all 3 of these set-ups use a CB type antenna, and it will work to a point. i was thinking of mounting one on my bagger over the winter. for an antenna, a guy on one of the Harley groups uses a miracle whip. so, i'm going to check that out. Paul at Palstar has a bunch of ideas, and he has made a few cables for the guys. and last, the Palstar will take AA batteries in side. last about 6 to 8 hours. could be your 2 wheel radio. good luck, and let us how you make out.

Peter. WOW. that sure don't sound like Paul. i have known Paul, from the time he still worked at Drake. most of the Palstars and antennas, on ebay, are sold by his son, who runs a kind of Palstar store on ebay. at least he used too. i have the R30CC here. super little bare bones receiver. when the weather is nice i take it, my Ed-loop, a jumpstart, and a large coffee to my favorite park. makes a nice morning. and some good back round for the days paper.

That's what I'd heard. Which is why it was such a surprise.

This wasn't an e-Bay seller. He was an individual known for his sales and trades of used radios in the newsgroup, and he was offering the Palstars directly in the newsgroup. He was specific about making the point these were new radios, and he was offering full factory warranty. The discount was nearly 30%, and Palstar wasn't known for that kind of price cut. Which is what triggered the red flag for me. So, I went to Palstar for direct information.

That's a cool start to the day. There was a member of the newsgroup who used to drive between Denver and Jackson Hole, Wyoming, who took his SW-2 with him. He'd stop along the road and hook it up to the guardrail and do some serious pseudo-Beverage work before breakfast in Jackson Hole.

Good times.

At one time or another I've had most of the rigs on the market except the NRD's, Palstar, Ten-Tec, and the very high end equipment. I just sold my Icom R-75, it wasn't any better than my Icom R 71A(with memory upgrade), E1 or Drake R8! I use also a Kenwood TS-140S (receive only) which is decent. My Grundig Satellit 800 is a very nice sounding radio and does a pretty fair job on reception. Pleasure to use. BIG!
I had a Grundig 750 last summer and dumped it almost as soon as I bought it(from a shortwave store). It pays to have hands on when buying these sets. Then you can choose which one to your liking.
The 750 was so cheap, the knobs fell off the thing as I was unpacking it. The shafts they are attached to are too short. The tuning wheel had wobble. Generally the set was a real disappointment. It also took about 10 pounds pulling pressure to get the whip to release itself from the case.
Stay absolutely away from Eton products. Their warranty's are not that good.
Example: the first E1 that I purchased had the dead display problem, back to the store 50 miles distance.
The second seemed to be either a refurb or demo packed and sold as new... back again.
Finally after doing what I should have done in the first place check the dahm thing before leaving the store(again hands on purchasing).
The E1 works fine for me but the display is a little dim as are most.
If you can pick up something of quality on the "try and buy" method of purchasing then you will have something you'll most likely be truly happy with.
PS ... If you are thinking of a buying a good low cost portable, the Grundig G5 I found is better than my Sony 7600GR.
The Radio Shack DX-398 is a winner but is hard on batteries.
The Panasonic RF-2200 is a winner too (good luck finding one in good condition at a good price)
The Kenwood R-1000, R-5000 are very good for older sets as well as the FRG-7. These can be sometime be found at very reasonable prices.

Try any of the WWV or WWVH stations.... At night, check 5000mhz, 2500mhz and during the day 15000mhz or 10000mhz.

You should always be able to get one or several of those at anytime.

From dusk and during the night, turn from 5800mhz to 6300mhz and during the day, try 11400mhz and above.

For the hams, check 3600-4000mhz at night with the BFO.

Who is going to know the leaked TSA procedural manual better, the employee making $500 a week, or the fellow about to comit suicide, and has nothing left to do with his last days on earth but to memorize and understand what that manual is and what it says? That's what you are up against?

But of course the people that leak this stuff know this, don't they? America could loose a hundred planes, but more Americans will die from the rampant spending habits of the Dream Killer Democrats?

Rampant thoughts of suicide in the Senate and House from these Democrats in the next few weeks? I've been surprised by the quality of some of the presentations of the Republicans, perhaps they should link their CSPAN appearances to their web pages?

This way the empty seats of the Democrats can find and watch them? Include the dates and times?

Excerpt of published or pending publishment........

Today was an interesting day, and I just wanted to drop a note to the audience out there that we look forward to the new year with some enthusiasm. We will be giving the web site more of a blog look and perhaps some surveys, as well as options for various content and devices. Most of the web site will remain with a low tech approach, while retaining the capacity to expand or handle high volume traffic. If there were no news events, I could work through May of next year writing material easily, so there is a lot to look forward to!

We all have busy days, and I want you to be able to enjoy stopping by and do so in the future. Humor is an important ingredient with discussions of adversity, and those discussions that revolve around prevention seem to be the most memorable ones. I am a firm believer in blatant profit taking, however there is a caveat. If your nation's economy drives you to the point of escaping reality in large numbers by taking recreational drugs on a regular basis, are you ignoring a classic sign that your profit taking is in excess of normal expectations? So I will be taking several approaches to this humor as it occurs, and spare some of you from the bad humor if I can (wink).

So we deal with difficult situations at times with humor, and I can't help but wonder just how far humor will go. Perhaps the jokes just get so demeaning, so polarizing, that they loose their effectiveness over the long haul? Ah, well, we can't let that happen, can we? SO then the goal is to lift people up, our friends, our enemies (if they exist) or anyone who cares to lend an ear. For that is reality, that we can only borrow the attention of others, we should never occupy it?

For instance, I am pro-life, and against medical inteference of the conception process of women (abortion). I believe it crosses the ethical boundaries of trust between God (or knowledge, if the term God offends you) and man to keep ethical perspectives within the boundaries of civilty and honor. When you promise to do no harm, then the trust of being powerful enough to protect the weak among us carries with it the honor of protecting the weak.

I listened to the radio today, there was a young woman who had no thought of hiding her enthusiasm for recreational sex and that the concept of abortion was a grey area to her. She felt that ending a life rather than go through the expense of raising a child is a concept that was ok with her. I felt like I was mentally raped just hearing that thought process. A life should have no price. The cost of a gun and a bullet is effectively an average of one dollar in cost, if you spread out the cost of a gun, and its lifetime, and cost of ammo it can shoot? When society views its weakest with the contempt of destruction, are you begging for the day one some one thinks it is better to spend a dollar to end your life than to honor our highest traditions of man?

So beyond the medical ethical considerations, I find it hard to ignore that society should not view each other as potential failures waiting to happen, rather than opportunities to thin the herd. Most great achievements take decades of hard work, not hours or years? How many failures have you had in the last decade? Terrorism? I am more concerned with the spending habits of this American Congress, then I am of a young terrorist who becomes giddy when the invisible angels around him begin to flap their wings, creating the ionization of nitric oxide, which is just enough to spiral into the demented infidel's head long enough for him to light himself on fire and foil his plan?

So yes, today was interesting, and there are many educators in the nation that can speak the higher language that college professors do, in cadence, with clarity, but without distinction. To say that President Obama is exceptional in this regard, is a myth in my opinion, for I have not heard from other college professors in the nation speak on various subjects with common ground. There is more to say on that subject, but I will refuse to propagate the myth that President Obama is talented in this regard without peer.

For example a Constitutional Scholar would tell you that requiring that you forfeit 3 hours of your personal time waiting in the name of public safety is the government seizing (controling) your property (time) and you should be compensated for that time. Or are you so socialized from the trauma of working for your education with no pay conditioned you to not demand your civil liberties from a government that wants control? Axlerod said he wanted a better, stronger government? What do stronger governments do?

Once socialists get past the hard shell of their deceptions, they have no substance to back them up? How many stadiums filled of citizens die in socialist countries when their economies collapse and they starve to death, usually through censorship of the situation? And I am supposed to be terrified of a plane crash, and not unlimited funds for Nebraska, or Fannie Mae? I am finding it difficult to write humor in that today. A more powerful government, such as one that has intimate details of your health records, could easily inspire fear to infringe on your free speech?

Parts of the website are disabled while we decide what content to present, we hope you look forward to better days ahead! I look forward to pointing out possible solutions to problems and look at all the angles that I can think of to help all people no matter what their political viewpoint is.
Just as there is a global initiative towards socialism, perhaps I will lead a global initiative towards conservatism (at differing rates of course) as long as people want that debate of course. Have a great day!
Once you believe, you will never be the same?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)
The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:
a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.
b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.
c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.
e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations
that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.
g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.
h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications
this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.
i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full
of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.
k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author

assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality
there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party
that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which
this disclaimer applies.
l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009,
the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent
before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law
our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.
m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements
to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply

this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible
as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm
mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).
n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner,
or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!
o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer
that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.
p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer
recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so
that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the

terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer,
which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author
that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence
of
attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies,
and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader

Good deal on the flagpole mast - - that definitely opens up other options.
I really need to lay down some new coax also, guess it's been seven yrs. maybe eight- on my oldest and it's buried also.

One more thing. Is that an actual flagpole-- and you're just going to use the flagpole itself as a mast? Kind of confused me there. ;-)

Of course you know what this means to all the late night comedians out there? That he spent the last hour saying good bye to his best friend for his last hour on earth, and just could not tear himself away from the embrace? How do Chinese say it, love you long time?

Meanwhile, the more powerful government that Axlerod wants to create will ensure that some nut ball in the future will profile anyone who happens to "embrace their best friend" as someone on the verge of their last hour on earth, and a suicide bomber? Isn't socialism where everyone sticks their nose in everyone's business grand? And of course "freedom fighter" Islamist terrorists play unwilling but useful pawns to create chaos that communists love to justify taking people's dignity, privacy, and freedoms?

No wonder the angels sent this guy a whiff of nitrous oxide and made him giddy enough to set himself on fire? Now you are laughing too?

Will you please fix your mailer-settings. Your message looks awful!

My bullshit detector tripped on your use of the word "angel". What is the wingspan of an angel? What is the frequency of it's wing-flapping in order for it to lift from the ground?

Yep, it's an actual flagpole.

No, that was the second guy, the next day, who was in the bathroom.

The first guy was in his seat when he reached in his pants and lit his explosive.

Maybe...the second guy wasn't arrested because he was just sick

And, come to think of it, aren't you the same clown 'tard who was desperately asking me what mode a certain pirate was using so that you might tune them in?

Punch a button, boy, and figure it out!

And, pay attention 'tard, I was first licensed coming up on 40 years ago, and I certainly don't need some drug addled SOB trying to point out the rules and regs to me.

The whole global warming (GW) scam is not to reduce CO2, and stop global warming, it is to have a global government. The people that are trying to push cap and trade and all that garbage down our throats are socialist-globalists. Or, that group of people that is above communism. Groups like the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) and others are with their members pushing this nonsence. These people have a record of wanting more and more central control of the governments of the world. They are the ones behind the UN and the EU and other power grabbing organizations. CO2 is talked about as if it was carbon monoxide. Carbon Dioxide is a natural substance, and is used by plants to make oxygen. The worlds volcanos pump out more CO2 every year than all the cars in the world. Also, ships at sea are major contributors. Even when people like Al Gore are proven wrong, they still preach the same sermon. Why is it that guys like M. Gorbechef are all of a sudden concerned about GW and the need to control it? This is the same Gorby that ran the Soviet Union for years and started wars all over the region. He wasn't concerned with GW then. Major businesses are behind stopping GW because they will be able to get government grants. This is also true of scientists. Speaking of which, there are over 33,000 that have signed a petition saying that there is no man made GW. Ofcourse when you ask GW fanatics they say those are not real scientists. Just like those that say evolution is false, the pro-evolutionists will say they are not real scientists.

5692. Can't get much on Shortwave.

I only have a portable shortwave radio (Grundig Yacht Boy 400) that I have had for about 15 years. (It replaced a Grundig 2000 which was a real nice radio in its day.) When I first got it there was stuff on there not only in the bands but in between. There were about 10 places to hear the BBC and VOA. Now I can tune the radio all night and maybe pick up a few Christian broadcasts and one or two Spanish stations. I usually just end up listening to the AM and FM stations. Even Hams are sort of rare. If this keeps up, in a year or two there won't be anything on SW. Or is there something wrong with my radio? Ric in Wisconsin.

No, there are several things that have happened. One is that shortwave radio signals bounce off the top of the athmosphere (the ionosphere). That's why you can hear them being too far away for ground wave signals (the ones that travel along the surface of the earth).

The number one thing that controls the ionosphere is the sun. When there is sunlight, the ionosphere bounces higher frequency radio signals, which is why some bands work better during the day and others at night.

The second thing is the number of sunspots. The more sunspots the more the ionosphere is "charged". Sunspots follow an eleven year cycle, 15 years ago we were just ending a peak. Now we are at the bottom of a cycle. This bottom is rare, there have been so many months with no sunspots and so little recovery that it may be the worst cycle since people have been keeping track (1700's).

Things are so bad that many people are predicting another "little ice age" (look it up).

So radio propigation (the spreading of signals) is much less than it was 15 years ago, and the frequencies that spread are much lower.

The next problem is noise. I live in a medium sized city (Jerusalem). All around me are computers, wireless networks, telephones, etc. This puts me in a cloud of electrical noise that covers over radio signals. 4 mHz and below is unusable to me.

That's how I tell if an (infrequent) power outage is just my building, or the entire neighborhood. If I can receive the BBC on 1323kHz (AM broadcast band) from Cyprus with a portable radio, the outage is more than just right around me. If you have a radio tuned to it an on when the power is restored, you can hear the devices all starting up.

Things have also changed with shortwave broadcasting. Between the internet, satellite delivery of broadcast material, and paid subscriptions (NPR pays the BBC to give you BBC news) stations are abandoning North America.

Signals are still out there, but in a lot of cases you are not getting them beamed to you directly, you are hearing a signal aimed at someone else. These signals are much weaker and you may need a better radio, a better antenna or more patience to receive them.

Since the end of the cold war, political broadcasting almost stopped. Radio Moscow, Radio Habana (Cuba), and the soviet satellites dropped or reduced their programing. The US policial stations (VOA, Radio Marti, Radio Liberty, etc) scaled back their programming or left the air entirely.

In that area things are changing. China (the PRC), Russia (now a rising world power trying to fill the vacuum), and so on are hitting the shortwaves big. However they are not going after you, although programs aimed at the developed countries are broadcast, but they deliver over the internet too.

The reality of the situation is that no matter how what people can use to get their information, nothing is as hard to stop, or as cheap to receive with no infrastructure than shortwave boradcasting.

I'll bet as I write this, (Dec 29, 2009) there are a lot of people in Iran who wished they had shortwave radios.

Geoff.

Actually, Bill and Melinda Gates; and Medtronic; pay PRI to distribute the BBC World Service in N. Am.

I listen at vpr.org

Much nicer than all that swishy shortwave.

A lot of amateurs don't own a microphone, and use digital modes to talk around the world on less power than a TV set. You'll need something more stable than a Yacht Boy to decode that.

You're completely wrong. The amount of people using QRP and CW is nowhere near those using SSB. No one uses AM apart from on 160m, the rest is SSB. You can use programs with a PC soundcard to decode data modes - even CW which isn't used much now. The requirement to get a full Class A licence in the UK and other countries does away with the need to do a morse test. Shame it wasn't sooner as I had to learn it.
There is also DRM about on SW.

Lare, you have indeed and yet again dodged addressing the point (who was licensed the longest). But then again, this is vintage Lare -- whenever someone outwits you (which is quite often), you just fall back to insults, your standard modus operandi.

Keep on tap dancin', boy.

Yup Ric, it really has declined. Even the mighty "Radio Moscow world service" that was on 20 different freqs 24 hours a day 20 years ago is now down to a few hours a day with one hour of original programming via the Voice of Russia. The BBC no longer targets North America. VOA has never targeted North America by law but they have also cut back and have turned to more local broadcasting for their information in foreign countries.

You can still get the BBC or VOA, especially in the afternoon on shortwave, but it's questionable quality at best, and almost anyone who really wants to listen to those will just listen on their computer.

The Chinese are probably the only ones who even attempt to target North America most of the day and night in English via relay in Sackville in Canada. Radio Havana out of Cuba you can catch from around 8pm local until 2am local.

Now with that being said, there still is some good ones out there but not on 24 hours a day. I enjoy Radio Romania the best myself and they come in several times a night in 30 minute segments.

The Hams are less but still there, especially on 3700-4000mhz and 7000-7250mhz, usually in lower sideband.

The lack of sunspots makes daytime listening almost a waste now.

But yea, the Harold Camping's, Brother Stair's, Melissa Scott, and countless other non-traditional preachers dominate the airwaves.

But the golden days of shortwave are long gone....

No tap dance at all, 'tard boy! Regardless of who was licensed longer was not the point. The point was that Rickmers, drug addled 'tard that he is, tried to ream me for LISTENING to pirate radio stations (which he himself does, or wants to do) by sending out the Part 97 rules.

I'm still wondering what his point was or is.

Now that's tap dancing!

I still maintain, regardless of who was licensed first that I certainly don't need some drug addled SOB trying to point out the rules and regs to me.

Ric...

I'm in Wisconsin too (near the U.P.) and having a ball with shortwave. Don't listen to the baloney that the "golden days of shortwave are gone." Several shortwave stations have went on the air this past year and numerous are expanding their coverage. There is still a lot there but you'll need more than a telescopic whip to do it. Telescopic whips NEVER were much of a performer. Alligator clip a longwire...any length more than 20 feet and see what you get. Everybody seems to have bought into the "if it's digital it is an outstandinga piece of gear" crap. A lot of digital SW receivers are just as deaf as their earlier ancestors which needed more than a bicycle spoke as an antenna. You need to capture RF with something more than a whip.

Mr. Mendleson's explanation was the most accurate. We're in a period of horrific sunspot inactivity and all the bands are dead.

As for hams, there's plenty of action from 3500 to 4000 kc with the 3500-3600 loaded every night with CW.
By the way, I can decode digital modes with my lowly little Grundig Yacht Boy 400PE although the audio is, well, like most things of the cell phone era are on music and voice; so I use old stuff.

Good luck and...enjoy...

in Eden Prarie,Minnesota.
I ordered a Wireless TV Ears, the box with the wireless speaker inside the box.$149.95 plus $10.00 S&H.

I asked the nice lady at Harris Communications,,, How long will it take

As you all know we'll be celebrating Kombat's Arrest Anniversary with a BASH on Jan 8th...Here's a singing tribute to "The Usenet Legend"...

To be sung to Gordon Lightfoot's "The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald"...

"The legend lives on from the Kingdom on down
To the beaches they call Banda Aceh`

He ruined Rec dot Knives
With his falsehoods and lies
By trade a "Professional Snapperrrrr"
Not a penny was made
Where the "elephants layed"
The business was flush in the crapperrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrr

(humming the Edmund Fitzgerald melody)

The orders came down
From the King and the Crown
It was time to vacate "Big Mango"
To "Singers" he'll go
With "the Kadek" in tow
And a cadre` of "sockies" beside him

(humming the E.F melody)

A bull sh%tter galore
A true message board wh%re
The Trolls of Distinguished came calling
Never let it be said that "the Kraven is dead"
He's why SCT's...so appauling

And so goes the Legend of Kraven (to the E.F. melody)

Disagree in the polite way. Who went ON the air in 2009? Who expanded their coverage to North America in 2009? Poland, France, Germany, Canada, Netherlands, Prague, Mighty KBC radio, Radio Japan, and many others cut back broadcasting in 2009 in English. Even the Cubans cut back in 2009 giving up parts of 6000khz at night. Come on man.....

The golden days are long gone my friend. Sorry. There is always going to be types who say it isn't dying, or the types who will claim shortwave radios of the 70s were the best and everything made today is junk. Hams of course will say it is a growing hobby but it's not.

Try buying a shortwave radio at Walmart, Kmart, sears etc... They don't stock them. It's because the market isn't there anymore. Not even Best Buy stocks them in their stores. Circuit City when they were around last year no longer stocked them. Radio Shack still has them but no high end models and only portables.

Also most shortwave owners are Dxer's.... which is not what broadcasters want.. Broadcasters want people to tune in and listen, not just say "I heard Radio Prague" and then tune right off to dx the next station.

Still plenty out there but BBC and many others didn't cut back because they hate shortwave. They cut back because it simply wasn't economically viable to keep targeting North America on shortwave with no one listening.

Thanks to all that replied to my question. It seems like it is another result of the switch to digital and fiber optics or sattelites. Too bad, it was fun to hear those far off places. I got my first shortwave when my dad was looking at a boat and the owner had an old wooden tube radio sitting by the road for the junk man. He got it for nothing and I had to buy a tube for it. That was in the days of jamming stations and Cuba, the Soviet Union and all those communists broadcasting all that stuff that you never heard about. The smell of a radio cooking the wood to give off a burnt varnish smell with a little burnt dust mixed in. Plus they glowed in the dark Not the same as the modern plastic, cold as ice radios of today. Well, everything has its time I guess. Maybe some day it will come back. The programs were getting rather boring at times. Those two hour or more talks about the flowers grown in some valley or how some people made their wine didn't cut it after about a half hour. Oh well. Ric in Wisconsin.

LOL!!! Yea, the days when the Soviets jammed anything aimed toward them. Good memories in a weird way.

The Cubans still jam today, especially against spanish programs from the states like Radio Marti and WRMI aimed toward Cuba. That swoosh sound is how the Cubans jam those today. Tune your radio from 9700 to 9955mhz and you'll probably hear at least one Cuban jamming signal.

The Chinese use something called Firedrake where they will jam signals they don't like with a constant stream of Chinese ethnic music. You don't hear it much in the states but from what I understand, it's big in the Far East. I think North and South Korea still play a jamming game against each from time to time.

Cheers.

I hear Firedrake a lot daytimes here in California, terrifically annoying when it covers signals on a dozen different freqs. I was just noticing, even with the A and K indices at rock bottom tonight, the bands are unpleasantly quiet. Sad.

The following is the personal opinion of the author, who reserves the right to republish this piece for profit, which you may read at your own risk, without any legal liabilities to the author or anyone who may publish or share this article (which must include this disclaimer) for which you here by waive the ability to sue for any reason in whole or in part in or outside of a court of law, if you do not agree, the entire article is to be considered a work of fiction, since you apparently want to live in an imaginary world.

"Conservative" Hutchison announced her "vision" for mega rail projects in Texas? Since when do conservatives bank roll rail roads? Are not rail roads one of the most profitable enterprises today, with large monopolies? So why would that be the "vision" of a Governor? If it was so profitable, or necessary, why can't the rail roads do it themselves? Attention Definition Disorder?

Do Texans ride trains or drive pickup trucks with rebel flag stickers on them?

Is she trying to finance a way for all the illegals who do not own cars cheap transportation around Texas? Do you notice how she says Rick Perry calls her a "champion" in her ads, but she does not give Rick Perry credit for the 70% drop in crime due to his actions to fund additional border agents (without help from Washington?)?

Have you lost touch with reality Mr. Cheney, or are you really a rhino? Or is Mr. Cheney another person with a big head, who will not admit his mistakes? Mr. Cheney, you ignored Hutchison's plan to resign from Congress, and you still made the endorsement for her run for Governor? Just cuz you said so?

We may be starting a new political party, with decentralized conservatism as its foundation, which means that society is based on individual responsibility, and the risk taking of the wealthy (who can afford to loose) rather than the society based on the risk taking of centralized socialist government (who seem bent on suicide?) who risk everyone failing, not just their own wealth? We will study Andy Stern for the next six months to figure out how to put it together? Choice and competition, right?

We're hoping to educate Mr. Obama, are we seeing hints of redemption coming soon?

Does Homeland Security include the Department of Financial Suicide Prevention? I mean, I would just hate to see federal government employees get IOUs for paychecks? But of course they all love to talk about global climate change?

Have a great day in the Department of the Democrat Party Suicide Center, 1600 Pennsylvania Ave, Washington, DC 20500, Suite Palin War Room? We want a "better", "stronger" government? Why? What's wrong with success? Don't trust the judgement of the citizens, or you don't like people that say no? Ooops, there it is, Oooops there it went, Speaker Pelosi on a Gulf Stream Jet, another dream killed by wasted tax money spent?

The Democrat PR machine, the next chew toy for our dogs of common sense? Who let the dogs out, woof woof woof!

Would the peer pressure of ex-communication mean anything to them? I mean, being silent is more important than carpet bombing Yemen? Kind of wierd how "Euro Pee Ons" (a term of endearment which they have earned over the past twenty years?) lament that the United States uses "so much resources" (that 25% of the world figure crops up, which I don't believe) but they don't seem to mind that America builds aircraft carrier groups, puts things in orbit around the planet, and maintains the most advanced weapons systems on the planet to help protect them?

Buy your gold spikes now, population control coming to your town soon, cash in on plans to put spikes into "conservative tramps" who violate our more "powerful government" by having more than one children, watch their little hands twitter while they die at the hands of power hungry politicians? You want to pay for your own medical tests? We've got a gold spike for you to?

From the point of view of the railroads, it's a good deal. Give Kay Bailey Hutchison a few grand in contributions and she'll happily charge taxpayers to build, operate and maintain a railroad "superhighway" that brings stuff up into America that used to be made in America before Republicans like her were bought off to send US manufacturing jobs away. First they send your $15.00 an hour union job to Mexico, then they charge you for the cost of having what you used to make shipped back up to you which, strangely, doesn't cost any less even though it's now being made at near slave labor wages and with much crappier materials. Give KBH (God, "KBH" even sounds like a channel for one of SuperDick's oversight-free corporate welfare scams where billions simply vanish and no one is ever blamed) enough money and she'll subsidize the locomotives and fuel too, while screaming "Socialist" at anyone who dares to question the wisdom of any of it. Massive corporate welfare, even for already profitable corporations, is the central tenet of conservatism. You'd think it would be smaller government, lassaiz faire, individual responsibility or something like that but it's actually Free Money, and the less you need it the more determined the Republicans are to give it to you anyway. Banks, oil companies, healthcare monopolies, you name the industry and it probably got a really big check. Eight years of watching the Bush administration shovel literally trillions of dollars in taxpayer money to anybody who ever slid a brown paper bag of unmarked bills with non-consecutive serial numbers under the door of the RNC should have exposed the Republicans as despicable corporate fraudsters, but millions of conservatives are still buying the smaller government/ individual liberty line. So you go, Kay. Make those motherfucking peasants pay through the nose for what it costs your beloved corporations to destroy their lives and futures.

The market has spoken once again: It said this was economically unfeasible and free market Republican once again told the free market shut the fuck up.

Completely wrong? Really?

QRP is <5 Watts. A typical TV uses at least 40 Watts. Which is what I use to work the world with QPSK31.

There are radios that live entirely inside a PC, except for the front end/PA box, and they are among the best in the world.

Justis. i never buy a radio, just for the idea of buying a new radio. but, when i see something i like, i always check the web first. can't say enough about the yahoo groups. eHam is good, most are honest reports. and, i always buy from Universal Radio. they have a great return set-up. and, the people there know what they sell. i just wish they were a bit closer to me. i'm east of Pittsburgh, and they are near Columbus. oh-well.

You said you sent someone at a pirate station an email, recommending that they change frequency to avoid interference. That is an active

Southwest Airlines burns a hole in the sky between Houston and Dallas with dozens of daily flights. Trains would be more efficient and less polluting.

I spend my getaway time in the North Woods, about 45 minutes south of Rhinelander. I've gotten some pretty decent catches with my Grunding Sat 650 Professional. Not the tightest IF in the world, but tremendous audio.

And out in the middle of the woods the noise floor is astonishingly low, so there are some opportunities for deep DX you don't find down here in the big city.

The bands aren't as full as they were when WNYW was pounding the ether. But there's still plenty out there to hunt down and savor.

5732. Nostalgic and historic MW DX from the seventies

My good DX friend Gary Deacon has just added some nostalgia of his early years of DX; from his early teens in the seventies to his status today as one of the world's most talented MW DXer's.
Gary is very talented in many directions, not just radio DX, and his absorbing blogspot reveals his great talents.
See: http://www.capedx.blogspot.com/
Here Gary has assembled a very interesting collection of stories, pictures and rare QSL's to tantalise the reader, and reveals his marvelous catches on often modest radio's and antenna's.
Today, Gary, always retro, is busy DXing with his little Sony hand held ultralight, to which he wraps round his 220m BOG (beverage on the ground) and gets the most amazing catches that awes all of us with our expensive top of line equipment.

Do yourself a favour this holiday season and take a half hour to browse through Gary's outstanding blogspot - you will not be disappointed but awed at this mans talent.

It's never too late to start your DXing - I got the best catches of my life in my dotage in 2008, and if you want a new direction, I highly recomment joining the ULR ultralight radio group to rejuvenate your jaded listening.

Have fun, good DX, and a wonderful New Year in 2010 to you all

John,
As always, a very interesting post! I hope that you and yours had a Merry Christmas and will have a Happy New Year! We need to see your posts on this group more! MWDX is where it's at! Still trying for some of those western states from here in deep South Florida!

Amen, brother!

Never quite understood why guys who frequent a particular newsgroup topic are so down on it. Curiously it is this way on so many RADIO related newsgroups. Put a posting on one that stated, "I really like ___." There's always Eeyores out there to moan a response like, "What d'ya wanna like THAT for?"
Good grief.

There's lots of new shortwave to be heard and expanded coverage of existing stations. If you don't believe it visit any of the shortwave club websites. But you got to get an antenna up and not rely on the crap performance of the Chinese-made toys that they've given us to emulate receivers. True, some stations are no longer there but others have taken their places. Just because we are brainwashed and weary from the mind-numbing domestic propaganda that The Economy Is Everything Nothing Else Matters---not EVERYWHERE in the world is this mantra chanted. There are still places that believe in sharing things for the sake of cultural enjoyment; and presenting news with truth. These places will long believe in the good will of worldwide coverage direct to a receiver as we once did when people used to huddle behind the Iron curtain to hear Radio Free Europe on shortwave.

Who let the dogs out, woof, woof, woof, woof! Herman Cain "The Brain" tackles liberals today as substitute for Sean Hannity on the radio, and as no surprise, ends up chewing up liberal lies and having fun doing it. Dumb founded liberals everywhere are contemplating whether or not to even bother celebrating the new year, as Herman Cain is behind the door of the new year, with his double barrel shot gun of truth?

Liberals can fight the urges of dispair and political suicide by joining us in the new year, and donate what you can to conservatives running for office, and the Republicans. The images of their stuttering Obama, his worn out cliches, his broken promises, his apathy for fellow man, only leaves liberals to thank God that he is not a doctor, who secretly wishes to chop their egg rolls or feet off? Trying to mop up his mess with his dirty Congressional water? How do you clean up dirt with dirt?

Nice job Herman, he makes it easy to support his dreams. Thank you Sean, you're full of surprises and good will this year. Wishing you the best. The Sonic Boom of truth was heard today, all over the world.

Why waste the money? Just show up in a bathrobe? Hey, if we are going to spend that kind of money, why not skip the machine, we get inspected totally naked, by a TSA employee who is also totally naked and must have at least two years experience as a stripper? Kind of clever huh? You could shut down all the strip clubs in the United States and give them all jobs at the TSA? I wonder what that acronym will then stand for? Terrible Security Associates? Hmmm, guess I'll have to work on that one?

You realize of course you'll have to install poles at the inspection stations? LOL.

OMG! I hope they have toilet paper on the air plane, last I heard those evironmental retards want to ban the stuff? Can you imagine? I better get a beer, my mind is wandering now?

How long is it going to be before we have to fly in four point restraints in our underware? This is bullshit by degrees. Now we can't have so much as a blanket or pillow, let alone our laptop or anything else for at least the last hour of the flight (on many domestic flights, this will mean not at all, since we can't have anything before being at cruising altitude already). They just keep punishing law abiding travelers, meanwhile, the ones that are intent upon carnage will only figure another way around it.

This has been shown time and time again. Someone needs to do their friggin' job and stop these yahoos BEFORE they get on the plane. This one could have been stopped any of SEVERAL times before ever embarking! If I ever come home, I'll take a friggin' BOAT, it's not so much more expensive anymore, and you get your own room and don't have to eat nasty airline food (or deal with a lack of it).

While it may not be impossible to sink a ship, it's a damn site harder than dropping a plane. They'd have to have something significantly larger than they could carry on their person to get through that hull. This is not to say, of course, that they couldn't do some damage to whatever room they happened to be in.

If it's the same thermo quads that we had on some V8's here in the late 70's and 80's, then I can tell you that one manufacturer put out a "program" to their dealerships on how to deal with issues. I received a lot of detail from a friend in my car club who worked in a dealership back around then. It included all details on setup, but can't recall all the steps. I do remember that the relationship between the primary and secondary throttle valves was crucial. They were linked by a rod which had to be bent at a very specific angle so that the secondary valves opened in the right relationship to the primary opening. If this relationship wasn't absolutely spot on, all sorts of problems ensued, most notably a hesitation on transition to the secondary throttles at highway speeds.
The program gave instructions on how to make a tool to check the bend on the throttle link. Apparently, you needed to check and adjust that relationship FIRST before making ANY OTHER adjustments. If you don't, then none of the subsequent adjustments will be any good.

Here's some info on the beasts;

http://www.carburetor.ca/Tech/Carter/tqguide-Vaanth.html

There's a lot more info on the quads on the net. Just a matter of finding the info that suits your version of the carb.

I always wondered why they went for a phenolic resin body on the carb but it seems it was to do with emission control in the early days. A lot of the vehicles ran hotter then and the phenolic resin kept the fuel in the bowl up to 20 degrees (F??) cooler than an equivalent alloy body.

Brings back memories of the old days. Most of the rodders here used to turf the quads out but they weren't too bad if you knew how to properly set them up.

Here's some tips for the Chrysler versions.

http://www.offroadexchange.com/tquad.htm

Hope this helps

No problem Fred. It's a great group here and irregardless ( like you

No one is making anyone reading anything in here - so that's my take Far better technique than converting our societies into ever-tightening "national security" states:

1) Stop invading and occupying other people's countries or fomenting revolution in them, and 2) stop supporting those who do; if we did so, 90 per cent. of the hatred of the West would disappear in time.
At the same time we need to 3) take steps to prevent the invasion and occupation of our own lands.

With all good wishes,

One barrel and two barrel carburetors, I have had good success at rebuilding them before, using rebuild kits.I have never worked on four barrel carburetors before though.On the day before Christmas eve last week, I was at the O'Reilly's auto parts store on Ellis Ave, I bought a gallon of Evapo Rust and a spray can of O'Reilly's (brand name) carburetor cleaner.I got to talking to one of the guys who works at the store about my carburetor.He said he knows a guy who makes a good living at rebuilding carburetors.He wrote down his name and phone number and street address, but I somehow lost that piece of paper.He phoned that guy, said he will rebuild my carburetor for $145.00.

Tomorrow, I am going to remove the carburetor from my van and I will phone that O'Reilly's store and ask for the guy's phone number.Carburetor rebuild kits for that carburetor cost about $35.00 around here.I reckon I will let the guy rebuild my carburetor and when I get my van running, I will drive over to his place and let him do any final adjustments, fuel mixture screws, idle mixture screws/ whatever.Yep, I think that is the best bet for me.

Chicken and the egg......
America has long tried to change the world into it's own vision. The UK has been its Poodle, certainly since Thatchers time, and probably before.The 'Special relationship' IMHO is something which exists only in the minds of some British politicians.
I do feel however, that the time has come for 'profiling' at airport security. The Authorities know who is a 'probable, and who certainly isn't, based on the intelligence information which they possess - why aren't they using it?

Say No all you want. You have already been overruled. This will be implemented because even though it wouldn't have stopped the underpants bomber, it's a cool new way for government employees to seize more control over private citizens, and isn't that what freedom is all about? The leering and jeering parts are just neat little bonuses for them, on top of the very generous package of bonuses and goodies they already enjoy.

Jam packed as usual with the latest broadcast info for SW and for me, most importantly, the most comprehensive data on MW that exists.

Certainly the "bible" fo the serious DXer.

Interesting reviews of the Icom IC-7600 and IC-7000 as receivers and also the Eton Satellit 750.

The first arab terrorist attacks against western interests were in 1970. Palestinians hijacking jets. Nobody except Israel was hassling them but Israel did and still does get a lot of backing from both USA and UK. The elephant in the room is still there and it's Israel and Palestine. Sort that and much of the problem will vanish.

The current wave was sparked by the invasion of Iraq. Quite why that was done I can't work out. If they wanted a villain then the obvious choice was the country where the Sept 11 hijackers originated. Plus at the time the same country was holding britons as prisoners and allegations of torture were being made. We had a real excuse to invade not like the phony one made for Iraq. The place is a hotbed of religious fundamentalism. Invading and stamping it out should have been a prime objective. Perhaps the reason the Saudis were left alone is because the ruling families are pals with the ruling families in the west.

Well the old Islamic caliphate they wish to restore was a lot of things, but never Socialist...

Dear "Question Guy",

I don't normally post, and prefer to lurk but at this point I feel I have to speak up to prevent the group from being ruined by trolls such as yourself.

Anonymous posters repeatedly show by their posts why they are ashamed to associate their name with their posts.

If Steve Kramer were here I'm sure he'd soon put you and the other trolls in your place, but he stopped posting some time ago and probably has more important things to do with his time than answering morons like you.

We've had enough of your trolling, so kindly take your childish fighting elsewhere. Frankly, I dont think anyone here really cares about this sock puppetry other than you and a few other like-minded Trolls who are intent on causing as much noise and disruption as possible.

Have a nice day!

Tammy

Because it's politically incorrect. I heard a live interview on You and Yours just after that nutter. The security rep said right away that the airports and security services need to start observing the likely people by body language and by using common sense instead of imposing restrictions upon everyone. Let's face it, if you had two guys at the checkout desk - one of them is a ginger haired Scot in a kilt and the other is a middle-eastern looking guy with shifty eyes and a slightly nervous disposition, then which one do you think is out to drop the plane?
By the lack of our politicians actions we are all suffering by having our liberties constantly restriced.

The terrorists are certainly winning.

These publications tend to favor advertisers' products when doing

There is a full page ad for the Winradio EXCALIBUR and several ads for Eton. None for Icom

The review speaks very highly of the Icom IC-7000 as a listeners radio, but the review of the IC-7600 hardly does justice to this very fine radio.

Perseus was reviewed last year and I think Flex Radio a year before
that

The Elecraft K3 is said to be very poor for a AM SW/MW listener

Of course they are.

dxAce
Michigan
USA

Drake R7, R8, R8A and R8B
70' and 200' wires
GE SR I and II

239 countries heard and 225 QSL'd (veried, for those in Glendale) using the NASWA Country List.

And, as always, don't let your children attend the Sullivan College of Technology & Design.

They've hired at least one dufus who once claimed to have a PhD and lied about being arrested, and who knows, there may be more dufi there.

But everyone wasn't.

The satraps were quasi independent rulers.

A society with formalised slavery isn't going to treat everyone in the same way.

No

It's pretty fundamental to all Socialists, which is why we know Tony Blair isn't one...

We all already know that you define words to mean what you want them to mean.

Looks like 9740 will be the frequency here to hear the full strike of Big Ben at 0000 marking the beginning of the GMT New Year.

As Iook in my log, which these days I only get out to record the beginning of the GMT New Year and the full strike of Big Ben, I note that I heard it on 9740 at the beginning of 2009 as well.

Not at great signal out of 9740 via Singapore at 2315 but hopefully it will suffice. 9740 sked 2300-0200 so one might hear the run up, time pips, and the full strike.

Good luck,

It might be pointed out that in this case racial profiling based upon "a middle eastern looking guy with shifty eyes" would not have been fruitful in this case. What SHOULD have kept this guy off a plane was his own father notifying authorities that he could be trouble..
